PREFACE

East and West stand today face to face. They must learn to understand one another if the world is to have enduring peace. More important for civilization than the settlement of the political and national problems which divide the West, grievous though they be, is the harmonizing of the great racial differences which separate the Orient from the Occident. It may be an age-long task to bring the oriental to employ the same mental processes as the occidental, or to teach the latter to view the problems of life from the point of view of the former; but at least we can lead him to know that differences exist, and we can study the historical background, racial and religious, out of which these differences have arisen.

As a help to this mutual understanding, the great history of Balâdhuri, translated under the title of "The Origins of the Islâmic State," is of no mean importance. The present volume completes the task which was begun some years ago by Dr. Philip Khûri Hitti, and of which the aim was to present to non-Arabists one of the most important of the sources of Mohammedan history. As Dr. Martin Sprengling says in the American Journal of Semitic Languages and Literature for April 1923, p. 207, "We in this western world are beginning to take greater and more intelligent interest in that teeming Near East, where in remote antiquity our civilization arose, and where a great Moslem culture held high its torch during those Middle Ages, when its light was low and wavering in Europe, and where even now great movements and revivals seem to be preparing."

In the preparation of this second part of Volume LXVIII it has been the purpose to follow the plan and method of Dr. Hitti, and no deviations therefrom of material importance have been made. Foot-notes have been kept to a minimum, and the attempt has been made to refer mostly to works which the non-Arabist can make use of; but in cases where the meaning of the text was not clear, or the facts as stated were seriously at variance with other sources, references have been given to the more important Arabic historians and geographers.

With one exception (page 131) no emendations or alterations of the text as edited by De Goeje have been made or followed other than those included by that great Arabic scholar in his notes. References to Caetani's Annali dell' Islâm are given by year and section as being the most convenient in view of the chronological arrangement of that work. The abbreviation Meyn. is used for Barbier de Meynard's Dictionnaire de la Perse; LeStr. for G. Le Strange's Lands of the Eastern Caliphate; while references to volume i of The Origins of the Islâmic State are given under Hitti.

The indebtedness of the translator is gratefully acknowledged to Professors Gottheil and Worrell of Columbia for many suggestions which were incorporated in the manuscript and for reading the proof, and to Professor Popper of the University of California for assistance in solving many difficult problems.

NOTE

In the short notice that I prefixed to the first part of al-Balādhuri's history done into English by Dr. Hitti, I expressed my appreciation of the importance of making the chief documents dealing with the early history of the Arab people accessible to readers who were not in the knowledge of Arabic. Recent history has confirmed me in this appreciation.

Dr. Murgotten gives us in the following a translation of the second part. It had been his intention to publish it three years ago; but the war demanded his services overseas in the Near East; and it took some time before he was able to return and take up his work at the point where he had laid it down. Dr. Murgotten has labored with much care, often far from the tools which he needed so obviously. He has worked with much success; and I am sure that readers of Arabic will agree with me that the task—not always easy—has been done with faith and with care. As such I recommend it to those interested in this period of the world's history.

AR-RAI AND KUMAS

'Urwah "al-Bashîr". Al-'Abbâs ibn-Hishâm al-Kalbi from his father from abu-Mikhnaf :—Two months after the battle of Nihâwand, 'Umar ibn-al-Khattâb wrote to 'Ammâr ibn-Yâsir, his 'âmil over al-Kûfah, ordering him to send 'Urwah ibn-Zaid al-Khail aṭ-Ṭâ'i against ar-Rai ¹ and Das-taba ² with 8,000 men, which he did. 'Urwah went there, and the Dailamites, ³ supported by the people of ar-Rai, assembled against him. They engaged in battle with him, but Allah gave him the victory over them, and he slew and slaughtered them. Then he left his brother, Ḥanṭhalah ibn-Zaid, in charge, went to 'Ammâr, and asked to be sent to 'Umar. This was because he had been the one who had brought to 'Umar the news of the defeat at the Bridge, ⁴ and he wanted to bring him some cheering news. 'Umar, when he saw him, said, "Behold, to Allah we belong and unto him shall we return." ⁵ But 'Urwah said, "Nay, praise Allah rather, for he has helped us and given us the victory." And he told him his news. 'Umar said, "Why didst thou not stay and send a messenger?" He answered, "I left my brother in charge, for I wanted to come to thee myself." 'Umar surnamed him al-Bashîr (the bringer of good tidings).

⁵ I. e. "Here comes bad news."

And 'Urwah said :

"I appeared to the people of al-Ḳādisiyah with news.

Not every one who hides adversity will tell.

Once on a time in the shelter of the palm trees,

I fought and fled not, causing blood to flow and many a wound.

And at the battle with the Dailamites I surely learned

That when my face is turned to the foe, they have to flee,

Knowing full well that I am a man of zeal;

I am not found holding back; I press forward."

Al-Mundhir ibn-Ḥassân ibn-Ḍirâr, one of the banu-Mâlik ibn-Zaid, had a share in the slaying of Mihrân¹ at the battle of the Palm Trees (an-Nukhailah).²

Terms of peace. After 'Urwah's departure, Ḥudhaifah placed in command of his army Salamah ibn-'Amr ibn-Ḍirâr aḍ-Dabbi. (Others say al-Barâ' ibn-Âzib.) 'Urwah's victory had thoroughly confounded the Dailamites and the people of ar-Rai. Salamah besieged the castle of Farrukân³ ibn-az-Zainabadi. (The Arabs call him az-Zainabi, and 31 he was also called 'Ârin.) Ibn-az-Zainabi made peace with Salamah after some fighting, the terms being that the inhabitants become dhimmis, paying jizyah and kharâj. 500,000 dirhams were given him on account of the people of ar-Rai and Ḳûmas⁴ on condition that he should not kill nor enslave any of them nor raze any of their fire temples, and that they should be the same in regard to their kharâj as the people of Nihâwand. He also made terms with him for the people of Dastaba ar-Râzi. (For Dastaba was in two parts, the part towards ar-Rai, and the part toward Hamadhân.) Sulaimân⁵ ibn-'Umar aḍ-Dabbi (or al-Barâ' ibn-Âzib) sent a troop of cavalry to Kûmas, where they met with no resistance, but captured also Abwâb ad-Dâmghân.¹

Ar-Rai rebellious. Later when 'Umar ibn-al-Khattâb removed 'Ammâr and appointed al-Mughirah ibn-Shu'bah over al-Kûfah, the latter appointed Kathîr ibn-Shihâb al-Ĥârithi over ar-Rai and Dastaba. Kathîr had distinguished himself at the battle of al-Kâdisiyah. When they got to ar-Rai, he found its people had rebelled, but he fought with them until they returned to obedience and paid up the kharâj and the jizyah. He also made a raid against the Dailam and a sudden attack, and a raid against al-Babar and at-Ṭailasân.²

Kathîr ibn-Shihâb. Ḥafṣ ibn-'Umar al-'Umari from al-Haitham ibn-'Adi from ibn-Ayyâsh al-Hamadhâni and others:—Kathîr ibn-Shihâb was governor of ar-Rai, Dastaba, and Kâzwin. He was handsome and resolute, but crippled.³ He used to say, "I am the only cripple who is not a burden on his family." On horseback his legs were as steady as two ploughs. When he made a raid, every one that was with him took a shield, breast-plate, iron helmet, a packing needle and five small needles, linen thread, awl, scissors, nose-bag, and basket. He was avaricious, and had a deep dish in front of him, and when anyone came up to him, he would say, "Be off with thee! Didst thou expect aught of what we are eating?" One day he said to his slave, "Give me something to eat." The slave answered, "I have nothing but bread and herbs." And Kathîr exclaimed, "Did I make war upon Persia and Greece only for bread and herbs?" He ruled ar-Rai and Dastaba for a while also in the time of Mu'âwiyah. 319

³ Ṭabari says nothing about his deformity

Another rebellion. Sa'd ibn-abu-Waqqâs, when he was governor of al-Kûfah the second time, came to ar-Rai, which was in revolt, and brought it to terms, and raided the Dailamites. This was in the first part of the year 25. Then he withdrew.

Ar-Rai finally quieted. Bakr ibn-al-Haitham from Yahya ibn-Daris, the kâdi of ar-Rai:—Ar-Rai, after it was conquered in the days of Hudhaifah, kept breaking its covenant and being re-subdued, until it was finally conquered by Karathah ibn-Ka'b al-Ansâri, when abd-Mûsa was governor¹ of al-Kûfah for 'Uthmân. And thereafter it remained quiet. Its governors used to live in the castle of az-Zanbadi, attending services in a mosque which was erected nearby it. It was incorporated within the outer wall (fasîl) of al-Muḥadathah (i. e. al-Muhammadiyah). They used to raid the Dailam from Dastaba. Karathah ruled afterwards over al-Kûfah for 'Ali and died there, and 'Ali [blessed him i. e.] prayed at his funeral.

Yazîd ibn-Hajabah. 'Abbâs ibn-Hishâm from his father who had the tradition from his grandfather:—'Ali appointed as governor over ar-Rai and Dastaba Yazîd ibn-Hajabah ibn-'Âmir ibn-Taimallâh ibn-Tha'labah ibn-'Ukâbah, who misappropriated the kharâj. He was imprisoned but escaped and went over to the party of Mu'âwiyah.

Abu-Mûsa raided ar-Rai in person, its people having broken the covenant, and he reduced it on the former terms.

Al-Mahdi enlarges ar-Rai Ja'far ibn-Muhammad ar-Râzi:—The Commander of the Believers al-Mahdi came in the caliphate of al-Manşûr and built the city of ar-Rai in which the people live today. He surrounded it with a moat and built in it a cathedral mosque. This was erected under the charge of 'Ammâr ibn-abu-l-Khaşîb who inscribed his name on its wall and put the date of its construction the year 158. He made an outer wall (faṣīl) for it, enclosing therewith a reservoir made of burnt brick. He named it al-Muḥammadiyah, but the people of ar-Rai called the city ad-Dākhilah (the inner) and named the faṣīl al-Madinah al-Khārijah (the outer city). The castle of az-Zanbadi was inside of al-Muḥammadiyah. Al-Mahdi ordered it to be repaired and lodged in it. It overlooked the cathedral mosque and the official residence. It was afterwards made a 320 prison.

There lived in ar-Rai after the building of the city the members of a family called the banu-l-Ḥarish.

In the days of the heathen the city of ar-Rai used to be called Arāza, and it is said that it went to ruin during heathen times. It was at a distance of six paraṣangs from al-Muḥammadiyah. The name ar-Rai comes from Arāza.

Al-Mahdi during the first part of his stay at ar-Rai lodged in a village called as-Sirawān.¹

Concerning the castle of al-Farrukhān the poet (i. e. al-Ghaṭammash ibn-al-A'war ibn-'Amr aḍ Ḍabbi) says:

"Against the accursed castle in ar-Rai he shall not slacken.
On its summit gleams the angel of death."

Bakr ibn-al-Haitham from Yaḥya ibn-Ḍarīs the kādi who says:—Ash-Sha'bi entered ar-Rai with Ḳutāibah ibn-Muslim and said to him, "What is thy favorite drink?" He replied, "That which is easiest to find and most costly to be in want of".

Sa'id ibn-Jubair also entered ar-Rai and met aḍ-Ḍaḥḥāk² and wrote an account of him.

'Amr ibn-Ma'dikarīb az-Zubaidi took part in the first raid of ar-Rai and after his departure he died and was buried above Rûdhah¹ and Bûsanah in a place named Kirmân-shâhân.²

In ar-Rai was buried al-Kisâ'i, the grammarian (his name being 'Alî ibn-Ḥamzah). He had arrived there with ar-Rashîd, who was on the way to Khurâsân.³

There died here also al-Ḥajjâj ibn-Artâh who had come with al-Mahdi. (His kunya was abu-Artâh.)

Al-Kalbi says the castle of Jâbir in Dastaba is named after Jâbir, one of the banu-Zaibân ibn-Taimallâh ibn-Tha'labah.

Amount of tribute. The assessment of ar-Rai for 12,000,000 dirhems continued until al-Ma'mûn passed through there on his return to Madinat-as-Salâm from Khurâsân. He deducted 2,000,000 dirhams from their assessment and wrote a document to this effect for the people.

CHAPTER II

CONQUEST OF KAZWIN AND ZANJÂN

Meaning of Kazwîn. I was told by some of the people of Kazwîn¹ and by Bakr ibn-al-Haitham on the authority of a scholar of the people of ar-Rai that the fortress of Kazwîn was called in Persian Kashwîn (its meaning being "the end that is looked to" i. e. "the observed"). Between it and ad-Dailam is a mountain on which the Persians had continually stationed some of their cavalry, to repel the Dailamites when there was not a truce between them and to guard their cities from robbers and such when there was a peace between them. Dastaba was divided between ar-Rai and Hamadhân, one part being called ar-Râzi and the other part al-Hamadhâni. 321

Kazwîn reduced. When al-Mughirah ibn-Shu'bah was governor of al-Kûfah, he appointed Jarir ibn-'Abdallâh governor of Hamadhân and al-Barâ' ibn-'Âzib over Kazwîn, ordering the latter to go there and, if Allah subdued it through him, to raid the Dailamites from it. Before this they had only been raided from Dastaba. Al-Barâ', accompanied by Hanṭhalah ibn-Zaid al-Khail, went as far as Abhar,¹ whose fortress he took possession of, a fortress which some of the Persians had built near some springs. They had dammed the springs with hides of cattle and with wool and above them they had constructed a platform and had then built the fortress upon it.

After some resistance they asked al-Barâ' for terms and he made peace with them on the same conditions that Ḥudhaifah had made with the people of Nihâwand. After making peace with them in this way he subdued the lands of Abhar. Then he raided the people of the fortress of Ḳazwîn, who, when they saw that the Moslems were coming against them, sent to the Dailamites, asking them to help them. They promised that they would. Al-Barâ' and the Moslems took up a position in their suburbs and the Ḳazwîni made sorties to fight them. But as for the Dailamites, they took a stand on the mountains and did not raise a hand against the Moslems. When the besieged saw this, they asked for a truce, and were offered what the people of Abhar had been given, but they disliked the idea of the jizyah and professed Islâm. It is said that they settled down under the same sort of terms in regard to Islâm as did the Asâwirah of al-Baṣrah, namely, that they might make their abode with whomever they chose. They settled in al-Kûfah and became allies (clients¹) of Zuḥrah ibn-Ḥawiyyah. They took the name Ḥamrâ ad-Dailam. (Others say that they became Moslems and remained where they were and their lands became tithe-land)

Al-Barâ' stationed among them at Ḳazwîn 500 of his Moslems (among them Ṭulaihah ibn-Khuwailid al-Asadi) to whom he made grants of lands to which no one had title.

Bakr says:—One of the inhabitants of Ḳazwîn recited to me some verses about his grandfather who was with al-Barâ':

“Ad-Dailam knew when they battled,
 What time ibn-‘Āzib came with his forces,
 That the thoughts of the polytheists were lies.
 How often we crossed in the darkness of the jungle

Al-Barâ' raids ad-Dailam. He raided ad-Dailam until they paid him tribute. He raided also Jilân and al-Babar and at-Ṭailasân, and conquered Zanjân¹ by force.

Raids by al-Walid. Al-Walid ibn-ʿUkbah ibn-abu-Muʿait ibn-abu-ʿAmr ibn-Umayyah when he was governor of al-Kûfah for ʿUthmân ibn-ʿAffân raided that part of ad-Dailam which is contiguous to Kâzwin. He raided also Adharbaijân, Jilân, Mûkân, al-Babar and at-Ṭailasân. Then he withdrew.

By Saʿid ibn-al-ʿÂṣi. Saʿid ibn-al-ʿÂṣi ibn-Saʿid ibn-al-ʿÂṣi ibn-Umayyah was governor after al-Walid. He raided ad-Dailam, making Kâzwin his headquarters. It became the frontier (or fort) for the people of al-Kûfah, some of whom built homes there.

A choice of fronts. Aḥmad ibn-Ibrâhîm ad-Dawraki from Khalaf ibn-Tamîm from Zâʿidah ibn-Kudâmah from Ismâʿil from Murrah al-Hamadhâni:—ʿAli ibn-abu-Ṭâlib said, "Whoever among you dislikes joining in our fight against Muʿâwiyah, let him take his wages and depart to ad-Dailam and fight against them." "I," says Murrah, "was among the company, and we took our wages and set out for ad-Dailam to the number of four or five thousand."

ʿAbdallâh ibn-Ṣâliḥ al-ʿIjli from ibn-Yamân from Sufyân, who says:—ʿAli sent ar-Rabîʿ ibn-Khuthaim ath-Thauri to raid ad-Dailam, putting him in command of 4,000 Moslems.

Mosque of ar-Rabîʿ. From one of the people of Kâzwin:—In Kâzwin is the well known mosque of ar-Rabîʿ ibn-Khuthaim in which was a tree with which everyone used to rub himself. It is said that if a sprig from it was stuck in the ground, it would put forth leaves until a tree grew from it. The ʿâmil of Ṭâhir ibn-ʿAbdallâh ibn-Ṭâhir cut it down in the caliphate of the Commander of the Believers 323 al-Mutawwakkil-‘al’Allâh, fearing that the people might be led into superstition by it.

Mûsa al-Hâdi extends Kāzwin. When Mûsa al-Hâdi came to ar-Rai, he visited Kāzwin and ordered a city to be built in front of it. It is known as Madinah Mûsa.¹ He bought some land which was called Rustamâbâdh² and bequeathed it to the use of the city. ‘Amr ar-Rûmi³ his freedman used to have charge of it. Then after him Muḥammad ibn-‘Amr had charge of it.

Al-Mubârak at-Turki built a stronghold called Madinat al-Mubârak⁴ in which dwelt some of his freedmen.

Ar-Rashîd reduces the tribute. Muḥammad ibn-Hârûn al-Iṣbahâni told me that ar-Rashîd passed through Hamadhân on his way to Khurâsân and the people of Kāzwin went to meet him and told him about their location with reference to the provinces of the enemy and the advantage of it in the event of his having to go to war with them. And they asked him to consider their cause and lessen the burden upon them of the excessive tithes of their produce. And so he commuted their tribute to an even 10,000 dirhams.

Zanjân becomes client of Al-Kâsim. Al-Kâsim, the son of the Commander of the Believers ar-Rashîd, was governor of Jurjân, Ṭabaristân, and Kāzwin. The people of Zanjân entrusted to him their villages, strengthening themselves through him, and defending themselves from the disgrace of beggary and from the oppression of the ‘âmils over them. They drew up for him written contracts⁵ about this and became farmers for him. This land today is part of the royal domain.⁶

Al-Kâkizân. Al-Kâkizân became tithe land because the people on it accepted Islâm and continued to cultivate it after their conversion. They entrusted it also to the protection of al-Kâsim, since they were paying to him a double tithe in addition to the tithe of the Bait al-Mâl. This land also came into the royal domain.

Dastaba united. Dastaba continued to be in two divisions, one attached to ar-Rai and the other to Hamadhân, until one of the Kazwinites belonging to banu-Tamim and named Hanthalah ibn-Khalid (his kunya being abu-Mâlik) busied himself in the matter, with the result that it was all assigned to Kazwin. One of the people of his province heard him say, "I fixed it up, as sure as my name is abu-Mâlik." The other replied, "Nay, thou didst mix it up, and thy name is abu-Hâlik (damned)."

Al-Hajjâj and the Dailam. On the authority of al-Madâ'ini and others. The Kurds were turbulent and troublesome at the time of the rebellion of 'Abd-ar-Rahmân ibn-Muhammad ibn-al-Ash'ath, and al-Hajjâj sent 'Amr ibn-Hâni' al-'Abasi against them with troops from Damascus. He fell upon them and killed some. Then he was ordered to raid ad-Dailam, which he did with 12,000 troops among whom were 80 of the banu-'Ijl and their freedmen from al-Kûfah. One of these was Muhammad ibn-Sinân al-'Ijli. 324

A dubious pedigree. 'Auf ibn-Ahmad al-'Abdi from abu-Hanash al-'Ijli from his father, who says:—I was acquainted with a member of the Tamim al-'Ijli who were sent by al-Hajjâj to garrison the frontier of ad-Dailam, and he told me, saying, "I saw one of the mawâlî of the banu-'Ijl who claimed to be a direct descendant from him (i. e. from 'Ijl). And I said, 'Thy father did not try to trace among the Arabs his descent but rather among the Persians. How then dost thou assert that thou art 'Ijl's direct descendant?' He replied, 'My mother told me so.' And I said, 'She is to be believed. She knows better than thy father.'"

Suburbs of Kāzwin. Muhammad ibn-Sinân al-'Ijli first settled in one of the cities of Dastaba. Later he removed to Kāzwin and built a residence in its suburbs. The people of the border remonstrated with him, saying, "Thou exposest thyself to destruction and us to weakness if the enemy do thee harm." But he did not pay any attention to their words, and had his son and his household build with him outside of the city. Then emigrants came later and built, so that the city was surrounded with suburbs.

Later conquests. Abu-Dulaf al-Kāsim ibn-'Īsa raided ad-Dailam in the caliphate of al-Ma'mūn, and in the caliphate of al-Mu'taṣim-billāh he was governor at the time that al-Afshīn was ruler of al-Jibāl. He captured some castles, among them being Aqlisim, whose inhabitants surrendered on condition of paying tribute; Nūwaj,¹ which he conquered by force, but later its inhabitants made terms, agreeing to pay tribute; al-Iblam, and Andāk,² among others.

Another besides abu-Dulaf made a raid against al-Afshīn and also captured some castles of ad-Dailam.

When the year 253 came, the Commander of the Believers, al-Mu'tazz-billāh, sent his freedman, Mūsa, son of Bugha-l-Ḳabir, against the Ṭālibīyūn that had appeared in ad-Dailam and the regions of Ṭabaristān. The Dailamites had protected one of them, known as al-Kaukabi. Mūsa raided the Dailamites penetrating far into their territory. They offered some resistance, but he attacked them fiercely, pressing them hard and vexing them sorely.

The Three Cronies. One of the inhabitants of Kāzwin 325 told me that in Rāwand of the province of Iṣbahān are the graves of the famous boon companions. The poet says:

"Know ye not that I am all alone in Rāwand?"

³ Bakri, s. v. Khazāk: Al-Asdi says:—

Know ye not that I have not in all Rāwand
Nor in Khazāk any friend but you two?

'Abdallâh ibn-Şâlih al-'Ijli says:—It has come to my knowledge that there were in the army of al-Ḥajjâj which he sent to ad-Dailam, three individuals of the inhabitants of al-Kûfah, who used to drink together, not associating with anyone else. One of them died suddenly. His two companions buried him and used to drink by his grave, and when his cup was brought, they would pour it on his grave and weep. Afterwards the second one died, and the remaining one buried him by the side of the first, and used to sit by the two graves and drink, and then pour a cup upon the grave which was near him, and then a cup upon the other, and weep. And one day he made up some verses, saying,

“My friends, arise! Ye sleep too long!

Verily will ye ne'er end your slumbers?

Know ye not that I am all alone in Kâzwin,

Nor have I here any friends but you?

I stay always by your graves, departing not

The night long. Unless your echo answer me,

I shall weep all my life for you. What is there that Shall prevent my broken heart from weeping for you?”

Not long afterwards he died and was buried near his two comrades and their graves are known as the graves of the Boon Companions.

PART XII

THE CONQUEST OF ADHARBAIJÂN

Conquered by Hudhaifah. Al-Ḥusain ibn-ʿAmr al-Ardabîli from Wâḳid al-Ardabîli from certain shaikhs who had heard¹ that:—when al-Mughîrah ibn-Shuʿbah came to al-Kûfah as governor for ʿUmar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb, he brought a letter to Hudhaifah ibn-al-Yamân giving the latter the governorship of Adharbaijân² which letter he delivered to him at Nihâwand or in the neighborhood thereof. Hudhaifah advanced as far as Ardabil,³ the capital of Adharbaijân, in which city was the satrap (marzubân) thereof, and where the payment of its tax was made. The marzubân had gathered there the militia from the people of Bâjarwân,⁴ Mimadh,⁵ an-Narîr,⁶ Sarât,⁷ ash-Shîz,⁸ al-Mayâniġ,⁹ and other places. These resisted the Moslems fiercely for some days. Then the marzubân made terms with Hudhaifah for all the people of Adharbaijân for 800,000 dirhams (weight 8), the conditions being that he should not kill nor enslave any of them, nor raze any fire temples, nor expose them to danger from the Kurds of al-Balâsajân,¹ Sablân² and Sâtrûdân,³ nor hinder the people of ash-Shîz in their peculiar custom of dancing on their festal days nor in observing their usual observances. Later Ḥudhaifah raided Mûkân⁴ and Jilân⁵ and overwhelmed them, and settled with them for a payment of tribute.

Utbah succeeds him. 'Umar afterwards removed Ḥudhaifah and appointed as governor of Adharbaijân 'Utbah ibn-Farḳad as-Sulami, who went there from al-Mausil. (Others say that he went there from Shahrazûr along the level plain which is known today as Mu'âwiyah al-Audi.) When he arrived at Ardabil he found its people in possession of a treaty, but some of them had broken it, so he raided them, defeating and plundering them. With him was 'Amr ibn-'Utbah az-Zâhid.

Under Mughîrah. Al-Wâkidi relates with his usual isnad that al-Mughîrah ibn-Shu'bah raided Adharbaijân from al-Kûfah in the year 22, finally succeeding in conquering the place by force, and laying upon it the kharâj.

Ibn-al-Kalbi relates on the authority of abu-Mikhnaḥ that al-Mughîrah raided Adharbaijân in the year 20 and conquered it. Later its people rebelled, and al-Ash'ath ibn-Ḳais al-Ḳindi raided them and conquered the fortress of Bâjarwân. He made the same terms with them that al-Mughîrah had made, and the treaty of al-Ash-'ath has lasted up to today.

Abu-Mikhnaf Lûṭ ibn-Yaḥya was accustomed to say that 'Umar appointed Sa'd governor, then 'Ammâr, then al-Mughîrah, then Sa'd again. In the year in which he died the *Wâli*¹ of the 'âmir^s of the provinces wrote to him (Sa'd) to come to al-Madinah, and in that way Sa'd was present at the council, and recommended to the successor to the caliphate that he himself be sent back to his province.

Another authority says that 'Umar died while al-Mughîrah was his governor over al-Kûfah, and that he suggested the appointment of Sa'd over al-Kûfah and abu-Mûsa over al-Baṣrah. 'Uthmân appointed them both, but later dismissed them. 327

The army composed of Kûfans. Al-Madâ'ini from 'Ali ibn-Mujâhid from Muhammad ibn-Ishâk from az-Zuhri:—When Allah overthrew the Persians² at Nihâwand, [most of] the people returned to their provinces, but the Kûfans remained with Ḥudhaifah and raided Adharbaijân. They made peace with him for 100,000³ [dirhams].

'Umar rejects a present. Al-Madâ'ini 'Ali ibn-Mujâhid from 'Âṣim, the "squint-eyed", from abu-'Uthmân an-Nahdi:—'Umar removed Ḥudhaifah from Adharbaijân and placed in charge of it 'Utbah ibn-Farkad as-Sulami. The latter sent him some sweet-meats which he had wrapped in cotton cloths. But when they reached 'Umar he said, "Is it money?" They said, "No." "Then what is it?" he asked. "A gift which he has sent," was the reply. And when he had looked at it he said, "Send it back to him." And he wrote to him, "O son of Umm-'Utbah, verily, thou eatest sweetmeats not the fruit of thy toil nor of thy father's toil."

Uthmân appoints al-Walid. Al-Madâ’ini from ‘Abdallâh ibn-al-Kâsim from Farwah ibn-Lakîṭ:—When ‘Uthmân ibn-‘Affân became caliph, he appointed al-Walid ibn-Uqbah ibn-abu-Mu‘ait ‘amil and removed ‘Utbah from Adharbaijân. And when they broke the covenant, al-Walid raded them in the year 25, in command of his vanguard being ‘Abdallâh ibn-Shibl al-Aḥmasi. He also made a raid upon the inhabitants of Mûkân, al-Babar and aṭ-Ṭailasân, plundering and making captives. Upon being asked for peace by the inhabitants of the villages of Adharbaijân, he made a treaty with them upon the terms of that of Ḥudhaifah.

‘Ali appoints Sa‘id. Ibn-al-Kalbi says:—‘Ali ibn-abu-Ṭâlib appointed over Adharbaijân Sa‘id ibn-Sâriyah al-Khuzâ‘i. Then al-Ash‘ath ibn-Kais al-Kindi.

Variant versions. ‘Abdallâh ibn-Mu‘adh al-‘Abkari from his father from Sa‘d ibn-al-Ḥakam ibn-‘Utbah from Zaid ibn-Wahb, who says:—When Allah overthrew the Persians at Nihâwand, the people of al-Ḥijâz and of al-Baṣrah returned to their respective provinces, while Ḥudhaifah stayed at Nihâwand with the Kûfans and raided Adharbaijân. They made peace with him for 800,000 dirhams.

To these Kûfans ‘Umar wrote, “Behold, ye are in a land the food and clothing of whose people is infected with death. So do not eat except what is legally slaughtered, nor wear except what is ceremonially clean.” He was referring to the fur garments.

Al-‘Abbâs ibn-al-Walid an-Narsi from ‘Abd-al-Wâhid from Ziyâd from ‘Âṣim, the “squint-eyed”, from abu-‘Uthmân an-Nahdî, who says:—I was with ‘Utbah ibn-Farqad when he conquered Adharbaijân. He made up two baskets of sweetmeats, covering them with leather and felt; then he sent them to ‘Umar by Suhaim, the freedman of 'Utbah. When the latter came to him 'Umar said, "What is it thou bringest? Gold? or silver?" At his command it was opened for him, and he tasted the sweetmeats, and said, "Verily, this is good. Tell me, have all of the emigrants eaten of it in plenty?" Suhaim replied, "No. It is only something prepared especially for thee." And 'Umar wrote, "From the servant of Allah, 'Umar, the Commander of the Believers, to 'Utbah ibn-Farḳad:— . . . It is not the fruit of thy toil, nor of thy mother's, nor of thy father's. We eat only what the Moslems have plenty of in their homes."

Al-Ash'ath quells a revolt. Al-Ḥusain ibn-'Amr and Aḥmad ibn-Muṣliḥ al-Azdi from certain learned men of the people of Adharbaijân, who says:—Al-Walid ibn-'Uḳbah came to Adharbaijân accompanied by al-Ash'ath ibn-Ḳais, whom the former, when he departed, appointed over Adharbaijân. The city revolted, and he wrote to al-Walid asking for reinforcements. He sent him a strong force of Kûfans, and al-Ash'ath went about to ḥân after ḥân (ḥân is 'garden' in the language of Adharbaijân) and subdued them upon the same terms as Ḥudhaifah and 'Utbah ibn-Farḳad. He colonized the districts with Arabs who were enrolled in the pension lists ('atâ') and the register (diwân) and whom he ordered to summon the people to become Moslems.

Sa'id subdues Mûḳan and Jilân. Sa'id ibn-al-'Âṣi was later appointed governor.¹ He raided the people of Adharbaijân and overwhelmed the inhabitants of Mûḳan and Jilân. There assembled against him in the neighborhood of Urm² and Baluwânkarḥ a number of Armenians and Adharbaijânites against whom he sent Jarir ibn-'Abdallâh al-Bajali. He put them to rout, seized their leader and crucified him upon the fortress of Bâjarwân.

Other authorities say that Ash-Shammâkh ibn-Ḍirâr ath-Tha'labi was with Sa'id ibn-al-'Âṣi on this raid, as was also Bukair ibn-Shaddâd ibn-'Âmir the rider of Aṭlâl. Of him ash-Shammâkh says:

"I have heard sung of the horseman in Mûkân that submitted To Bukair of the banu-Shuddâkh the rider of Aṭlâl."¹

He belonged to the banu-Kinânah, and it was he who heard a Jew in the caliphate of 'Umar recite the verses—

"Ah! Ash'ath! Islâm hath diverted his attention from me.
The livelong night have I whiled away with his wife."

Thereupon al-Ash'ath killed him.

Al-Ash'ath becomes governor. Then 'Ali ibn-abu-Ṭâlib appointed al-Ash'ath governor of 'Adharbaijân. When he arrived there he found that the greater part of them had accepted Islâm and read the Ḳurân. He established in Ardabil a number of Arabs who were enrolled in the pension lists and the register, and made it a capital city, and built its mosque (except that it was afterwards amplified).

CHAPTER II

VILLAGES AND TOWNS

Colonists. Al-Ḥusain ibn-ʿAmr from Wâḵid:—When the Arabs settled in Adharbaijân, their families were eager to come to them from al-Kûfah, al-Baṣrah, and Syria, and every person seized possession of whatever he could, though some bought lands from the Persians. To these Arabs the villages turned for protection, and the [native] inhabitants became cultivators of the soil for them.

Warthân. Al-Ḥusain adds:—Warthân¹ was a vaulted bridge like the bridges of Wahsh and Arshaḵ which became proverbial in the days of Bâbak. Marwân ibn-Muḥammad ibn-Marwân ibn-al-Ḥakam built it, cultivated its land, fortified it, and it became his property. Later it was confiscated together with the other estates of the banu-Umaiyyah that were confiscated, and it became the possession of Umm-Jaʿfar Zubaidah bint-Jaʿfar, son of the Commander of the Believers, al-Manṣûr. The managers of it razed its walls. Then it was restored and strengthened shortly after. Al-Warthâni was one of its mawâlî.

Barzand. Barzand² was a village where al-Afshîn Ḥaidar ibn-Kâwus, the ʿâmil of the Commander of the Believers, al-Muʿtaṣim-billâh, over Adharbaijân, Armenia, and al-Jabal, had encamped in the days when he made war upon the infidel Bâbak al-Khurrâmi. He fortified it. 330

Al-Marâghah. Al-Marâghah¹ used to be called Aḡ-râhrûdh. Marwân ibn-Muḥammad, while he was governor of Armenia and Adharbaijân, made a camp there as a place of withdrawal from raiding Mûḡân, Jilân and the vicinity thereof. There was much manure in it, for his beasts and those of his followers used to wallow there. So they came to say, "Come to the village of al-Marâghah". Later people cut off the word "village" and said "al-Marâghah". Its inhabitants sought the protection of Marwân, who built it up, and whose agents were on friendly relations with the people. Their number increased in it to the utmost and it became very populous. Later it was confiscated together with the other estates of the banu-ʿUmayyah that were confiscated, and it became the possession of one of the daughters of ar-Rashid, the Commander of the Believers.

When al-Wajnâ' al-Azdi and Ṣadaḡah ibn-ʿAli, the freedman of the Azd, defected and stirred up trouble while Khuzaimah ibn-Khâzim ibn-Khuzaimah was governor of Armenia and Adharbaijân in the caliphate of ar-Rashid, Khuzaimah built its wall and fortified it, making it his headquarters, and establishing there a scratch army. Later, when Bâbak al-Khurrami obtained the mastery of al-Badhhdh,¹ the people fled to al-Marâghah and lodged there, fortifying themselves therein. Its wall was pulled down in the days of al-Ma'mûn by some of his ʿâmil^s, among them Aḡmad ibn-al-Junaid ibn-Farzandi and ʿAli ibn-Hishâm. Later people settled in its suburbs and it was fortified again.

Marand. As for Marand,¹ it was a small village which Ḥalbas abu-l-Ba'ith settled. Later al-Ba'ith fortified it. Then [came] his son Muḥammad ibn-al-Ba'ith, who also built in it some castles. In the caliphate of the Commander of the Believers, al-Mutawakkil-'al'-Allâh, he revolted, and Bughâ the Less, the freedman of the Commander of the Believers, made war on him, finally triumphing over him and carrying him to Sarra-man-ra'a, and razing the rampart of Marand (i. e. of the citadel).

Al-Ba'ith was one of the children of 'Atîb ibn-'Amr ibn-Wahb ibn-Afṣa ibn-Du'mi ibn-Jadilah ibn-Asad ibn-Rabî'ah. Others say of 'Atîb ibn-'Auf ibn-Sinân, and the 'Utbiyûn agree to this. Allah knows best.

Urmîyah. As for Urmîyah,¹ it was an ancient city in regard to which the Magiars (Majûs) assert that their founder Zaradusht was from it. Ṣadaḳah ibn-'Ali ibn-Ṣadaḳah ibn-Dînâr, the freedman of the Azd, made war against its inhabitants, finally entering and subduing it. He and his brothers built in it some castles. 331

Tibrîz. As for Tibrîz,² ar-Rawwâd al-Azdi settled it; then al-Wajnâ' ibn-ar-Rawwâd. He and his brothers built some buildings in it and fortified it with a wall. And people began to settle there with him.

Mayâniġ and Khalbâthâ. As for al-Mayâniġ and Khalbâthâ, they were settlements of people from Hamadân. 'Abdallâh ibn-Ja'far al-Hamdâni built his quarter in al-Mayâniġ, and the Sultân set up in it a minbar.

Barzah. As for the district of Barzah,³ it belonged to the Aud, and the greater part of it to one member of that tribe, who gathered people to it and built in it a fort. In the year 239 a minbar was erected in it in spite of opposition on the part of the Audi.

Narîr. As for Narîr, it was a place which had an ancient ruined castle. Murr ibn-ʿAmr al-Mauṣili at-Ṭāʾi settled there and built in it and established his children there. Later they themselves built in it some castles and made a city of it. They also built Sûḵ Jâbrawân ¹ and enlarged it. The Sultân put it under their jurisdiction, and they used to govern it themselves without caring a jot for the ʿâmil of Adharbaijân.

Sarât. And as for Sarât, there were in it many people from Kindah ² one of which people there told me that he was one of the children of a man who was with Al-Ashʿath ibn-Ḳais al-Kindi.

PART XIII
MOSUL (AL-MAUŞIL)

CHAPTER I

MOSUL

Nineveh and surrounding villages. ‘Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭāb appointed ‘Utbah ibn-Farḳad as-Sulami governor of al-Mauṣil in the year 20. The people of Ninawa¹ fought with him, but he seized their fort (i. e. the eastern one) by force and crossed the Dijlah (Tigris). The people of the other fort made peace with him on condition of giving jizyah, with permission that whoever preferred, might depart with those who emigrated. He found in the territory of al-Mauṣil some monasteries the inmates of which secured peace from him by giving the jizyah.

‘Utbah afterwards conquered al-Marj² and its villages, the land of Bâhudhra,³ Bâ’adhra,⁴ Hibṭūn,⁵ al-Hiyânah,⁶ al-Ma’allah,⁷ Dâmîr, and all the strongholds of the Kurds. He advanced as far as Bân’âtha⁸ of Ḥazzah⁹ and con- 332

Sâlih ibn-'Ubâdah al-Hamdâni, chief of the mounted patrol¹ of al-Mauṣil went against Tall-ash-Shahârijah and the Salak² (a tribe known also as the banu-l-Ḥarrin) and conquered this place completely, and the Moslems sacked it.

Urmīyah. Mu'âfa ibn-Ṭâwus from some of the learned of al-Mauṣil:—Urmīyah³ was part of the conquest of al-Mauṣil, having been conquered by 'Utbah ibn-Farqad, and its kharâj being at one time paid to al-Mauṣil. Such also was the case with al-Ḥûr,⁴ Khuwi,⁵ and Salmâs.⁶

Mu'âfa says:—I have also heard that 'Utbah conquered it (Urmīyah) when he was governor of Adharbaijân.⁷ Allah knows best.

Founding of Mosul. Al-'Abbâs ibn-Hishâm al-Kalbi from his father from his grandfather:—The first to plot out al-Mauṣil⁸ and to settle the Arabs there and to make it a chief city⁹ was Harthamah ibn-'Arfajah al-Bâriki.

Abu-Mûsa al-Harawi from abu-l-Faḍl al-Anṣârî from abu-l-Muḥârîr ad-Dabbi:—'Umar ibn-al-Khattâb removed 'Utbah from al-Mauṣil and appointed thereover Harthamah ibn-'Arfajah al-Bâriki. In the place [at this time] was the castle, churches of the Christians, a few dwellings of theirs near these churches, and the Jews' quarter. Harthamah made a chief city of it, settled the Arabs in their own dwellings, apportioning holdings for them, and later built the cathedral mosque.

Pavement and walls. Al-Mu'âfa ibn-Tâwus:—The one who paved al-Mauṣil with stone was ibn-Talid, master of the guard of Muḥammad ibn-Marwân ibn-al-Ḥakam who was governor of al-Mauṣil, al-Jazīrah, Arminiya, and Adhar-baijân.

Al-Wâḳidi says:—'Abd-al-Malik ibn-Marwân appointed his son Sa'id ibn-'Abd-al-Malik ibn-Marwân (after whom Nahr Sa'id was named) governor of al-Mauṣil, and his brother, Muḥammad, governor of al-Jazīrah and Arminiya. Sa'id built the wall of al-Mauṣil (i. e. the one which ar-Rashid pulled down when he passed through there because of their rebellion just before). Sa'id also paved it with stone.

From some of the inhabitants of Bâbaghish:¹—The Moslems sought an opportunity of taking the inhabitants 334 of a certain region bordering on Dâmîr (called Zarân) while off their guard, and accordingly attacked them on one of their festal days when they did not have their weapons with them. Taking a position between them and their fortress, they captured it.

Building of Ḥadithah. When Harthamah laid out al-Mauṣil and settled the Arabs there, he went to the site of al-Ḥadithah,² where there was an ancient village in which were two churches and the houses of the Christians, and made it a city and settled some of the Arabs there. It was named al-Ḥadithah ("the new") because it was later than al-Mauṣil. He also built a castle near by it.

Another version. Others say that Harthamah settled down at al-Ḥadithah first, made it a city, and laid it out before al-Mauṣil, and that it was only named al-Ḥadithah when certain of the inhabitants of al-Anbâr removed thither after ibn-ar-Rufail became their governor and oppressed them in the days of al-Ḥajjāj ibn-Yūsuf. Among them were some people of Ḥadithah of al-Anbār. They built a mosque there and named the city al-Ḥādithah.

Ṭirhān and Takrīt. 'Uṭbah ibn-Farḳad subdued aṭ-Ṭirhān¹ and Takrīt,² granting amān to the inhabitants of Takrīt for their persons and their property. He also entered the region of Bâjarma.³ Then he went to Shahrazûr.

A sheikh of the people of Takrīt told me that they had a written amān and covenant, but al-Jurashī tore it up when he devastated the villages of al-Maṣīl, Narsâbâdh, Hâ'alāh, and the environs⁴ thereof.

Al-Ḥaitham ibn-'Adi asserts that 'Iyâḍ ibn-Ghanm, when he conquered Balad,⁵ went to al-Maṣīl and reduced one of the two forts. Allah knows best.

SHAHRAZUR, AŞ-ŞĀMAGHÂN, AND DARĀBĀDH

Conquered by 'Utbah. Ishâk ibn-Sulaimân ash-Shahrazûri from his father from Muḥammad ibn-Marwân from al-Kalbi from a member of the clan of 'Azrah al-Bajali:— 'Azrah ibn-Ḳais tried to conquer Shahrazûr¹ while he was wâli over Ḥulwân in the caliphate of 'Umar, but was unable to accomplish it. 'Utbah ibn-Farḳad raided it and reduced it after battle, granting similar terms to those of Ḥulwân. Some of the Moslems died in consequence of being stung by scorpions.

Ishâk from his father from their teachers:—The inhabitants of aş-Şāmaghân² and Darâbâdh³ surrendered to 'Utbah, agreeing to pay jizyah and kharâj on condition that they be neither put to death nor enslaved nor prevented from traveling wherever they pleased.

Abu-Rajâ' al-Ḥulwâni from his father from the sheikhs of Shahrazûr:—Shahrazûr, aş-Şāmaghân, and Darâbâdh were among the conquest of 'Utbah ibn-Farḳad as-Sulami. He met the Kurds in combat and killed many of them, and wrote to 'Umar, "In my conquests I have reached as far as Adharbaijân." 'Umar appointed him governor over that region,⁴ and appointed Harthamah ibn-'Arfajah over al-Mausil.

Made a separate province. Shahrâzûr and its district continued to be included with al-Mauṣil until it was divided at the end of the caliphate of ar-Rashîd. But [thereafter] Shahrâzûr, aş-Şâmaghân, and Darâbâdh were ruled by a governor of their own. The governor's salary was 200 dirhams for each of the districts of al-Mauṣil, and so there was apportioned for [the governor of] these [three] districts 600 dirhams.

JURJÂN AND ṬABARISTÂN AND THEIR DISTRICTS

CHAPTER I

Racing to Khurāsān. In the year 29¹ 'Uthmān ibn-'Affān appointed over al-Kūfah Sa'id ibn-al-'Āṣi ibn-Sa'id ibn-al-'Āṣi ibn-'Umayyah. The satrap (marzubān) of Ṭūs wrote to him and to 'Abdallāh ibn-'Āmis ibn-Kuraiz ibn-Rabī'ah ibn-Ḥasīb ibn-'Abd-Shams, governor of al-Baṣrah, inviting them to Khurāsān and promising to appoint to rule over it whichever of the two should be the first to gain possession. Both ibn-'Āmir and Sa'id set out for the place, but ibn-'Āmir was the quicker. So Sa'id raided Ṭabaristān,² the two sons of 'Ali ibn-abu-Ṭālib, al-Ḥasan and al-Ḥusain, being with him it is said.

Others say that Sa'id raided Ṭabaristān without having received any letter from anybody, starting on his expedition from al-Kūfah. And Allah knows best.

Sa'id's conquests. Sa'id conquered Ṭamisah³ and Nāminah⁴ (a village), and made peace with the ruler of Jurjān⁵ for 200,000 dirhams (Some say for 300,000), *baghliyah*⁶ wāfiyah.⁷ He distributed the money to the Moslem soldiers who took part in the fighting. Sa'îd conquered also the plain of Ṭabaristân, ar-Rûyân¹ and Dunbâwand.² The people of al-Jibâl paid money to him.

The Moslems kept raiding Ṭabaristân and its territory and the people paid tribute, sometimes voluntarily,³ and sometimes after battle.

Maşkalah's disaster. Mu'âwiyah ibn-abu-Sufyân appointed over Ṭabaristân Maşkalah ibn-Hubairah ibn-Shabal of the banu-Tha'labah ibn-Shaibân ibn-Tha'labah ibn-'Ukâbah. All its people were turbulent, and had collected 10,000 men (other authorities say 20,000). The enemy tricked him by showing fear before him until he had penetrated with his force far into the country; but when they approached the mountain passes, the enemy seized these against them, and rolled rocks down from the mountain upon their heads, and this whole army was destroyed. Maşkalah perished also, and they made a proverb about him, saying, "Until Maşkalah returns from Ṭabaristân."⁴

Defeat of ibn-al-Ash'ath. Then 'Uбайдallâh ibn-Ziyâd ibn-abu-Sufyân appointed Muḥammad ibn-al-Ash'ath ibn-Ḳais al-Kindi over Ṭabaristân. He made peace with them and gave them a convent. They made a show of submissiveness to him until he had entered, when they seized the passes against him and killed his son, abu-Bakr, and mutilated him. He managed to escape himself and the Moslems continued to raid those passes, but were cautious of entering deep into the land of the enemy.

Campaigns of Yazîd ibn-al-Muḥallab. 'Abbâs ibn-Hishâm al-Kalbi from his father from abu-Mikhnaf and others:—When Sulaimân ibn-‘Abd-al-Malik ibn-Marwân became ruler, he appointed Yazîd ibn-al-Muhallab ibn-abu-Ṣafrah over al-‘Irâq. He set out for Khurâsân, because of the hostility and disagreement that had come up between Sulaiman and Ḳutaibah ibn-Muslim. Waki’ ibn-abu-Sûd at-Tamîni killed Ḳutaibah.

While he was on his way towards Khurâsân, his attention was drawn to Ṣûl the Turk, and he wrote to Sulaimân asking for permission to attack him. It was granted. So he raided Jilân and Sâriyah.¹ Then he went to Dihistân,² where Ṣûl was, and invested it. He had with him a scratch army of Mesopotamians, Ṣyrians and people of Khurâsân. The inhabitants of Dihistân kept making sorties and attacking them, but Yazîd pressed hard upon them and cut off their supplies from them. Then Ṣûl sent to Yazîd, asking for peace and offering to deliver up to him the city and its people and all that was in it on condition that Yazîd guarantee him his life and property and his household. Yazîd granted this and accepted the terms which Ṣûl fulfilled. Yazîd put to death 14,000 of the Turks and appointed a lieutenant to govern the city. 336.

Abu-‘Ubaidah Ma‘mar ibn-al-Muthanna says that Ṣûl was killed, but the first account is more probable.

Hishâm al-Kalbi says:—Yazîd went to Jurjân and the people thereof met him with tribute which Ṣa‘îd ibn-al-‘Âṣi had arranged for with them, and he accepted it. The inhabitants of Jurjân later broke their treaty and acted with treachery, so he sent against them Jahm ibn-Zahr al-Ju‘fi, who reconquered the place.

Others say that Yazîd went to Marw and established there his winterquarters. Then he raided Jurjân with 120,000 men from Syria, al-Jazîrah, Mesopotamia, and Khurâsân.

² Yâkût, vol. ii, p. 633; Meyn., p. 246; LeStr., pp. 379-381.

Al-Madâ'ini's version. 'Ali ibn-Muḥammad al-Madâ'ini told me that Yazîd ibn-al-Muhallab established winter quarters in Khurâsân; then raided Jurjân, around which place was a wall of baked brick, with which it was fortified against the Turks, one end of the wall reaching down to the very sea. But the Turks had captured it and named Şûl their king. And Yazîd said, "Allah's curse be on Ḳutaibah! He left these Turks right in the bosom of the Arabs."

Şûl surrenders. Yazîd wanted to raid China (or "he raided China") and left as his lieutenant over Khurâsân Mukhallad ibn-Yazîd. When he reached Jurjân, he found Şûl encamped in al-Buḥairah ¹ and besieged him six months, attacking him again and again. Şûl sought for peace, offering to deliver up to him al-Buḥairah and all that was in it on condition that he be guaranteed his life and property and three hundred of the people of his household. Yazîd accepted his terms and then went on to Ṭabaristân, sending 'Abdallâh ibn-Ma'mar al-Yashkari to govern Dihistân and al-Bayâsân with 4,000 men.

He sent his son, Khâlid ibn-Yazîd, and his brother, abu-'Uyainah ibn-al-Muhallab, against the Işbahbadh ² who put them to rout before Yazîd joined them with an army. The Işbahbadh wrote to the marzubân (also spelled marûzbân), "We have killed the companions of Yazîd, and I will kill a few Arabs for thy sake." And he killed 'Abdallâh ibn-Ma'mar al-Yashkari and those with him while they were at ease in their camp.

Yazîd makes terms. When the news reached Yazîd, he sent Ḥayyân, the freedman of Maşkalah, one of the Dailam captives, who said to the Işbahbadh, "My origin and my sympathy are on thy side, even though there is a difference of religion between us. I do not think that thou wilt get any more support from the Commander of the Believers or from the soldiers of Khurâsân than hitherto, for thou art out of favor with him. I have tested Yazîd in regard to thee and have found him ready for peace." So Ḥayyân arranged for peace with him and kept him deluded until Yazîd made the conditions 700,000 dirhams and 400 loads of saffron. The Iṣḥabbadh said to him, "Ten weigh six." Yazîd replied, "Nay, ten weigh seven."¹ This was refused but Ḥayyân said, "I will take upon myself the balance between the two weights." And he did so.

Ḥayyân was one of the nobles and leaders of the freedmen. His kunya was abu-Ma'ṣar.²

Yazîd crushes a rebellion. Al-Madâ'ini:—The news of the treason and breach of covenant of the people of Jurjân reached Yazîd, and he went against them the second time. And when the news of his expedition reach the marzubân, the latter went to Wijâh and entrenched himself there. Around it were jungles and thickets, and Yazîd besieged it seven months without being able to accomplish a thing against it, while the enemy attacked him often. He set up the catapults against the city. Then some one guided the Arabs along a path to the enemies' citadel, and said, "We need only ladders of leather."

Yazîd made a compact with Jahm ibn-Zahr al-Ju'fi, saying, "Thou mayest be deprived of life, but thou canst not be deprived of death."³ Yazîd ordered a fire to be lighted in the wood,⁴ and alarmed the enemy thereby. Some of them made a sortie, and then returned. Jahm succeeded in getting to the citadel. Some of those who were at the gate resisted him, but he dislodged them from it, and a little while afterwards the enemy heard the takbîr behind them, and the citadel was taken. They surrendered to Yazîd at discretion, and Jahm led them to the wâdi of Jurjân and set to killing them until the blood flowed down and ran into the wâdi. And he built the city of Jurjân.

Yazîd imprisoned. Yazîd went to Khurâsân and the tribute gifts were brought to him. Then he placed his son Mukhallad in charge of Khurâsân and returned to Sulaimân. Now he had written him that he had in his possession 25,000,000 dirhams and the letter fell into the hands of 'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-'Azîz who seized Yazîd for it and imprisoned him.

Tribute from the Işbahbadh. 'Abbâs ibn-Hishâm al-Kalbî from his father from abu-Mikhnaḥ or 'Awânah ibn-al-Ḥakam:—Yazîd proceeded against Ṭabaristân and the Işbahbadh appealed to the Dailamites for troops and they gave him aid. Yazîd attacked him and then made peace with him for 4,000,000 dirhams down, 700,000 dirhams in gold coin every year, 400 ass loads of saffron, and a levy of 400 men, each with a shield and a Persian mantle, a silver cup and silk saddle-cushion (and some accounts say a burnus).¹

Jahm retakes Jurjân. Yazîd subdued ar-Ruyân and Dunbâwand for money, garments and vessels. Then he went on to Jurjân whose people had treacherously slain his lieutenant. His imâm, Jahm ibn-Zahr ibn-Ḳais al-Ju'fi, preceded him and entered the city while the people were unsuspecting and careless. Ibn-al-Muhallab joined him and put to death part of the people and made captives of their women and crucified those he killed on the right and left of the road. He placed Jahm in charge of the city and laid both jizyah and kharâj on its population, and oppressed them heavily.

CHAPTER II

Frequent revolts. The people of Ṭabaristân kept asking for a treaty one time and refusing to pay the tribute the next time, continually starting war and suing for peace. In the days of Marwân ibn-Muḥammad ibn-Marwân ibn-al-Ḥakam they rebelled and disregarded their treaty until abu-l-'Abbâs, the Commander of the Believers, when he became caliph, sent to them his 'âmil and made terms with them. Later they broke their treaty again and rebelled and killed the Moslems in the caliphate of the Commander of the Believers, al-Manṣûr, who sent against them Khâzim ibn-Khuzaimah at-Tamini and Rauḥ ibn-Ḥâtim al-Muhallabi. With them was Marzûk abu-l-Khasib, Rauḥ's freedman, to whom is ascribed the building of the castle of abu-l-Khasib in al-Kûfah.

Marzûk pretends to desert. When the siege began to drag and the campaign became difficult, Marzûk asked them to beat him and shave his head and beard, and they did so. Then he went over to the Isbahbadh and said to him, "Behold, those two fellows suspected me of treachery and have done to me what you see, and I have escaped to you. If you accept my allegiance and accord me the dignity that I deserve at your hands, I will direct you to the Arabs' weak points, and be of assistance to you against them." He clothed him, gave him gifts, and showed confidence in him and in his counsels; while Marzûk pretended to be helping him and to be interested in his behalf. But when he was familiar with his affairs and his secrets, he wrote to Khâzim and Raḥḥ, telling them what they need to know of these matters, and he gained control of the gate by deceit, so that the Moslems opened it, entered and captured the city, and advanced into and subdued the country.

'Umar ibn-al-'Alâ'. 'Umar ibn-al-'Alâ' was a butcher of the people of ar-Rai. He collected some people and attacked Sinfâdh¹ the time of the rebellion there. 'Umar showed his prowess and discomfited the enemy. Jahwar ibn-Marrâr al-'Ijlî sent him on a mission to al-Manşûr, who welcomed him,² treated him well, and promoted him to power. Afterwards he was governor of Ṭabaristân and suffered martyrdom there during the caliphate of ʿAlî-Mahdî, the Commander of the Believers.

Jibâl Sharwîn. Muḥammad ibn-Mûsa ibn-Ḥafṣ ibn-'Umar ibn-al-'Alâ' and Mâyazdayâr³ ibn-Ḳârin conquered Jibâl Sharwîn⁴ of Ṭabaristân in the caliphate of al-Ma'mûn. It is a very difficult mountain and hard to cross, having many jungles and swamps.

Mâyazdayâr made governor. Then al-Ma'mûn appointed Mâyazdayâr over the 'âmils of Ṭabaristân, ar-Rûyân, and Dunbâwand, giving him the name of Muḥammad and the rank of Işbahbadh. He continued to rule until al-Ma'mûn died. Then abu-Işhâḳ al-Mu'tasim-billâh, the Commander of the Believers, succeeded to the caliphate and confirmed him in his position.

He apostasizes. After six years and some months of this caliphate he became a traitor and unbeliever. The caliph wrote to 'Abdallâh ibn-Ṭâhir ibn-al-Ḥusain ibn-Maṣ'ab, his 'âmil over Khurâsân, ar-Rai, Kûmas, and Jurjân, ordering him to take the field against him. 'Abdallâh sent against him his uncle, al-Ḥasan ibn-al-Ḥusain, with a force from Khurâsân, while al-Mu'taṣim-billâh sent Muḥammad ibn-Ibrâhîm ibn-Maṣ'ab with what he could collect of the militia of the vicinity. When the troops came into Mâyazdayâr's country, a brother of his, named Fûhyâr ibn-Kârin, wrote several times to al-Ḥasan and Muḥammad and told them that he favored them against his brother, having a grudge against him for some slight he had received from him, and that the people of his district had become weary of him because of his insolence and his tyranny.

He falls into a trap. Al-Ḥasan wrote advising Fûhyâr that he would lie hid in a place which he named to him, and Fûhyâr said to Mâyazdayâr, "Al-Ḥasan is coming to thee and is in such a place (mentioning a different place) and he asks thee for safe-conduct, desiring a conference with thee, according to information which has come to me." So Mâyazdayâr went seeking al-Ḥasan, and when he got into the midst of the place where al-Ḥasan was lying in wait, Fûhyâr informed the latter of his arrival, and he came out upon him with his companies. These had been placed at different points in the marshes and they began coming one and all towards Mâyazdayâr. The latter tried to flee, but Fûhyâr seized hold of his girdle and the companions of al-Ḥasan gathered around him and made him a prisoner peacefully without treaty or covenant.

Flogged to death. He was taken to Sarra-man-ra'a in the year 225 and was grievously lashed in the presence of al-Mu'taṣim-billâh. When the lashing was over, he died and was crucified in Sarra-man-ra'a together with Bâbak al-Khurrani upon the slope which is in the vicinity of the hall of the guard.¹ Some of his brother's chief men fell upon Fûhyâr and he was killed in Ṭabaristân.

And Ṭabaristân was subdued, plain and mountain, and 'Abdallâh ibn-Ṭâhir ruled there, and Ṭâhir ibn-'Abdallâh after him.

PART XV
THE DISTRICTS OF THE TIGRIS
(KUWAR DIJLAH)

CHAPTER I

THE CONQUEST OF THE DISTRICTS OF THE TIGRIS

Suwaid and Khâlid in al-Baṣrah. Suwaid¹ ibn-Ḳuṭbah adh-Dhuhli (Some say "Ḳuṭbah ibn-Ḳatâdah.") made raids on the Persians in the district of Khuraibah of al-Baṣrah, just as al-Muthanna ibn-Ḥârithah ash-Shaibânî made raids in the district of al-Ḥirah; when Khâlid ibn-al-Walid arrived at al-Baṣrah on his way to al-Kûfah in the year 12, Suwaid assisted him in the war against the people of al-Ubullah, and was appointed by him as his lieutenant. Others say that Khâlid did not leave al-Baṣrah until he had conquered al-Khuraibah, in which place there was a garrison of Persians, some of whom he killed and others he made captive. He left as lieutenant therein a man of the banu-Sa'd ibn-Bakr ibn-Hawâzin, called Shuraiḥ ibn-ʿÂmir. It is also said that Khâlid went to the river al-Mar'ah² [the woman] and took the castle by capitulation, the terms being obtained from him by an-Nûshajân ibn-Jasnasma. ("The woman," the mistress of the castle, was Kâmin Dâr bint-Narsa, the daughter of an-Nûshajân's uncle, and she was called "the woman" just because abu-Mûsa al-Ash'ari had alighted there and she had served him with a paste made of dates, and he used to say, "Give us some of the pastry of the woman.")

Muḥammad ibn-ʿUmar al-Wâḳidi³ denies that Khâlid ibn-al-Walid went to al-Baṣrah after he had finished with the affairs of the people of al-Yamâmah and al-Baḥrain, and says that he went to al-Madinah; then left there for al-ʿIrâk 341 by way of Faïd and ath-Thaʿlabiyah. Allah knows best.

ʿUtbah ibn-Ghazwân appointed governor. When the news about Suwaid and what he had done in al-Baṣrah reached ʿUmar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb, he thought it well to appoint over that district a man to represent him, giving the appointment to ʿUtbah ibn-Ghazwân ibn-Jâbir ibn-Wahb ibn-Nusaib, of the tribe of the banu-Mâzin ibn-Manṣûr ibn-ʿIkrimah ibn-Khaṣafah, and an ally [ḥalîf] of the banu-Naufal ibn-ʿAbd-Manâf, and one of the first Emigrants. He told him that "al-Hîrah has been conquered and a great noble of Persia (i. e. Mihrâm¹) slain, and the Moslem troops are trampling the land of Babylon. So go to the district of al-Baṣrah and draw away thence the people of al-Ahwâz, Fârs, and Maisân from assisting their brethren against thy brethren." ʿUtbah went there and drew to his side Suwaid ibn-Kuṭbah and those who were with him of the Bakr ibn-Wâ'il and the banu-Tamîm.²

ʿUtbah chooses the site of al-Baṣrah. There were in the district of al-Baṣrah at that time seven villages,³ two in al-Khuraibah, two in az-Zâbûkah, and three in what is now the Dâr al-Azd. ʿUtbah quartered his companions in these villages, he himself staying in al-Khuraibah. This had had a garrison of the Persians that Khâlîd ibn-al-Walîd had conquered, and that had then been abandoned by the Persians. ʿUtbah wrote to ʿUmar informing him of the place in which he and his companions were located, and ʿUmar replied, ordering him to transfer them to a location near to water and pasture. So he changed to the site of al-Baṣrah.⁴

Its name. Abū-Mikhnaḥ says that the place abounded in small stones and black pebbles; so people said "Behold, it is gravel" ¹ [baṣrah]. Others say that it was named Baṣrah only because of the looseness of its soil.

They put up there booths and tents of leather and of coarse cloth, and did not have any real buildings.

Harthamah joins 'Utbah. 'Umar reinforced 'Utbah with Harthamah ibn-'Arfajah al-Bâriḳi ² who was in al-Baḥrain, and who later went to Mosul.

Capture of al-Ubullah. 'Utbah ibn-Ghazwân assailed al-Ubullah ³ and took it by storm, and wrote to 'Umar to tell him about it, informing him that al-Ubullah was the port to al-Baḥrain, 'Umân, al-Hind [India], and aṣ-Ṣîn [China], dispatching the letter by Nâfi' ibn-al-Ḥârith ath-Thaḳafi.

Himyarî with them. 'Abd-al-Wâhid ibn-Ghiyath from Himyarî ibn-Karâthah ar-Raba'i who says:—When they entered al-Ubullah, they found small loaves made of white flour, and they said, "This is the bread of which it is said that it is fattening." And when they ate of it they began to look at their fore-arms and to say, "By Allah, we don't see any fat." I obtained as booty [he adds] a green tunic which had a pocket at the chest. This I used to wear when attending Friday service.⁵

Al-Madâ'ini from Jahm ibn-Ḥassân:—‘Utbah conquered al-Ubullah; sent Mujâshi‘ ibn-Mas‘ûd against al-Furât; commanded al-Mughîrah to lead in prayer; and he himself returned to ‘Umar.

Al-Madâ'ini on the authority of his teachers:—That part of the country lying between al-Fahraj and al-Furât became Moslem by capitulation, and the rest of al-Ubullah by force.

‘Utbah’s campaigns. ‘Abdallâh ibn-Ŝâliḥ al-Mukri from Muḥammad ibn-Ishâḳ ibn-Yasâr:—‘Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb sent ‘Utbah ibn-Ghazwân, an ally of the banu-Naufal, with 800 men to al-Baṣrah, and [later] reinforced him with [more] men. [At first] he encamped the people in tents; but when they had increased in numbers, some of them built seven villages of sun-dried brick; of these two were in al-Khuraibah, one in az-Zâbûkah, two among the Azd, and two among the Tamîn. He then went against al-Ubullah and attacked its people, conquering the place by force, and next coming to al-Furât, with Mujâshi‘ ibn-Mas‘ûd as-Sulami in command of his vanguard. After he had conquered it by force, he came to al-Madhâr.¹ The satrap [marzubân] of that place came out against him; but he fought with him, and Allah routed him, and most of those with him were drowned. The satrap, however, surrendered, but ‘Utbah had him beheaded.

Then ‘Utbah went to Dastumaisân whose people had collected an army to make a stand against the Moslems. They were on the point of advancing, but ‘Utbah thought it best to anticipate them in the attack in order that by so doing he might better crush their strength and fill their hearts with fear.² So he met them in battle, and Allah put them to rout, killing their dihkâns. Then ‘Utbah set out straightway for Abarkubâdh, which place Allah gave into his hands.

² Adding ru’ban as suggested by De Goeje.

Death of 'Utbah. Then 'Utbah asked 'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭāb for permission to come back to him and perform the pilgrimage, and he permitted him so to do. 'Utbah appointed Mujāshi'ibn-Mas'ūd as-Sulami as lieutenant; but he was absent from al-Baṣrah, and so he ordered al-Mughīrah ibn-Shu'bah to take his place until his return. And ['Umar ¹] said, "Dost thou appoint a man of the nomad people to rule over a man of the civilized Arabs?" 'Utbah wanted to resign from the governorship of al-Baṣrah, but was not permitted to. So he set out to return, but died on the journey. 343

Al-Mughīrah appointed governor. 'Umar then appointed as governor of al-Baṣrah al-Mughīrah ibn-Shu'bah. Now the people had asked 'Utbah about al-Baṣrah, and he had told them of its fertility, and so many people went there.

Azdah, wife of 'Utbah. 'Abbās ibn-Hishām from his father from 'Awanah:—There was in the household of 'Utbah ibn-Khazwān Azdah ² bint-al-Ḥārith ibn-Kaladah, and when 'Umar made 'Utbah ibn-Ghazwān 'āmīl, there went with him Nāfi', abu-Bakrah, and Ziyād. When 'Utbah fought with the people of the city of al-Furāt, his wife kept urging the men to the battle, saying, "If they defeat you, you will deliver us as wives to the uncircumcised." But Allah conquered this city for the Moslems who obtained much booty.

Ziyād keeps the accounts. There was among them none who could write and reckon except Ziyād. So he presided over the division of this spoil; and there was assigned to him two dirhams a day, although he was but a lad with curls ³ on his head.

² Ardah, according to al-Madā'ini.

Al-Madar and al-Wabar. Then 'Utbah went to see 'Umar, and wrote to Mujâshi' ibn-Mas'ûd informing him that he had appointed him his lieutenant. But he was absent, and so 'Utbah ordered al-Mughîrah ibn-Shu'bah to lead in prayer until the return of Mujâshi'. Then the dihkân of Maisân apostatized and turned away from Islam. Al-Mughîrah met him at al-Mun'arij ["the bend of the river"] and killed him. When al-Mughîrah wrote to 'Umar about his victory over him, 'Umar summoned 'Utbah and said, "Didst not thou tell me that thou hadst appointed Mujâshi' thy lieutenant?" He said, "Yes." 'Umar said, "But lo, al-Mughîrah has written to me so-and-so." And 'Utbah said, "Mujâshi' was away, and I had ordered al-Mughîrah to take his place, and to lead in prayer until his return." Then 'Umar said, "As I live, verily, some one from the civilized Arabs [ahl al-madar] should have been appointed ruler rather than one of the nomads [ahl al-wabar]." Then he wrote out al-Mughîrah's appointment as governor of al-Baṣrah and sent the message to him. And al-Mughîrah led a godfearing life until he had the affair with the woman.¹

Maisân. 'Abdallâh ibn-Sâlih from 'Abdah from Muḥammad ibn-Ishâk:—Al-Mughîrah raided Maisân, conquering it by force after great slaughter, and reducing the country to submission. Then the people of Abarkubâdh rebelled and al-Mughîrah conquered it by force.

'Utbah's conquests. Rauḥ ibn-'Abd-al-Mu'min from Wahb ibn-Jarir ibn-Ḥâzim from his father:—"Utbah ibn-Ghazwân conquered al-Ubullah, al-Furât, Abarkubâdh, and Dastumaisân, and al-Mughîrah conquered Maisân. But the people of Abarkubâdh rebelled, and al-Mughîrah [re]conquered it.

'Ali ibn-Muḥammad al-Madâ'ini says that people used to call Maisân, Dastumaisân, al-Furât, and Abarkubâdh "Maisân."¹

Abu-l-Ḥasan made captive. Among the captives of Maisân was abu-l-Ḥasan al-Baṣri and al-Ḥasan's brother, Sa'îd ibn-Yasâr. (The [Persian] name of Yasâr was Fairûz.) Abu-l-Ḥasan fell to the lot of a woman of the Anṣâr, called ar-Rubaiya' bint-an-Naḍr, the paternal aunt of Anas ibn-Mâlik. Others say that he belonged to a woman of the banu-Salimah, called Jamilah, the wife of Anas ibn-Mâlik. Al-Ḥasan [himself] relates as follows: "My father and mother belonged to a man of the banu-Najjâr who married a woman of the banu-Salimah and bestowed them upon her as part of her dowry. This woman gave them their freedom, and so we are her clients."²

Al-Ḥasan al-Baṣri. Al-Ḥasan was born in al-Madīnah two years before the end of the caliphate of 'Umar. He departed thence a year after the battle of Ṣiffin, and died in al-Baṣrah in the year 110, at the age of 89 years.

Al-Mughîrah accused of adultery. Then behold, al-Mughîrah began to have relations with a woman of the banu-Hilâl, called Umm-Jamîl bint-Mihjan ibn-al-Afḳam ibn-Shu'aithah ibn-al-Huzam. She was married to a man of Thakîf, named al-Ḥajjâj ibn-'Atik. This scandal came to the knowledge of abu-Bakraḥ ibn-Masrûḥ (a freedman of the Prophet, a Thakafi by a foreign mother), Shibl ibn-Ma'bad ibn-'Ubaid al-Bajali, Nâfi' ibn-al-Ḥârith ibn-Kaladah ath-Thakafi, and Ziyâd ibn-'Ubaid. So they watched him until, while he was visiting her, they stole in upon him unawares, and behold, the two of them were naked and he atop of her. So they proceeded to go to 'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb and testified before him of what they had seen. 'Umar said to abu-Mûsa al-Ash'ari, "I wish to send thee to a country where Satan has made his nest." He said, "Then give me the help of a number of the Anṣār." So 'Umar sent with him al-Barâ' ibn-Mâlik, 'Imrân ibn-al-Ḥuṣain abu-Nujaid al-Khuzâ'i, and 'Auf ibn-Wahb al-Khuzâ'i. And he appointed abu-Mûsa governor of al-Baṣrah and ordered him to send al-Mughîrah back. So he sent him back three days after his arrival [at al-Baṣrah]. And when al-Mughîrah reached 'Umar, he was confronted with the witnesses; and Nâfi' ibn-al-Ḥârith said, "I saw him on the woman . . . having intercourse with her."¹ Then Shibl ibn-Ma'bad gave the same testimony. Then abu-Bakrah. When Ziyâd came as the fourth,² 'Umar, looking at him, said, "Verily, I see the face of a man through whom I hope one of the Companions of the Prophet of Allah will not be stoned to death, and by whose testimony he will not be disgraced." (Now al-Mughîrah had come from Miṣr and professed Islam, and was present at the battle of al-Hudaibiyah together with the Prophet of Allah.) And Ziyâd said, "I saw a scandalous sight and I heard passionate breathing, but I do not know whether he had intercourse with her or not." (Another report is that he did not give any testimony at all.) So 'Umar ordered that the three witnesses be flogged, which was done. Shibl said, "Dost thou flog those who testify the truth, and thus render all punishment meaningless?" And abu-Bakrah, after he had been flogged, said, "I testify that al-Mughîrah is an adulterer." 'Umar said, "Punish him [again]." But 'Ali said, "If thou dost admit this [repetition] as a [fourth] testimony, then have your friend stoned."³ Abu-Bakrah swore that he would never speak to Ziyâd again, though he was his brother on his mother Sumaiyah's side. Then 'Umar sent them back to their country.

Some have related that abu-Mûsa was in al-Baṣrah when 'Umar wrote to him about the governorship and asked him to send al-Mughirah back. But the former account is the more probable.

Sa'd and 'Utbah. It is related that 'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb had commanded Sa'd ibn-abu-Waḳḳâs to send 'Utbah ibn-Ghazwân to al-Baṣrah; which he did, but ['Umar] neglected to write to 'Utbah about it. For this reason he asked to be excused; nevertheless 'Urjar sent him as governor, but he died on the way.

Abu-Mûsa governor. Abu-Mûsa's governorship was in the year 16 (others say 17). He inspected the Districts of the Tigris [*kurwar*¹ Dijlah] and found its people submissive and obedient. He ordered that the land be surveyed, and assessed the kharâj upon it in proportion to its ability to bear it.

The more probable account is that abu-Mûsa was appointed governor of al-Baṣrah in the year 16.

Shaibân ibn-Farrukh al-Ubulli from Yahya ibn-abu-Kathîr:—One of abu-Mûsa's scribes wrote to 'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb, "min abu-Mûsa" for min abi-Mûsa, and 'Umar wrote, "When this letter of mine reaches thee, have thy scribe beaten with the lash, and dismiss him from thy service." 346

CHAPTER II

THE FOUNDING OF AL-BASRAH ¹

✓ 'Utbah chooses the site. 'Ali ibn-al-Mughirah al-Athram from abu-'Ubaidah:—When 'Utbah ibn-Ghazwân camped at al-Khuraibah,² he wrote to 'Umar ibn-al-Khattâb, telling him of his camping there, and asserting that the Moslems needed a place in which they could pass the winter, and into which they could retire when they returned from a raid. 'Umar wrote to him, "Assemble thy followers in one place; let it be near to water and pasture; and write me a description of it." So he wrote to him, "I have found a land abounding in reeds,³ on the extremity of the desert towards the fluvial region, and below it are swamps in which are reeds." When 'Umar read the letter, he said, "This land is verdant, near to watering and grazing places and fire-wood." So he wrote to him to station the people there, which he did. They built huts of reeds, and 'Utbah built a mosque of reeds. This was in the year 14.

The mosque. It is said that 'Utbah took the marking out of the limits of the mosque into his own hands. Others say that Mihjar ibn-al-Adra' al-Bahzi of Sulaim marked them but. Another tradition has it that Nâfi' ibn-al-Ḥārith al-Kaladah did it when he laid out the limits of his own house. Still another account says that on the contrary al-Aswad ibn-Sarî' at-Tamîmi did it, and that he was the first to act as *kâdi*¹ in it. Mujâshi and Mujâlid, the two sons of Mas'ûd, said to him, "Allah bless thee. Thou hast made thyself famous." And he said, "Nay, far be it!"

Official buildings. 'Utbah built the official residence near the mosque in the square which is called today the Rahabat banu-Hâshim. (It used to be called ad-Dahnâ'.²) In it was also the prison and the registry [diwân]. 347

When the inhabitants went on a raid, they used to take down these reeds, pack them up, and lay them away until they should return from the raid; and when they returned, they restored their buildings. This custom lasted some time. Then the people marked out limits, and built regular dwellings. And abu-Mûsa al-Ash'ari built the mosque and official residence of dried brick and clay, and roofed them with grass, at the same time enlarging the mosque.

The kiblâh. When the imâm went to lead the people in prayer, he used to pass across them to the kiblâh on steps of stone. 'Abdallâh ibn-'Âmir went out one day from the residence, towards the kiblâh, wearing a gown of black silk stuff, and the Arabs began to say, "the commander has bear-skin."

'Abd-ar-Rahmân born in al-Başrah. Abu-Muhammad ath-Thûri from al-Aşma'i:—When 'Utbah ibn-Ghazwân settled in al-Khuraibah, there was born there 'Abd-ar-Rahmân ibn-abu-Bakrah, being the first to be born in al-Başrah; and his father slaughtered a camel with which he feasted the Basrans and filled them to the full.

Ziyâd enlarges the mosque. Then when Mu'âwiyah ibn-abu-Sufyân appointed Ziyâd as 'âmil over al-Başrah, the latter enlarged the mosque considerably, building it of baked brick and gypsum, and roofing it with teak. Moreover he said, "It is not fitting that the imâm pass across the people." So he moved the official residence from the Dahnâ to the south of the mosque, and the imâm used to go out of the residence by the door in the southern wall [of the mosque].

Ziyâd, when he was building the mosque and the official residence, kept going about in it, watching the construction. He would often say to those leaders of the people of al-Baṣrah who accompanied him, "Do ye see any defect?" And they would answer, "We do not know a building more excellent than it." And he would say, "Yes, if only these columns of which each one has¹ four arches upon it were more massive than the other columns"

It is related on the authority of Yûnus ibn-Ḥabîb an-Naḥwi that there was not in these columns the slightest crack or fault.

[Basîṭ]

"Ziyâd built in honor of Allah an edifice
Of stones; 'twas not made of clay.
If human hands had not labored to raise it,
Verily we should call it a work of the Satans."

'Ubaidallâh ibn-Ziyâd enlarges it. Al-Walid ibn-Hishâm 348
ibn-Ḳaḥdham says:—When Ziyâd built the mosque, he made its portico resting on five columns, and built its minaret of stone. He was the first to make the choir,¹ and to move the official residence to the south of the mosque. His building, which was of dried brick and clay, stood until Ṣâlih ibn-'Abd-ar-Raḥmân as-Sijistâni, a freedman of the banu-Yamîm, when he was in charge of the kharâj of al-'Irâq for Sulaimân ibn-'Abd-al-Malik, rebuilt the mosque of burnt brick and gypsum. 'Ubaidallâh ibn-Ziyâd enlarged it and also the mosque of al-Kûfah, saying, "I asked Allah to grant me to lead the holy war [jihâd] and he did so, and I asked him to grant me to build the two cathedral mosques in the two provinces¹ and he did so, and I asked him to make me the successor to Ziyâd and he did so."

The contractor becomes rich. Abu'Ubaidah Ma'mar ibn-al-Muthanna' says:—When Ziyâd built the mosque he brought its pillars from the mountain of al-Ahwâz, the man who had charge of securing and cutting them being al-Ḥajjâj ibn-'Atik ath-Thakafî and his son. He became rich, so that it was said, "It is good to be in authority even over stones." This became a proverb.

Another version. But some people say:—Ziyâd saw the people clapping the dust off their hands when they got full of dust while they were praying, and he said, "There is danger that people should come to think after a long time, that clapping the dust off of their hands during the prayers is part of the ritual." So he ordered that pebbles be collected and spread in the mosque. The overseers of the work were strict with the people in this regard and oppressed them, showing them pebbles which they had selected, and saying, "Bring us like these, according to their sizes and colors." And the overseers were bribed, so that the saying arose, "It is good to be in authority even over stones."

✓ The house of Nâfi'. Abu'Ubaidah says:—The north side of the mosque had an angle, because on that side there was a dwelling belonging to Nâfi' ibn-al-Ḥârith ibn-Kaladah. His son refused to sell it; but when Mu'âwiyah appointed 'Ubaidallâh ibn-Ziyâd governor of al-Basrah, 'Ubaidallâh said to his companions, "If 'Abdallâh ibn-Nâfi' moves away to the farthest end of his property, then inform me of the fact." When he moved to his white castle which is near al-Batīḥah, 'Ubaidallāh, when he was told of this, sent workmen who pulled down as much of the house as was necessary to make the mosque square. Ibn-Nāfi' came and complained to him about this. So he compensated him by giving him five cubits for every cubit, and opening for him in the wall an aperture into the mosque. This aperture remained in the wall until al-Mahdī the Commander of the Believers enlarged the mosque, when the whole house was made a part of the mosque. The space on which stood the official residence was also added to the mosque in the caliphate of ar-Rashīd. 349

Al-Hajjāj ibn-Yūsuf destroys the residence. Abu-'Ubaidah says:—When al-Ḥajjāj ibn-Yūsuf came to al-'Irāq,¹ he was told that Ziyād had built the official residence in al-Baṣrah, and he wished to remove his name from it. So he determined to rebuild it of gypsum and burnt brick. But someone said to him, "Thou wilt fasten his name upon it only the more firmly and surely." So he pulled it down and left it. And ordinary buildings were built around it with its clay and brick and its doors.

Sulaimān orders it rebuilt. There was therefore no official residence in al-Baṣrah until Sulaimān ibn-'Abd-al-Malik became ruler² and appointed Ṣāliḥ ibn-'Abd-ar-Raḥmān over the kharāj of al-'Irāq. Ṣāliḥ related to him the story of al-Ḥajjāj and what he had done with the official residence. He ordered its restoration. So Ṣāliḥ restored it upon the same foundations with burnt brick and gypsum, increasing the height of its roof.

When 'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-'Azīz was ruler,³ and appointed

³ From 99 (717) to 101 (720).

‘Adi ibn-Arţâh al-Fazâri over al-Başrah, the latter wanted to build over it upper rooms. But ‘Umar wrote to him, “ May thy mother be bereft of thee! O son of Umm-‘Adi. Has a dwelling which was big enough for Ziyâd and the family of Ziyâd become too small for thee? ”. So ‘Adi refrained from finishing these upper rooms, and left it. When Sulaimân ibn-‘Ali ibn-‘Abdallâh ibn-al-‘Abbâs was wâlî over al-Başrah for abu-l-‘Abbâs the Commander of the Believers, he built, on the walls of the upper rooms which ‘Adi had erected, a structure of clay. Then he left it and moved to the courtyard [mirbad] and lived there.

The residence added to the mosque. When ar-Rashid became caliph,¹ the house was added to the southern part of the mosque, and there is not today any official residence for the governors of al-Başrah.

Al-Walîd ibn-Hashâm ibn-Ḳaḥdham's version. No one enlarged the mosque after ibn-Ziyâd until al-Mahdi became ruler.² He bought the houses of Nâfi‘ ibn-al-Ḥârith ibn-Kaladah ath-Thaḳafi, ‘Ubaidallâh ibn-abu-Bakrah, Dabî‘ah ibn-Kaladah ath-Thaḳafi, ‘Amr ibn-Wahb ath-Thaḳafi, Umm-Jamil al-Hilâliyah (with whom al-Mughîrah ibn-Shu‘bah had his affair), and other houses, and added them to the mosque in the days that Muḥammad ibn-Sulaimân ibn-‘Ali was governor of al-Başrah. Then Hârûn ar-Rashid, the Commander of the Believers, ordered ‘Isa ibn-Ja‘far ibn-al-Manşûr, in the days when he was governor over al-Başrah, to incorporate the official residence into the mosque, which he did.

A census taken. Al-Walîd ibn-Hishâm on the authority of his grandfather whom Yûsuf ibn-‘Umar³ had appointed over the register of the army of the Arabs, and who says:—

³ Governor of ‘Irâq under Hishâm, from 105 (724) to 125 (743).

I inspected all the soldiers of al-Baṣra¹ in the days of Ziyād, and I found them to number 80,000; and I found their households to be 120,000; and I found the Arab soldiery of al-Kûfah to be 60,000, and their households 80,000.

Al-Wâḳidi's account. Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from al-Wâḳidi on the strength of his usual isnâd:—"Utbah ibn-Ghazwân was with Sa'd ibn-abu-Waḳḳâs when 'Umar wrote to him [Sa'd], "Locate thy camp¹ in al-Kûfah, and send 'Utbah ibn-Ghazwân to al-Baṣrah." So 'Utbah set out with 800 men, and pitched a tent of cloth, and the people with him did the same. 'Umar supplied him with [more] troops, and when they became numerous, some of them built seven villages of sun-dried brick. Of these two were in al-Khur-aibah, one in az-Zâbûkah, two among the banu-Tanim, and two among the Azd. Then 'Utbah set out for al-Furât in [the region of] al-Baṣrah, and reduced it, after which he returned to al-Baṣrah. Now Sa'd had been writing [orders] to 'Utbah, which thing grieved him, so that he asked 'Umar for permission to go to him. Having obtained it, he left al-Mughîrah ibn-Shu'bah as his lieutenant, and when he reached al-Madinah, he complained to 'Umar of Sa'd lord-ing it over him. 'Umar said to him, "And why should it trouble thee to acknowledge the authority of a man of Ḳuraish, a Companion and a noble?" 'Utbah, however, did not want to return, but 'Umar insisted that he should do so. And on the journey he fell from his beast, and died in the year 16.

Mihjar ibn-al-Adra' laid out the limits of the mosque of al-Baṣrah, but he did not build it, though he used to lead in prayer in it before it was built. 'Utbah built it of reeds. Then abu-Mûsa al-Ash'ari rebuilt it and it was rebuilt again after him.

CHAPTER III

THE FIEF OF NÂFI'

Nâfi' raises horses in al-Baṣrah. Al-Ḥusain ibn-'Ali ibn-al-Aswad al-'Ijli from Yaḥya ibn-Adam from abu-Mu-'āwiyah from ash-Shaibāni from Muḥammad ibn-'Abdallāh ath-Thakāfi:—There was in al-Baṣrah a man (whose kunyah was abu-'Abdallāh) by the name of Nâfi', who was the first to wean a colt in that district. He went to 'Umar and said to him, "There is in al-Baṣrah a piece of land [which I want]. It is not subject to the kharāj, nor will my taking it harm any one of the Moslems." Abu-Mûsa wrote in his behalf about this to 'Umar, and the latter replied that he should assign it to him as a fief.

Sa'id ibn-Sulaimân from 'Abbâd ibn-al-'Awwâm from 'Auf al-ʿĀrabi, who says:—I have read a letter of 'Umar's to abu-Mûsa, saying, "Abu-'Abdallāh has asked me for a piece of land on the bank of the Tigris, on which he wishes to raise his horses. So if it is not land subject to jizyah, nor supplied with water [from land] subject to jizyah, give it to him."

'Abbâd says:—I am informed that he [abu-'Abdallāh] was Nâfi' ibn-al-Ḥārith ibn-Kaladah, the physician of the Arabs.

'Umar's letter in full. Al-Walid ibn-Hishâm ibn-Ḳaḥdham says:—I found in our possession a letter in which is written:

"In the name of Allah, the Compassionate, the Merciful.
From the servant of Allah, 'Umar, the Commander of the Believers, to al-Mughirah ibn-Shu'bah. Peace be upon thee. To thee I praise Allah, than whom there is no god but he — Now abu-'Adallâh relates that he has sown [a field] in al-Basrah in the jurisdiction of ibn-Ghazwân, and has raised colts there, at a time when none of the people of al-Basrah raised them, and that he is pleased with what he has seen. So help him with his crop and his horses; for I have granted him permission to sow, and I give him his land which he has sown, if it be not land upon which is the jizyah of Persian land, nor supplied with water from land which is subject to jizyah. And thou shalt not assign it to him except with good will. And peace be upon thee and the mercy of Allah. Written by Mu'aiqib ibn-abu-Fâtimah in Şafar of the year 17."

CHAPTER IV

HOUSES IN AL-BASRAH

*Few land titles clear.*¹ Al-Walid ibn-Hishâm says:—My uncle told me on the authority of ibn-Shubrumah who said, "If I were wâli of al-Basrah, I would confiscate the property of its inhabitants; for 'Uthar ibn-al-Khattâb granted fields there to none save abu-Bakrah and Nâfi' ibn-al-Ḥârith, while 'Uthmân granted no fiefs in al-Basrah save to 'Imrân ibn-Ḥuşain, and to ibn-'Âmir (to whom he granted his house), and to his freedman Ḥumrân."

It is said that Ziyâd also had granted 'Imrân a fief.

The first house. Hishâm ibn-al-Kalbi says:—The first house built in al-Basrah was the house of Nâfi' ibn-al-Ḥârith; then second the house of Ma'kil ibn-Yasâr al-Muzani. 'Uthmân ibn-'Affân had seized the house² of 'Uthmân ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi ath-Thaḳafi, writing to him that a piece of property would be given him in al-Basrah; and he was given his property known as Shaṭṭ-'Uthmân in the neighborhood of al-Ubullah. It was swampy, but he drained it, and made his home there.

'Uthmân ibn-'Affân's freedman. Ḥumrân ibn-Abân [at first] belonged to Musaiyab ibn-Najabah³ al-Fazâri, who got him in 'Ain-at-Tamr. Uthmân ibn-'Affân bought him from him, taught him to write, and took him as a scribe; but became angry with him, because, when he sent him to inquire about something of which al-Walid ibn-'Uqbah ibn-abu-Mu'ait had been accused, Ḥumrân accepted bribes from al-Walid, and lied concerning the charges made against him. Afterward 'Uthmân found out all about this, and became angry with Ḥumrân, saying, "He shall not live near me ever again." So he gave him the choice of a place to live in other than al-Madinah. Ḥumrân chose al-Baṣrah, and asked 'Uthmân to grant him a dwelling place there as a fief, mentioning a large plot. But 'Uthmân thought it excessive, and said to ibn-'Āmir, "Give him a house like any one of thy houses." And so he gave him as a fief his house in al-Baṣrah.

The house of Khâlid ibn-Tuḷaik¹ al-Khazâ'i, the kādî,² belonged to the kādî, abu-l-Jarrâḥ, who had been imprisoned by ibn-az-Zubair. Salam ibn-Ziyâd had bought it from him because he fled from ibn-az-Zubair's prison.

Ibn-al-Kalbi says:—Banu-Samurah street in al-Baṣrah was owned by 'Utbah ibn-'Abdallâh ibn-'Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Samurah ibn-Ḥabîb ibn-'Abd-Shams ibn-'Abd-Manâf. The mosque of 'Āṣim takes its name from 'Āṣim, a member of the banu-Rabî'ah ibn-Kilâb ibn-Rabî'ah ibn-'Āmir ibn-Ṣa'sa'ah. The house of abu-Nâfi' in al-Baṣrah takes its name from abu-Nâfi, the maula of 'Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-abu-Bakrah.

Al-Kaḥdhami says:—The house of abu-Ya'kûb al-Khaṭṭâbi belonged to Saḥâmah ibn-'Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-al-Aṣamm al-Ghanawi, the muezzin of al-Ḥajjâj, who was one of those who fought with Yazîd ibn-al-Muhallab, and who was killed by Maslamah ibn-'Abd-al-Malik on the day of [the battle of] the Palace. It was alongside of the house of al-Mughirah ibn-Shu'bah.

The house of Ṭâriḳ is named from Ṭâriḳ ibn-abu-Bakrah. In front of it was the property of al-Ḥakam ibn-abu-l-ʿĀṣi ath-Thaḳafi.

The house of Ziyâd ibn-ʿUthmân was bought by ʿUbaid-allâh ibn-Ziyâd for his nephew, Ziyâd ibn-ʿUthmân. Ad-joining it was a property in part of which was the residence of Bâbah bint-abu-l-ʿĀṣi. 353

The house of Sulaimân ibn-ʿAlī belonged to Salam ibn-Ziyâd, but Bilâl ibn-abu-Burdah, when he was wâlī of al-Baṣrah,¹ took possession of it for Khâlīd ibn-ʿAbdallâh. Later Sulaimân ibn-ʿAlī came and lodged there.

The house of Mûsa ibn-abu-l-Mukhtâr, a freedman of Thaḳîr, belonged to a man of the banu-Dârim. Fairûz Ḥuṣain wanted to buy it from him for 10,000 dirhams. He said, "I would not sell my nearness to thee for 100,000." But Fairûz gave him 10,000, and he delivered the house into his possession.

Abu-l-Ḥasan says:—The Dârimite wanted to sell his house, and said, "I will sell it for 10,000 dirhams, 5,000 as its price, and 5,000 because it was near to Fairûz." This came to the ears of Fairûz, who said, "I will take thy house from thee." And he gave him 10,000 dirhams.

The house of ibn-Tubba' is named from ʿAbd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Tubba' al-Ḥimyari. It was on one of the fiefs of Ziyâd.

Dammûn was of the tribe of al-Ṭâ'if; abu-Mûsa had married his daughter, and she bore him abu-Burdah. Dammûn had a property in al-Baṣrah, and the people of al-Baṣrah used to say in regard to him:

"Concord and children [banûn],
And bread and cumîn [kammûn],
In the house of Dammûn."

CHAPTER V

BATHS OF AL-BASRAH

The first baths. Al-Kāḥdhami and others say :—The first Bath which was erected in al-Basrah was the Bath of Abdallāh ibn-‘Uthmān ibn-abu-l-‘Āṣi ath-Thakāfi, located in the garden of Sufyān ibn-Mu‘āwiyah in al-Khuraibah, near the castle of ‘Īsa ibn-Ja‘far. The second was the Bath of Fil the freedman of Ziyād. The third was the Bath of Muslim ibn-abu-Bakrah in Bilālābādh. This is the one which later became the property of ‘Amr ibn-Muslim al-Bāhili. Al-Basrah stopped for a while the building of baths, and so these were the only baths there.

The profits of Muslim’s Bath. Al-Madā’ini related to me that abu-Bakrah said to his son Muslim, “ My son, by Allah, thou doest no work, yet I do not see thee falling short of thy brothers in income.” He replied, “ If thou wilt keep the secret for me, I will tell thee.” Said he, “ I will.” And Muslim said, “ I reap me from this Bath of mine every day a thousand dirhams and many dainties.” Some time after this Muslim became sick, and summoning his brother Abd-ar-Raḥmān ibn-abu-Bakrah, told him about the profits of his Bath. The brother told it abroad, and asked the governor for permission to build a Bath himself. (For Baths could not be built in al-Basrah except by permission of the governors.) The governor granted it. Then permission was asked and obtained by the following: ‘Ubaid-allāh ibn-abu-Bukrah, al-Ḥakam ibn-abu-l-‘Āṣi, Siyāh the 354 Uswāri, al-Ḥuṣain ibn-abu-l-Ḥurr the ‘Ambari, Raiṭah bint-Ziyād, Lubābah bint-Aufa al-Jurashi (for two Baths, one of them in a part of the city inhabited by people of al-Kubā’, and the other in the quarter of the banu-Sa'd), and al-Minjâb ibn-Râshid, the Ḍabbi. When Muslim ibn-abu-Bakrah recovered from his sickness, he found that the income from his Bath had been ruined, and he began to curse 'Abd-ar-Raḥmân, saying, "What has he been up to? May Allah cut off from him His mercy!"

Envious of Fil. Fil, the chamberlain and freedman of Ziyâd, went out riding with abu-l-Aswad ad-Du'ili and Anas ibn-Zunaim, he on a gentle steed, and they on two plodding horses. They were seized with envy, and Anas said, "Pass by, O abu-l-'Aswad." Said he, "Give way." And Fil said, "By the life of thy father, the Bath of the Kisra was not equal to two-thirds of the Bath of Fil."¹ Abu-l-Aswad replied, "But for us to be forced to dance around freedmen is not customary according to the covenant of the Prophet."

Verses referring to the first three Baths. Ibn-Mufarrigh² said to Ṭalhah at-Ṭalhât (i.e. Ṭalhah ibn-Abdallâh ibn-Khalaf):

"Thou inspirest me with the hope, O Ṭalaihah, of a thousand thousand.

But thou hast inspired me with a very distant hope;

For thou art not a noble freeman's

But³ Samrâ's who beareth slaves,⁴

Even if thou wert taken to the Bath of Fil,

And clothed with silk and striped garments."

Some one said when death was near him,

"Ah, many a girl has said on a day when she was weary,

⁴ Ar. 'abîd usually means "black slaves."

(meaning the Bath of al-Minjâb ibn-Râshid aḍ-Ḍabbī.)
'Abbâs, a freedman of the banu-Usâmah said,

“I remember the pool in the Bath of 'Amr,
And I did not depart until after evening.”

The Bath of Balj takes its name from Balj ibn-Nushbah 355 as-Sa'di, of whom Ziyâd said, “And he guarded against the likes of himself, being himself a robber.”

CHAPTER VI

CASTLES IN AL-BASRAH

Hishâm ibn-al-Kalbi says:—The castle of Aus in al-Basrah is named after Aus¹ ibn-Tha'labah ibn-Ruḳa, one of the banu-Taim-Allâh ibn-Tha'labah ibn-'Ukâbah. He was one of the leaders in Khurâsân, where he had engaged in big affairs, and was the man who, passing by Palmyra, said in regard to its two idols:

“O Maidens of the people of Tadmur, tell me,²
Are ye not weary with long standing?
It must seem to you as if age after age has passed
For your people, and year after year.”

The castle of Anas is named after Anas ibn-Mâlik al-Anṣârî, the servant of the Apostle of Allah.

The man who built the Minaret of the banu-U Saiyid was Ḥassân ibn-Sa'd, one of that tribe.

The Red Castle belonged to 'Amr ibn-'Utbah ibn-au-Sufyân, but today it belongs to the family of 'Umar ibn-Ḥafs ibn-Ḳabiṣah ibn-abu-Ṣafrah.

The Castle of the Exiles belonged to 'Abd-ar-Rahmân ibn-Ziyâd. Al-Ḥajjâj exiled the families of those who fought with 'Abd-ar-Rahmân ibn-Muhammad ibn-al-Ash'ath al-Kindî to it and confined them in it. It is a castle inside of a castle. Behind it is the castle of 'Ubaidallâh ibn-Ziyâd, and alongside of it is the castle of Jausak.

Al-Ḳaḥḍhamî says:—The Castle of an-Nawâhiḳ [the ass's throat,] which was the castle of Ziyâd, was so nicknamed by the mischievous.

The castle of an-Nu'mân belonged to an-Nu'mân ibn-Şahbân ar-Râsibi, who judged between the tribes, Muḍar and Rabi'ah, at the time Yazîd ibn-Mu'awiyah died. 'Ubaid allâh ibn-Ziyâd enlarged this house of an-Nu'mân ibn-Şahbân's for him. But he said, "This is a very poor piece of property, O abu-Ḥâtim.¹ If the water increase, I drown; and if it diminish, I die of thirst." And it turned out just as he said: The water diminished, and everybody there died.

The castle of Zarba was named after Zarba, the freedman of 'Abdallâh ibn-Āmir, the superintendent of his horses. 356 This building was the stable for his beasts of burden.

The castle of 'Atiyah is ascribed to 'Atiyah al-Ansâri.

The mosque of the banu-Ubâd was named after the banu-'Ubâd ibn-Ridâ' ibn-Shakirah ibn-al-Ḥârith ibn-Tamim ibn-Murr.

The house of 'Abdallâh ibn-Khâzim as-Sulami belonged to his aunt, Dajjâjah umm-'Abdallâh ibn-Āmir, who made him a present of it. His name is 'Abdallâh ibn-Khâzim ibn-Asmâ' ibn-aş-Şalt, and hers is Dajjâjah bint-Asmâ'.

CHAPTER VII

CANALS AND OTHER FIEFS

Al-Aḥnaf appeals to 'Umar. Al-Madâ'ini from abu-Bakr al-Hudhali, and al-'Abbâs ibn-Hishâm from his father from 'Awânah:—Al-Aḥnaf ibn-Ḳais appeared before 'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb among some others from al-Baṣrah. 'Umar began questioning them one after another. Al-Aḥnaf was at one side of the house, dressed in a coarse garment, and not joining in the conversation. To him 'Umar said, "Dost thou desire anything?" And he replied, "Yes, indeed! O Commander of the Believers. Behold, the keys of all good are in the hand of Allah. Behold, our brothers of the people of the provinces dwell in the abode of the departed peoples,¹ in the midst of sweet waters and luxuriant gardens, while we dwell in reedy, salty swamps, whose moisture does not dry up, and whose pastures do not grow, whose boundary on the east is the brackish sea, and on the west the waterless plain. We have no cultivated land and no cattle to bring us our profits and our provisions, like the gullet of the ostrich.² If a weak man goes to fetch potable water, he has to seek it at a distance of two parasangs. And if a woman goes to fetch it, she has to tie up her children by the neck, as goats are tied, fearful of being assaulted by enemies or eaten by lions. If thou doest not take away our misery and end our destitution, we shall be like a people perished."

And so 'Umar included the families of the people of al-Baṣrah in the pension list, and wrote to abu-Mûsa, ordering him to have a canal dug for them.

*Al-Ubullah canal.*¹ It is related by many learned men that the arm of the Tigris called Dijlat al-'Aurâ (i. e. the Dijlat al-Baṣrah) had originally a mouth, (a natural water-way not dug by any one) through which the rain water flowed to the Dijlah [Tigris], while the waters of the Dijlah flowed back in it at the rising of the tide, and were absorbed into the earth at the ebb. Its length amounted to a parasang, and at the end of it which was near to al-Baṣrah there was a wide sink-hole, called in the heathen time al-Ijjânah, and named by the Arabs in the time of Islam al-Juzârah. It was at a distance of three parasangs from al-Baṣrah, by which measurement the whole canal of al-Ubullah was four parasangs. From it issues the canal which is known today as the Nahr al-Ijjânah. 357

When 'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb ordered abu-Mûsa to dig a canal for the people of al-Baṣrah, he began the excavation from al-Ijjânah, and continued it three parasangs until he reached al-Baṣrah with it; and so the length of the canal of al-Ubullah became four parasangs. Some time afterwards that part of it which is between al-Baṣrah and Bathk² al-Ḥiri became filled up. This was a parasang distant from al-Baṣrah.

Ziyâd restores the canal. Ziyâd ibn-abu-Sufyân was in charge of the dîwân and the treasury on behalf of 'Abdallâh ibn-'Âmir ibn-Kuraiz, 'Abdallâh being at that time governor of al-Baṣrah for 'Uthmân ibn-'Affân. 'Uthmân advised ibn-'Âmir to put through the digging of the canal from where it was filled up until he reached al-Baṣrah with it. He was hindered in this and put it off, but when he went off to Khurâsân¹ and left Ziyâd on his place, the latter left the excavation of abu-Mûsa al-Ash'ari as it was, and dug the canal from where it had been filled up until he brought it to al-Basrah. 'Abd-ar-Rahmân ibn-abu-Bakrah had charge of this work. When he let in the water, 'Abd-ar-Rahmân began to race with his horse, and the water almost outstripped him.

Ibn-'Amir's jealousy. Now when ibn-'Âmir returned from Khurâsân, he was angry with Ziyâd, saying, "Thou only desiredst to take the credit for the canal from me." And the relations between them were strained until they died; and on account of it their children remained estranged.

Other versions. Yûnus ibn-Habîb an-Nahwi says:—I perceived that the relations between the family of Ziyâd and the family of ibn-'Âmir were strained.

Al-Athram from abu-'Ubaidah: Abu-Mûsa al-Ash'ari led the Ubullah canal from the place ad-Ijjânah to al-Basrah. Before this the people had obtained their drinking water from a source called Dair Kâwûs, starting from the Dijlah four parasangs above al-Ubullah, and flowing through lagoons without cultivation on its banks. But the winds were gradually filling it up.

When Ziyâd had dug the stream of al-Basrah, after he got through with repairing the canal of al-Ubullah, ibn-'Âmir returned from Khurâsân, and vilified him, saying, "Thou desiredst the credit of the glory of this canal and its fame." And because of this the relations between them as well as the relations between their families were strained.

Abu-'Ubaidah says:—He² dug the stream from next to the house of Fil, the freedman and chamberlain of Ziyâd, 358 to the site of the bridge.

² I. e. Ziyâd.

Ma'kil canal. It is related by Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd on the authority of al-Wāḳidi and others that 'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭāb ordered abu-Mūsa to dig the other canal,¹ and that he should do it with the assistance of Ma'kil ibn-Yasār al-Muzani; and so it is named after him.

Al-Wāḳidi says:—Ma'kil died in al-Baṣrah during the administration of 'Ubaidallāh ibn-Ziyād over al-Baṣrah for Mu'āwiyah.

Al-Walid ibn-Hishām al-Ḳaḥdhami and 'Ali ibn-Muḥammad ibn-abu-Saif al-Madā'ini say: — Al-Mundhir ibn-al-Jārūd al-'Abadi proposed to Mu'āwiyah to dig the Thārr canal, but he wrote to Ziyād, who proceeded to dig the canal of Ma'kil.

Some say:—He constructed it through the agency of Ma'kil ibn-Yasār, and so it is named after him. But others say:—Not so, but Ziyād had it constructed with the assistance of 'Abd-ar-Raḥmān ibn-abu-Bakrah or some one else. When he had finished the work and they were ready to open it, Ziyād sent Ma'kil ibn-Yasār, and he let in the water, receiving the honor because he was one of the Companions of the Prophet. Consequently the people said, "The canal of Ma'kil."

Al-Ḳaḥdhami relates that Ziyād handed a thousand dirhams to a man, saying to him, "Go up to the Tigris, and ask who is the Master [ṣāhib] of this canal, and if anyone says to thee it is the canal of Ziyād, then give him the thousand." He went up to the Tigris; then he returned and said, "I found no one who did not say, 'This is the Canal of Ma'kil.'" Then Ziyād said, "This is the favor of Allah which he bestows upon whom he will."

The Dubais canal is named after a washerman called Dubais who used to wash clothes in it.

The Bathḳ² al-Ḥiri is named after a Nabatean of al-Ḥirah, who is said to have been one of Ziyād's freedman.

² Cf. supra, p. 78, note 2.

When Ziyâd had brought the canal of Ma'kil as far as his pavilion from which he reviewed the troops, he turned it towards the south so as to bring it out to where the *aṣḥâb aṣ-ṣadaqah*¹ lived in al-Jabal, and this bend is named the Dubais Canal.

'Abdallâh ibn-'Âmir dug his canal which is by the house of Fil, being the one known as the Asâwirah² canal. Some say the Asâwirah dug it.

The 'Amr canal is named after 'Amr ibn-'Utbah ibn-abu-Sufyân.

The Umm-Ḥabîb canal is named after umm-Ḥabîb bint-Ziyâd, and upon it was a castle of many doors named al-Hazârdar.³

Al-Hazârdar. 'Ali ibn-Muḥammad al-Madâ'ini says:—Shirawaih al-Uswâri married Marjânah, the mother of 'Uбайдallâh ibn-Ziyâd, and built for her a castle in which were many doors, and which was called Hazârdar. Abu-l-Ḥasan says:—Some say it was called Hazârdar because Shirawaih constructed in his castle a thousand doors. But others say that in this place there lived in a thousand lodges a thousand Persian horsemen whom the Kisra maintained there, on which account it was called Hazârdar. 359

The Ḥarb Canal. Nahr Ḥarb takes its name from Ḥarb ibn-Salm ibn-Ziyâd. 'Abd-al-A'la ibn-'Abdallâh (ibn-'Abdallâh⁴) ibn-'Âmir put in a claim that the land through which the canal ran had belonged to ibn-'Âmir, and brought suit against Ḥarb for it. When the case was decided in favor of 'Abd-al-A'la, Ḥarb came to him saying, "I contended with thee for this canal, but I have repented of it, for thou art the shaikh and ruler of the tribe, and so the property is thine." 'Abd-al-A'la ibn-'Abdallâh replied, "Nay, but it is thine." And Ḥarb departed. When it was night, the clients [marwâli] of 'Abd-al-A'la and his intimate friends came and said, "By Allah, Ḥarb did not come to thee until the case was decided in thy favor and against him." But he said, "By Allah, I will never go back on what I have agreed to him."

The canal known as Yazidân is named from Yazid ibn-'Umar al-Usaiyidi, the chief of the guard of 'Adi ibn-Arṭâh,¹ He was prominent among the people of al-Baṣrah in his day.

'Abdallâh ibn-'Âmir ibn-Kuraiz gave to 'Abdallâh ibn-'Umair ibn-'Amr ibn-Mâlik al-Laithi (his brother by his mother, Dajjâjah bint-Asmâ ibn-as-Ṣalt as-Salmiyah) 8,000 Jaribs,² and dug for them the canal which is known as the Nahr ibn-'Umair.

Abdallâh ibn-'Âmir had dug the Canal of umm-'Abdallâh Dajjâjah, intrusting it to Ghailân ibn-Kharashah aṣ-Ṣabbi. It is the canal about which Hârithah ibn-Badr al-Ghudâni said to 'Abdallâh ibn-'Âmir when he visited him. "I have not seen any canal that was more of a blessing than this one. The weak are able to get water out of it at the very door of their habitations, and their needed food comes to them on it to their very dwelling places. It is also the source of water for their plantings." Hârithah visited Ziyâd after this during the term of his governorship, and then said, "I have never seen a canal worse than this one. The dwellings of those near it fairly ooze with water; they are bitten by its mosquitoes in their homes, and in it their children are drowned." Some claim that Ghailân ibn-

² A jarib is about one-third of an acre.

Kharashah was the one who said this, but the former account is the more probable. 360

Nahr Salm is named after Salm ibn-Ziyâd ibn-abu-Sufyân.

Nahr Nâfidh. ‘Abdallâh ibn-‘Âmir had dug a canal which he intrusted to Nâfidh his freedman, and as his name was more often used in connection with it, it is called the canal of Nâfidh. He belongs to the family of al-Faḍl ibn-‘Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Abbâs ibn-Rabī‘ah ibn-al-Ḥârith ibn-Abd-al-Muṭṭalib.

The fief of al-Abbâs. Abu-l-Yaḳṭhân says:—‘Uthmân ibn-‘Affân gave in fief to al-‘Abbâs ibn-Rabī‘ah ibn-al-Ḥârith a dwelling in al-Baṣrah, and made him a present of 100,000 dirhams. ‘Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-‘Abbâs was nicknamed Râ’iḍ al-Bighâl [the mule breaker] because he excelled in riding them. He was a leader of the people after ibn-al-Ash‘ath escaped to Sijistân, fleeing from al-Ḥajjāj.

Ṭalḥatân is the canal of Ṭalḥah ibn-abu-Nâfi‘, the freedman of Ṭalḥah ibn-‘Ubaidallâh.

Nahr Ḥumaidah is named after a woman of the family of ‘Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Samurah ibn-Ḥabīb ibn-‘Abd-Shams, who was called Ḥumaidah. She was the wife of ‘Abd-al-‘Azīz ibn-‘Abdallâh ibn-‘Âmir.

Khairatân belonged to Khairah bint-Damarah al-Ḳushairiyah, the wife of al-Muhallab; and to her belonged also Muhallabân which al-Muhallab had bestowed upon her. Others say:—Nay, but it belonged to her in the first place, although it is named after al-Muhallab. She was the mother of his son abu-‘Uyainah.

Jubairân belonged to Jubair ibn-Ḥaiyah.

Khalafân was a fief of ‘Abdallâh ibn-Khalaf al-Khazâ‘i, the father of Ṭalḥah at-Ṭalḥât.

Ṭulaiḳân belonged to the family of ‘Imrân ibn-Ḥuṣain al-Khazâ‘i, one of the children of Khâlîd ibn-Ṭulaiḳ ibn-Muḥammad ibn-ʿImrân. Khâlid had charge of the ḡadîs of al-Baṣrah.

Nahr Murrah. Al-Ḳaḏhami says:—The canal of Murrah was really ibn-ʿĀmir's, but Murrah the freedman of abu-Bakr aṣ-Ṣaddîḡ had charge of digging it for him, and so his name became associated with it.

Abu-l-Yaḡṡhân and other say:—The canal of Murrah was named after Murrah ibn-abu-ʿUṡhmân, the freedman of ʿAbd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-abu-Bakr aṣ-Ṣaddîḡ. He was a generous fellow. He asked ʿĀ'ishah the "Mother of the Believers" to write to Ziyâd for him, addressing the letter "To Ziyâd ibn-abu-Sufyân¹ from ʿĀ'ishah, the Mother of the Believers." She complied, writing the letter for him containing various recommendations, and addressing it according to his suggestion. When Ziyâd saw that she had written to him, ascribing his parentage to abu-Sufyân, he was pleased at this, and showed consideration for Murrah and favored him, saying to everybody, "This is a letter from the Mother of the Believers to me concerning him." And he would show it to them so that they could read the heading of it. He afterwards made him a grant of 100 jarîbs on the al-Uḡullah canal, bidding him dig a canal for it. This he did, and so it is named after him. ʿUṡhmân ibn-Murrah was of the nobles of the people of al-Baṣrah. But the fief went out of the hands of his children and came into the possession of the family of aṣ-Ṣafâḡ ibn-Ḥujr ibn-Bujair al-ʿIkawi of the Azd. 36

Darjâh Jank was part of the property of the Thaḡîf. It was called this only because of a joke there was about it, jank being Persian for "uproar."²

Anasân was named after Anas ibn-Mâlik, who acquired it by a grant from Ziyâd.

² Ar. ṣabḡah

Nahr Bashshâr is ascribed to Bashshâr ibn-Muslim ibn-‘Amr al-Bâhili, the brother of Kûtaibah. He presented al-Ḥajjâj with a carpet, and the latter returned the compliment by granting him 700 jarîbs. (Others say 400 jarîbs.) And he dug this canal for them.

Nahr Fairûz is named after Fairûz Ḥuşain. Others say after Bâshkâr, who was called Fairûz, while al-Ḳaḥḍhami says it was named after Fairûz, the freedman of Rabi‘ah ibn-Kaladah ath-Thakafi.

Nahr al-‘Alâ’ is ascribed to al-‘Alâ’ ibn-Sharik al-Hudhali. He gave something to ‘Abd-al-Malik which pleased him, and so he granted him 100 jarîbs.

Nahr Dhirâ’ is ascribed to Dhirâ’ an-Namari of the Rabi‘ah (namely abu-Hârûn ibn-Dhirâ’).

Nahr Ḥabîb is named after Ḥabîb ibn-Shihâb ash-Sha’mi, the merchant, who acquired it through a grant from Ziyâd. Others say from ‘Uthmân.

The Nahr abu-Bakrah is named after abu-Bakrah ibn-Ziyâd.

From al-‘Ikawi ad-Dallâl:—The island between the Two Rivers was swampy ground. Mu‘âwiyah granted it to a certain one of his brothers’ sons. And when the young man came to look at it, Ziyâd had the water turned on; and he sent to see what he would say about it. The young man said, “The Commander of the Believers has only given me a pumpkin for which I have no need.” So Ziyâd bought it from him for 200,000 dirhams, and dug its canals and made fiefs out of it.

Rawwâdân belonged to Rawwâd ibn-abu-Bakrah.

Nahr ar-Râ’ was so called because there was caught in it a fish called ar-râ’ [the letter “r”]. Upon it is the land of Ḥumrân which was granted to him by Mu‘âwiyah.

Nahr Makḥûl takes its name from Makḥûl ibn-‘Ubaidallâh al-Aḥmasi. He was the son of the uncle of Shaibân, owner of the Cemetery of Shaibân ibn-'Abdallâh, who was in charge of the guard of ibn-Ziyâd. Makhûl used to recite poetry about horses. His fief was from 'Abd-al-Malik ibn-Mirwân.

Al-Kahdhami says:—Nahr Makhûl takes its name from Makhûl ibn-'Abdallâh as-Sa'di.

He also says:—The Shatt 'Uthmân was bought by 'Uthmân ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi ath-Thakafi from 'Uthmân ibn-'Affân in exchange for some property he had in at-Ṭâ'if. Others say:—He bought it in exchange for a house he had in al-Madīnah, whose site 'Uthmân ibn-'Affân incorporated into the mosque. 'Uthmân ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi granted Ḥafṣân to his brother, Ḥafṣ ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi. He granted Umaiyyâtân to abu-Umayyah ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi; Ḥakamân to al-Ḥakam ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi; and to his brother, al-Mughīrah, Mughīratân.

Nahr al-Arḥâ' belonged to 'Amr ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi ath-Thakafi.

Al-Madâ'ini says:—Ziyâd made a fief out of al-Jamûm (i. e. Ziyâdân) in ash-Shatt. He said to 'Abdallâh ibn-'Uthmân, "I give only what ye settle on." He would give a man a fief and leave him there for two years, and if he then lived on it, it would be his, and if not he would take it from him.

Al-Jamûm belonged first to abu-Bakrah. Later it came into the possession of 'Abd-ar-Rahmân ibn-abu-Bakrah.

Azraqân was named after al-Azraq ibn-Muslim, a freedman of the banu-Ḥanifah.

Muḥammadân was named after Muḥammad ibn-'Ali ibn-'Uthmân al-Ḥanafi.

Ziyâdân takes its name from Ziyâd, the freedman of the banu-l-Haitham, who was the grandfather of Mûnas ibn-'Imrân ibn-Jumai' ibn-Yasâr, and the grandfather of 'Isa ibn-'Umar an-Nahawi and Ḥâjib ibn-'Umar on their mother's side.

The abu-l-Khaṣīb canal takes its name from abu-l-Khaṣīb Marzūk, the freedman of al-Manṣūr, the Commander of the Believers.

Nahr al-Amīr in al-Baṣrah was dug by al-Manṣūr. He afterwards gave it to his son, Ja'far. It used to be called Nahr Amir al-Mu'minin, but this was later shortened to Nahr al-Amīr. Finally ar-Rashīd bought it, divided it into fiefs, and sold it off. 363

Nahr Rubba belonging to ar-Rashīd is named after Sūrijah.

'Ubaidallāh ibn-'Abd-al-A'la al-Kuraizi and 'Ubaidallāh ibn-'Umar ibn-al-Ḥakam ath-Thaḳafi had a dispute about al-Ḳurashi which was finally settled on condition that each one of them take half of it. And then it was called al-Ḳurashi and al-'Arabi.

Al-Ḳandīl, one of the mouths of the Dījlāh, was dammed by Sulaimān ibn-'Alī. Upon it was the fief of al-Mundhir ibn-az-Zubair ibn-al-'Awwām, in which was the canal of an-Nu'mān ibn-al-Mundhir, the lord [sāhib] of al-Ḥīrah. It had been granted to him in the days of Kisra. There was a castle of an-Nu'mān's here.

Nahr Muḳātil was named after Muḳātil ibn-Jāriyah ibn-Ḳudāmāh as-Sa'dī.

'Amīrān takes its name from 'Abdallāh ibn-'Amīr al-Laithī.

Al-Jūbarah was so named because the *jūbarah*¹ was caught in it.

Ḥuṣainān belonged to Ḥuṣain ibn-abu-l-Ḥurr al-'Anbarī.

'Ubaidallān belonged to 'Ubaidallāh ibn-abu-Bakrah.

'Ubaidān belonged to 'Ubaid ibn-Ka'b an-Numairī.

Munḳidhān belonged to Munḳidh ibn-'Ilāj as-Sulāmī.

'Abd-ar-Rahmânân belonged first to abu-Bakrah ibn-Ziyâd, and abu-'Abd-ar-Rahmân, the freedman of Hishâm bought it.

Nâfi'ân belonged to Nâfi' ibn-al-Ḥârith ath-Thaḡafi.

Aslamâ belonged to Aslam ibn-Zur'ah al-Kilâbi.

Ḳutaibatân to Ḳutaibah ibn-Muṣlim.

Khaskhashân to the family of Khaskhash al-'Anbari.

Al-Ḳahdhami says:—Nahr al-Banât was so named after the daughters of Ziyâd, who granted each daughter 60 jarîbs—his usual division. Ziyâd ordered 'Abd-ar-Rahmân ibn-Tubba' al-Ḥimyari, who was in charge of his fiefs, to grant to Nâfi' ibn-al-Ḥârith ath-Thaḡafi as much as he could walk over. While Nâfi' was walking, his sandal-thong broke, and he sat down. 'Abd-ar-Rahmân said, "So much is thine." And Nâfi' said, "If I had known, verily, I'd have walked to al-Ubullah." Then he said, "Let me take off my sandals." And he threw them until they reached al-Ijjânah.

Sa'îdân belonged to the family of Sa'îd ibn-'Abd-ar-Rahmân ibn-'Abâd ibn-Usaid.

Sulaimânân was a fief belonging to 'Ubaid ibn-Ḳusait, the master of the patrol in the days of al-Ḥajjâj. On it lived an ascetic whose name was Sulaimân ibn-Jâbir, and it was named after him.

'Umarân belonged to 'Umar ibn-'Ubaidallâ ibn-Ma'mar at-Taimi.

Filân belonged to Fil the freedman of Ziyâd.

Khâlîdân is named after Khâlîd ibn-'Abdallâh . . . ibn-Umaiyaḥ.

Nahr Yazîd al-Abâḍi, i. e. Yazîd ibn-'Abdallâh al-Ḥimyari.

CHAPTER VIII

Al-Ḳaḥḍhami says:—It was Bilāl ibn-abu-Burdah who led the water into the canal of Ma'ḳil at the overflow of al-Baṣrah. Before that time it had been in bad shape, so that the water overflowed as far as the pavilion from which Ziyād used to review the troops. Bilāl dug Nahr Bilāl, set up shops on its sides, and removed the market thither. This he did for Yazīd ibn-Khâlid al-Ḳasri.

The suit for al-Murghâb fief. Bashīr ibn-'Ubaidallâh ibn-abu-Bakrah dug al-Murghâb and named it after the Murghâb¹ of Marw. The fief through which al-Murghâb flowed belonged to Hilâl ibn-Ahwaz al-Mâzini, having been granted to him by Yazīd ibn-'Abd-al-Malik, and consisting of 8,000 jaribs. Bashīr dug al-Murghâb, with ditches and cross canals, in an attempt to gain possession; and said, "This fief belongs to me." But Ḥimyarī ibn-Hilâl brought suit against him. Khâlid ibn-'Abdallâh al-Ḳasri wrote to Mâlik ibn-al-Mundhir ibn-al-Jârûd, who was in charge of the law courts of al-Basrah, saying, "Adjudge al-Murghâb to al-Ḥimyarī," and he complied. This was because Bashīr had criticized Khâlid, accusing him of wrong-doing, and Khâlid had heard of it. 'Amr ibn-Yazīd al-Uṣaiyidi was on Ḥimyarī's side and was helping him, but he said to Mâlik ibn-al-Mundhir, "Allah bless thee! This is not an adjudging. It is only a shifting of al-Murghâb to Ḥimyarī."

Sa'sa'ah ibn-Mu'awiyah, the uncle of al-Ahnaf, had a fief fronting and abutting on al-Murghâb. His son Mu'awiyah came as Ḥimyari's advocate, and when Bashîr said, "this is the pasture of our camels, our cattle, our asses, our mules, and our sheep," Mu'awiyah exclaimed, "For the sake 365 of a crumpled-horned cow with the diarrhea and an ass in heat dost thou wish to prevail over our legal rights?" Then 'Abdallâh ibn-abu-'Uthmân ibn-'Abdallâh ibn-Khâlîd ibn-Asid appeared, saying, "It is our land and our fief." To him Mu'awiyah said, "Hast thou heard of the man who stepped over the fire and the flame went up his anus? —Thou art such a one."

Suwaid gains a fief. Suwaidân, a fief whose extent was 400 jarîbs, belonged at first to 'Ubaidallâh ibn-abu-Bakrah, who gave it to Suwaid ibn-Manjûf as-Sadûsi. This was how it happened: Suwaid became sick, and ibn-abu-Bakrah paid him a visit and said to him, "How dost thou feel?" He answered, "All right, if thou wilt do something." He said, "I will. What is thy wish?" And Suwaid replied, "That thou make me as large a grant as thou didst to ibn-Ma'mar. Then I shall have nothing the matter with me." He granted him the fief which was named Suwaidân after him.

Nahr Yazîd. Al-Madâ'ini says:—Yazîd ibn-al-Muhallab dug the Yazîd canal in a fief belonging to 'Ubaidallâh ibn-abu-Bakrah, and said to Bashîr ibn-'Ubaidallâh, "Write me a statement to the effect that this canal is my lawful possession." He replied, "Nay, and indeed, even if thou art dispossessed, I shall proceed against thee."

Jabrân belonged to the family of Kulthûm ibn-Jabr.

Nahr ibn-abu-Burdha'ah is named after abu-Burdha'ah ibn-abu-Bakrah.

Al-Mansûr confiscates some property. Al-Hasrukânân was a fief belonging to the family of abu-Bakrah. It was originally [intended to be] 100 jarîbs, but al-Manşûr's surveyors surveyed it [and found it to contain] 11,000 jarîbs. They left 100 jarîbs in the possession of the family of abu-Bakrah, and confiscated the remainder.

Himyân fief belonged to Himyân ibn-'Adi as-Sadûsi.

Kathîrân to Kathîr ibn-Saiyâr.

Bilâlân to Bilâl ibn-abu-Burdah. This fief had belonged to 'Abbâd ibn-Ziyâd, but he sold it.

Shiblân belonged to Shibl ibn-'Amîrah . . . ad-Dabbi.

Ar-Ribâhi canal is named after Ribâh, a freedman of the family of Jud'an.

The 'Â'ishah lagoon after 'Â'ishah bint-'Abdallâh ibn-Khalaf al-Khuzâ'i.

Nahr Kathîr. Kathîr ibn-'Abdallâh as-Sulami (the father of al-'Âj, the lieutenant of Yûsuf ibn-'Umar ath-Thakafî over al-Başrah) dug himself a canal from Nahr 'Utbah to al-Khastal, and it was named after him. 366

Nahr abu-Shaddâd gets its name from abu-Shaddâd, the freedman of Ziyâd.

Bathk Saiyâr belonged to Fil, the freedman of Ziyâd, but Saiyâr, the freedman of the banu-'Uqail, was the manager of it, and practically possessed it.

The property of the Işbahânis was bought from some Arabs. These Işbahânis were a family who professed Islam, and emigrated to al-Başrah. Others say they only came with the Asâwirah who settled in al-Başrah. [I. e. they did not become Moslems.]

Dâr ibn-al-Işbahâni in al-Başrah takes its name from 'Abdallâh ibn-al-Işbahâni. He had 400 slaves. He met al-Mukhatâr ibn-abu-'Ubaid together with Mas'ab [ibn-az-Zubair], the latter being at the right of the former.

The Caliph Yazîd confiscates some land. 'Abbâs ibn-

Hishâm from his grandfather from some one of the family of al-Ahtam:—Yazîd ibn-‘Abd-al-Malik wrote to ‘Umar ibn-Hubairah, “The Commander of the Believers has no share in the land of al-‘Arab; so go to the fiefs there and seize whatever remains there for the Commander of the Believers,” ‘Umar began to go to one fief after another, asking about them; then he measured them until he lighted upon a piece of land. He asked, “Whose is this?” Its owner answered, “Mine.” And ‘Umar said, “How is it thine?” The reply was,

“We inherited it from true fathers,
And shall bequeath it when we die to our sons.”

The people clamored at ‘Umar’s action, and he desisted.

Šaltân is ascribed to aṣ-Šalt ibn-Ḥuraith al-Ḥanafî.

Kâsimân was a fief of al-Kâsim ibn-‘Abbâs ibn-Rabî‘ah . . . ibn-‘Abd-al-Muṭṭalab, which his brother, ‘Aun, had inherited from him.

Nahr Khâlîdân al-Ajamah belonged to the family of Khâlîd ibn-Asîd and the family of abu-Bakrah.

Nahr Ma’sûrân. On Nahr Ma’sûrân lived a scoundrel who slandered and criticized people, and the canal was named after him, for al-ma’sûr is Persian for “the sinful”, “the scoundrel”.

Jubairân also was a fief of Jubair ibn-abu-Zaid of the banu-‘Abd-ad-Dâr.

Ma’kilân was a fief of Ma’kil ibn-Yasâr from Ziyâd. His children say from ‘Umar; but ‘Umar granted no fiefs in Mesopotamia.

Jandalân belonged to ‘Ubaidallâh ibn-Jandal al-Hilâlî.

Nahr at-Tût was a fief of ‘Abdallâh ibn-Nâfi’ ibn-al-
Ḥârith ath-Thakafi. 3

Al-Kahdhamî says:—Nahr Sulaimân ibn-‘Alî belonged to Ḥassân ibn-abu-Ḥassân an-Nabaṭî.

Al-Ghauthî canal was in charge of the head of the gar-riſon, whoſe name was Ghauth, and it was named after him. Others ſay it was an accſſory to the Murghâb canal and was named al-Ghauth [ſuccour].

Dhât al-Ḥifâfain on the Nahr Ma'kil and the Dijlah belonged to 'Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-abu-Bakrah. It was ſold to 'Arabi at-Tammâr, a freedman of Amat-Allâh bint-abu-Bakrah.

Nahr abu-Sabrah al-Hudhali was a fief.

Ḥarbânân was a fief of Ḥarb ibn-'Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-al-Ḥakam ibn-abu-l-'Âſi.

Al-Ḥubâb fief belonged to Ḥubâb ibn-Yazîd al-Mujâſhi'i.

Nahr Ja'far belonged to Ja'far, a freedman of Salm ibn-Ziyâd, and was ſubject to the kharâj.

Bathk Shîrîn was named after Shîrîn, the wife of Kisra ibn-Hurmuz.

Al-Ḳaḥdhami and al-Madâ'ini ſay:—Muhallabân, which is known in the Register as the fief of 'Umar ibn-Hubairah, belonged to Hubairah, having been granted to him by Yazîd ibn-'Abd-al-Malik when he conſiſcated the property of Yazîd ibn-al-Muhallab, of his brothers, and of his ſons. It had formerly belonged to al-Mughîrah ibn-al-Muhallab. In it was a canal which Zâdân Farrûkh had dug and which is known by his name. The fief belongs today to the family of Sufyân ibn-Mu'âwiyah ibn-Yazîd ibn-al-Muhallab. He was preſented on it to abu-l-'Abbâs, the Commander of the Believers, who gave it to him in fee. The family of al-Muhallab bringing ſuit over the matter, Sufyân ſaid, "It belonged to al-Mughîrah." They replied, "We grant that; but al-Mughîrah ibn-al-Muhallab died before his father, and his daughter inherited the half. Thou art entitled to thine inheritance from thy mother, but the reſt reverts to his (al-Mughîrah's) father, who was one of the heirs."¹ He said, "But al-Mughîrah had a son." To which they replied, "What hast thou to do with the son of al-Mughîrah? Thou dost not inherit from him.. He is only thy uncle." Nevertheless he did not give them anything, although the property amounted to 1,500 jarîbs.

Kausajân fief. Kausajân takes its name from 'Abdallâh ibn-'Amr ath-Thaḡafi al-Kausaj ["having a scanty beard"]. Al-Madâ'ini says that Kausajân belonged to abu-Bakrah, and his brother, Nâfi', contested his right to it. The two of them went out to it, and each one of them laid claim to it. 'Abdallâh ibn-'Amr al-Kausaj went out and said to them, "I see you contending with one another. Now appoint me as judge." Upon their doing so, he said, "I have 368 adjudged it to myself." And they let him have it.

Another account says:—Al-Kausaj had no place to water his cattle, so he said to abu-Bakrah and Nâfi', "Assign me a watering place the length of a leap." They agreed to this, and he leaped, it is said, thirty cubits.

*Ṣadaqah and Kharâj in al-Furât.*¹ There were some lands in al-Furât whose owners accepted Islam when the Moslems entered, and other lands which passed from the possession of the original owners into the hands of the Moslems by gift and otherwise, for reasons of state, and so became tithe-land, while before it had been subject to the kharâj. Al-Ḥajjâj made it kharâj land again. Later 'Umar ibn-'Abdal-'Azîz turned it back to ṣadaqah land. Then 'Umar ibn-Hubairah made it subject once more to the kharâj. When Hishâm ibn-'Abd-al-Malik became governor, he turned part of it back to ṣadaqah, and finally al-Mahdi, the Commander of the Believers, made it all ṣadaqah land.

Ja'farân belonged to umm-Ja'far bint-Majzâh ibn-Thaur as-Sadûsi, wife of Aslam, the owner of Aslamân.

Holdings of the family of Hishâm ibn-'Abd-al-Malik. Al-Kaḥḍhami says:—Arḳam ibn-Ibrâhim told me that he saw Ḥassân an-Nabati showing from the Bridge ('Abd-al-A'la ibn-'Abdallâh was with him) how everything on the bank of the Nahr al-Faiḍ belonged to the children of Hishâm ibn-'Abd-al-Malik, and when he reached the property of 'Abd-al-A'la he ceased to measure. But when the Blessed Dynasty¹ came in, all this was confiscated.

Abu-Ja'far bequeathed al-Jabân together with the rest of his bequests to the people of al-Madinah.

Al-Mahdi granted al-'Abbârah to his daughter, the wife of Muḥammad ibn-Sulaimân ash-Sharki.

'Abbâdân. 'Abbâdân was one of the fiefs of Ḥumrân ibn-Abân, the freedman of 'Uthmân, granted by 'Abd-al-Malik ibn-Marwân (Part of it according to another account was granted by Ziyâd.) Ḥumrân was one of the captives taken at 'Ain at-Tamr. He claimed to be descended from an-Namir ibn-Kâsit. Al-Ḥajjâj said one day, 'Abbâd ibn-Ḥusain al-Ḥabiti being with him, "What does Ḥumrân say? If he tries to trace his ancestry back to the free, desert Arabs, and does not add that his father was Ubaiy, who was a freedman of 'Uthmân, I'll wring his neck." 'Abbâd departed from the presence of al-Ḥajjâj in haste and reported his words to Ḥumrân, who gave to him the western side of the canal, keeping the eastern side as a mortmain. And thus it came to be named after 'Abbâd ibn-al-Ḥusain.

Ar-Rabi' ibn-Ṣubḥ al-Faḳīh,¹ a freedman of the banu-Sa'd, went about collecting money from the people of al-Baṣrah, and by means of it built a wall around 'Abbādān, and settled there. It is related on the authority of al-Ḥasan al-Baṣrī that ar-Rabi' went on a raid to al-Hind [India] by sea, and died, and was buried in one of the islands in the year 160.

Al-Ḳaḥdhami says:—Khâlidân al-Ḳaṣr and Khâlidân Habsâ' belonged to Khâlid ibn-'Abdalmâh ibn-Khâlid ibn-Asîd. Khâlidân belonged to Yazîd ibn-Ṭalhah al-Ḥanafî, whose *kunya*h was abu-Khâlid.

Nahr 'Adi was a channel of the river of al-Baṣrah until 'Adi ibn-Artâh al-Fazâri, the 'âmil of 'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-'Azîz, separated it from the Bathk Shîrîn.

Fiefs of Yazîd ibn-al-Muhallab. Sulaimân granted to Yazîd ibn-al-Muhallab as much of al-Baṭīḥah as he could put under cultivation. He cultivated ash-Sharḳî, al-Jabân, al-Khast, ar-Riḥiyah, Mughîratân, and others, and they became an estate. Yazîd ibn-'Abd-al-Malik confiscated them. Later Hishâm granted it in fee to his son. Then after that it became an estate again.

'Abbâsân. Al-Ḳaḥdhami says:—Al-Ḥajjâj granted 'Abbâsân in fee to Khairah bint-Damarah al-Ḳushairiyah, wife of al-Muhallab. But Yazîd ibn-'Abd-al-Malik confiscated it, and granted it to al-'Abbâs ibn-al-Walîd ibn-'Abd-al-Malik. It was later confiscated again, and abu-l-'Abbâs, the Commander of the Believers, granted it to Sulaimân ibn-'Alî.

Al-Khâlidīyah, the property of Khâlid ibn-Safwân ibn-al-Ahtam, formerly belonged to al-Kâsim ibn-Sulaimân.

Al-Mâlikīyah belonged to Mâlik ibn-al-Mundhir ibn-al-Jârûd.

Al-Ĥâtīmīyah belonged to Ĥâtīm ibn-Ḳabīṣah ibn-al-Muḥallab.

'Adi canal. I was told by several Baṣrans that 'Adi ibn-Artâh wrote to 'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-Aziz, who ordered the Baṣrans to write in regard to digging a canal for them. Waki' ibn-abu-Sûd at-Tamimi wrote to him as follows: "If thou dost not dig a canal for us, then al-Baṣrah is no fit place for us to live in." It is said that 'Adi was seeking in this way to injure Bahz ibn-Yazid ibn-al-Muḥallab; and he succeeded. 'Umar wrote giving him permission to dig a canal, and he dug Nahr 'Adi. When the people went out to look at it, 'Adi put al-Ḥasan al-Baṣri upon the ass upon which he himself had been riding, and walked instead. 370

Water for drinking. When 'Abdallâh ibn-'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-'Aziz came as governor of al-'Irâq in behalf of Yazid ibn-al-Walid, the people of al-Baṣrah came to him, complaining of the saltiness of their water, and brought to him two glass bottles, in one of which was some of the water of al-Baṣrah, and in the other some of the water of al-Baṭīḥah.¹ He saw the difference between the two; and they said, "Behold, if thou dig for us a canal, we shall be able to drink of this palatable water." So he wrote about this to Yazid who replied, "[Even] if the expense of this canal equals the taxes of al-'Irâq which we have in our possession, expend them upon it." And so he dug the canal which is known as Nahr ibn-'Umar.

A man said once in audience with ibn-'Umar, "By Allah,

Ar-Rabī' ibn-Ṣubḥ al-Faḳīh,¹ a freedman of the banu-Sa'd, went about collecting money from the people of al-Baṣrah, and by means of it built a wall around 'Abbādān, and settled there. It is related on the authority of al-Ḥasan al-Baṣrī that ar-Rabī' went on a raid to al-Hind [India] by sea, and died, and was buried in one of the islands in the year 160.

Al-Ḳaḥdhamī says:—Khâlidân al-Ḳaṣr and Khâlidân Habsâ' belonged to Khâlid ibn-'Abdalmâh ibn-Khâlid ibn-Asîd. Khâlidân belonged to Yazîd ibn-Ṭalhah al-Ḥanafī, whose kunyah was abu-Khâlid.

Nahr 'Adi was a channel of the river of al-Baṣrah until 'Adi ibn-Artâh al-Fazâri, the 'amil of 'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-'Azîz, separated it from the Bathk Shirin.

Fiefs of Yazîd ibn-al-Muhallab. Sulaimân granted to Yazîd ibn-al-Muhallab as much of al-Baṭīḥah as he could put under cultivation. He cultivated ash-Sharḳī, al-Jabân, al-Khast, ar-Riḥiyah, Mughîratân, and others, and they became an estate. Yazîd ibn-'Abd-al-Malik confiscated them. Later Hishâm granted it in fee to his son. Then after that it became an estate again.

'Abbâsân. Al-Ḳaḥdhamī says:—Al-Ḥajjâj granted 'Abbâsân in fee to Khairah bint-Ḍamarah al-Ḳushairiyah, wife of al-Muhallab. But Yazîd ibn-'Abd-al-Malik confiscated it, and granted it to al-'Abbâs ibn-al-Walid ibn-'Abd-al-Malik. It was later confiscated again, and abu-l-'Abbâs, the Commander of the Believers, granted it to Sulaimân ibn-'Alī.

Al-Khâlidiyyah, the property of Khâlid ibn-Safwân ibn-al-Ahtam, formerly belonged to al-Kâsim ibn-Sulaimân.

Al-Ĥâtimiyah belonged to Ĥâtim ibn-Kabiṣah ibn-al-Muhallab.

‘Adi canal. I was told by several Baṣrans that ‘Adi ibn-Arṭâh wrote to ‘Umar ibn-‘Abd-al-‘Azîz, who ordered the Baṣrans to write in regard to digging a canal for them. Water for drinking. When ‘Abdallâh ibn-‘Umar ibn-Abd-al-‘Azîz came as governor of al-‘Irâq in behalf of Yazid ibn-al-Walid, the people of al-Baṣrah came to him, complaining of the saltiness of their water, and brought to him two glass bottles, in one of which was some of the water of al-Baṣrah, and in the other some of the water of al-Baṭīḥah.¹ He saw the difference between the two; and they said, “Behold, if thou dig for us a canal, we shall be able to drink of this palatable water.” So he wrote about this to Yazid who replied, “[Even] if the expense of this canal equals the taxes of al-‘Irâq which we have in our possession, expend them upon it.” And so he dug the canal which is known as Nahr ibn-‘Umar.

A man said once in audience with ibn-‘Umar, “By Allah,

I estimate that the cost of this canal will amount to 300,000 dirhams or more." To which ibn-'Umar replied, "If it equalled all the taxes of al-'Irâk, verily, I would spend them on it."

The wâlis and the nobles in al-Baṣrah used to consider the water from the Dijlah palatable, digging themselves cisterns. Al-Ḥajjâj had a notable cistern there in which he collected rain water. Ibn-'Umar, Ziyâd and ibu-Ziyâd had cisterns which they permitted the people to use.

Buildings of al-Manṣûr. The first time al-Manṣûr entered al-Baṣrah, he built there his castle near the great dam. This was in the year 142. On his second entering he built the Oratory in al-Baṣrah. (Al-Kaḥdhami says the great dam is of Moslem origin.)

Wakf of Muḥammad ibn-Sulaimân. Muḥammad ibn-Sulaimân ibn-'Ali gave as a pious foundation [*wakf*¹] a piece of property of his near some water tanks which he had built in al-Baṣrah, the income of which was expended upon the water-wheels, and the camels, and their general upkeep.

Sulaimân improves the water supply. Rauḥ ibn-'Abd-al-Mu'min from his uncle abu-Hishâm from his father who says:—The people of al-Baṣrah went to ibn-'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-'Aziz in Wâsit and asked him to dig them a canal; so he dug for them Nahr ibn-'Umar. But the supply of water which it brought was slim and scanty, while the overflow from al-Baṭīḥah went into the Nahr ad-Dair. The people used to go to al-Ubullah for drinking water, until Sulaimân ibn-'Ali came to al-Baṣrah and erected al-Mughîthah and built dams for it upon al-Baṭīḥah, storing up the water from Nahr ad-Dair, and letting it out into the Nahr 371 ibn-'Umar. He expended on al-Mughithah 1,000,000 dirhams. The people of al-Baṣrah complained to Sulaimân of the saltiness of the water and of the amount of sea water that came to them; so he dammed al-Ḳandal, and their water became palatable. Sulaimân ibn-'Ali bought with his own money the site of the prison in Dâr ibn-Ziyâd and used it for a prison. He also dug the pool in ad-Dahnâ' (i. e. the Square of the banu-Hâshim).

"Crown lands" of al-Baṣrah. I was told by some learned men about the crown lands]ḍiyâ'] of al-Baṣrah, to wit:—The Shu'aibiyah, a people living on the Euphrates, established them for 'Ali, the son of the Commander of the Believers, ar-Rashîd, on condition that they should be his farmers on it and that he should lighten their burdens. After discussion of the matter, a tenth of the ṣadaqah was fixed upon, and 'Ali bound himself by oath to the people on terms agreeable to them. 'Ali's advocate in this affair was Shu'aib ibn-Ziyâd al-Wâsiti, (one of whose children had a house in Wâsiṭ on the Dijlah,) and the estate was named after him.

The draining of as-Subaiṭiyah. It was told by a number of men of al-Baṣrah, among them Rauḥ ibn-'Abd-al-Mu'min, that when Sulaimân ibn-'Ali constructed al-Mughithah, al-Manṣûr was eager to drain off an estate from al-Baṭiḥah; and ordered the construction of as-Subaiṭiyah. Sulaimân ibn-'Ali was displeased at this and the people of al-Baṣrah also. They therefore assembled at the door of 'Abdallâh ibn-'Ali, who at that time was with his brother, Sulaimân, fleeing from al-Manṣûr, and cried out, "O Commander of the Believers, come to us; let us make a covenant with thee." But Sulaimân drove them away, and when he had dispersed them, he dispatched to al-Manṣûr Suwwâr ibn-'Abdallâh at-Tamimi, also called al-'Anazi and Da'ûd ibn-abu-Hind, a freedman of the banu-Bashîr, and Sa'îd ibn-abu-'Arûbah (the name of abu-'Arûbah is Bihrân). They came before al-Manşûr bringing a map of al-Baṭīḥah, and told him they were afraid their water would be made salty. He said, "I don't see it as ye do." But he commanded to stop the work. Afterwards he went to al-Başrah and gave orders for as-Subaiṭiyah to be drained. And it was drained for him. Now part of it was a thicket belonging to a feudal chief, Subaiṭ by name. The overseer who was intrusted with the task of managing the estate and having it drained withheld from Subaiṭ part of the price of his thicket, and Subaiṭ kept calling for the rest of the price of his thicket at al-Manşûr's door, and visiting his office about the matter until he died. The estate was named after him because of this thicket of his, and is called as-Subaiṭiyah. 37:

Wakf of umm-'Abdallâh. The Kurrah Bridge in al-Başrah is named after Kurrah ibn-Ḥaiyân al-Bâhili. Beneath it was an old canal which umm-'Abdallâh ibn-'Âmir sold, endowing with the proceeds thereof a fountain for the people of al-Başrah. 'Abdallâh ibn-'Âmir sold the market and likewise gave the money as alms.

'Ubaidallâh ibn-Ziyâd, on the day that the death of Yazîd ibn-Mu'âwiyah was announced, was crossing over the Nahr umm-'Abdallâh, when he stumbled over a palm tree which he then ordered to be cut down. He also pulled down the Bath of Ḥumrân ibn-Abân, whose site was where today the viols are made.

Al-Ḥâmirah mosque. The mosque of al-Ḥâmirah is named after a family that had come to al-Yamâmah as Persians from 'Umân. From there they went to al-Başrah on donkey-back, and took up their residence near this mosque. Some say that they originally built it and that it was reconstructed afterwards.

Al-Minjšânîyah. 'Ali al-Athram from abu-'Ubaidah from abu-'Amr ibn-al-'Adâ':—Ḳais ibn-Mas'ûd ash-Shai-bâni, who governed at-Ṭaff on behalf of Kisra, constructed al-Minjashâniyah ¹ six miles from al-Baṣrah. This was run with the help of a hired man called Minjashân, from whom it takes its name. Above this was the horse pasture in which his colts used to graze.

Ibn-al-Kalbi says:—The water which is known as al-Ḥau'ab was named after al-Ḥau'ab bint-Kalb ibn-Wabarah, who lived at the house of Murr ibn-Udd ibn-Ṭâbikhah.

The Ḍariyah ḥima ² takes its name from Ḍariyah bint-Rabi'ah ibn-Nizâr, who was the mother of Ḥulwân ibn-'Imrân ibn-al-Ḥâf ibn-Ḳadâ'ah. Ḥulwân is named after this Ḥulwân.

KHUZISTÂN

CONCERNING THE ASÂWIRAH ¹ AND THE ZUTT ²

The Persian cavalry join the Moslems. It has been told me by many men of learning:—Siyâh al-Uswâri was in command of the vanguard of Yazdajird.³ Later he sent him to al-Ahwâz,⁴ but he encamped at al-Kalbânî'yah while abu-Mûsa al-Ash'ari was investing as-Sûs. When Siyâh beheld the victories of Islam and the power of its people, (for as-Sûs fell and reinforcements kept coming to abu-Mûsa,) he sent to the Moslem commander, saying, "Behold, we are desirous of entering with you into your religion, on condition that we help you fight your foreign enemies, but that if there arise a difference amongst you, we are not to fight with some of you against others of you; and that if we have war with the [heathen] Arabs, you will grant us help and defense against them; and that we be permitted to settle in whatever part of the country we please, and live among whichever of your tribes we choose; and that we receive the maximum stipend; and that a covenant to this effect be given us by the commander who sent you." Abu-Mûsa replied, "Nay, but ye shall have the same rights and obligations that we have." They said, "We do not want that." And so abu-Mûsa wrote about this to 'Umar, who wrote back to him, "Give them all they have asked."

They proceeded until they overtook the Moslems, and were with abu-Mûsa at the siege of Tustar.¹ But they did not strike a single blow; and abu-Mûsa said to Siyâh, "O helper! You and your friends are not what we thought you to be." To this he replied, "I told thee that our way of thinking was not like yours, seeing that we have no harems among you for which to fear and to fight. We entered into this religion from the very beginning only as a refuge, and in the hope that [your] Allah was one who provides abundant sustenance." Then abu-Mûsa assigned to them the maximum stipend.

They become allies of the Tamîm. When they came to al-Baṣrah, they asked, "Which of the tribes is nearest akin to the Apostle of Allah?" The answer was "the banu-Tamîm." Now they had intended allying themselves with the Azd, but they gave that up, and became allies of the banu-Tamîm. Then their quarters were marked out for them, and they settled down, and dug their canal, which is the one known as the Nahr al-Asâwirah. (Some say that 'Abdallâh ibn-Âmir dug it.)

They quarrel with the Tamîm. Abu-l-Ḥaṣan al-Madâ'ini says:—Sîrawaih al-Uswâri wanted to settle among the Bakr ibn-Wâ'il with Khâlid ibn-al-Mu'ammâr and among the banu-Sadûs, but Siyâh was opposed to this, and so they settled among the banu-Tamîm. There are today none of the Azd nor of the 'Abd-Shams in al-Baṣrah. To the Asâwirah were joined the Sayâbijah,² who before the time of Islam had been on the coasts of the Persian Gulf, and likewise the Zuṭṭ, who had been on the borders [tufûf], following the pasture. After the Aṣâwirah, the Zuṭṭ, and the Sayâbijah had combined, the banu-Tamim had a disagreement with them, and quarrelled with them, until finally the Asâwirah went to the banu-Sa'd, while the Zuṭṭ and the Sayâbijah went to the banu-Ḥanthalah, with whom they remained, fighting against the polytheists. 374

They break their covenant. The Asâwirah went on the expedition of 'ibn-Âmir to Khurâsân, and so did not take part with the Moslems at the battle of the Camel, nor at Siffin, nor at any of their battles, until the day of Mas'ûd.¹ But after that battle they were present at ar-Rabadhah,² and in the insurrection of ibn-al-Ash'ath³ they participated on his side. Al-Ḥajjâj [ibn-Yûsuf] punished them severely, razing their houses, annulling their grants,⁴ and forcing some of them to emigrate. Said he, "It was in your covenant that ye should not favor some of us against others of us."

Another tradition has it that when the Asâwirah betook themselves to al-Kalbâniyah, abu-Mûsa sent against them ar-Rabî' ibn-Ziyâd al-Ḥârithi, who attacked them. But finally they surrendered on condition that they accept Islam, and join in fighting the enemy; and that they ally themselves with whom they will and settle where they please.

Other Persian deserters. To these Asâwirah there fled some of the [foot] soldiers of the Persians who owned no land; they remained with them after war had laid down its weapons (i e. had ceased) in those regions, continuing with them and entering into Islam.

⁴ Doubtful whether this refers to grants of land or grants of pensions.

*Al-Madâ'ini's version.*¹ When Yazdajird went ² to Işbahân, he summoned Siyâh and sent him to Iştakhr with 300 men, among whom were seventy of their magnates, with orders to levy whom he would of the people and the soldiers of every region. Afterward Yazdajird followed him, and upon arriving at Iştakhr, sent Siyâh to as-Sûs, which abu-Mûsa was investing, while al-Hurmuzân he sent to Tustar. Siyâh halted at al-Kalbâniyah. The people of as-Sûs, when the news of Yazdajird and his flight reached them, asked abu-Mûsa for terms, which he granted them. Siyâh remained in al-Kalbâniyah until abu-Mûsa came to Tustar, when he shifted and established himself between Râmhurmuz and Tustar, until 'Ammar arrived on the scene. Then Siyâh assembled the head men who had accompanied him from Işbahân, and said, "Ye know just what we said about these people—that they would conquer this realm, and that their beasts would dung in the palace of Iştakhr. Their cause is victorious as ye can see. So look out for yourselves, and enter into their religion." They agreed with him in this, and so he sent to abu-Mûsa a delegation of ten men with Shîrawaih, who made a compact on the terms we have described, and accepted Islam

'Awânah's account. Another than al-Madâ'ini told me on the authority of 'Awânah:—The Asâwîrah allied themselves first with the Azd; then they asked which of the two tribes (the Azd and the banu-Tamîm) were nearest to the Prophet and the caliphs in kinship and in influence, and were told "the banu-Tamîm." So they allied themselves with them. The chief of the banu-Tamîm at that time was al-Aḥnaf ibn-Ḳais. There was present at the battle of ar-Rabadhah in the days of ibn-az-Zubair a number of these

As for the Sayâbijah, the Zutt, and the Andaghâr,¹ they were in the army of the Persians, and consisted of people of as-Sind who had been taken captive and then enrolled in the ranks, together with the very raider who had captured them. When they heard what had happened in the case of the Asâwirah, they accepted Islam, coming to abu-Mûsa, who settled them in al-Başrah as he had the Asâwirah.

Tribes from as-Sind. Rauh bin-'Abd-al-Mu'min from Ya'kûb ibn-al-Ḥadrami from Sallâm who says:—There were brought to al-Ḥajjâj some of the Zutt of as-Sind and a number of different tribes from that province, accompanied by their families, their children, and their buffaloes, and he settled them in the lower parts of Kaskar.² (Rauh goes on to say:—) They possessed themselves of al-Baṭīḥah³ and multiplied therein.

They become rebellious. Some time afterwards there took refuge with them a number of fugitive black slaves, and marwâli of Dâhilah,⁴ and dependents of Muḥammad ibn-Sulaimân ibn-'Ali, and others, who encouraged them to highway robbery, and to take up arms in rebellion against the sultân.⁵ Up to this time they had contented themselves with asking some small doles, or taking away the best that the people who came in ships had, by cheating them to the best of their ability.

of al-Mû'min people had to give up passing along through them, and all the traffic of merchandise from al-Başrah in ships was cut off from Baghdâdh. When al-Mu'taşim-billâh became caliph,¹ he devoted his attention to them, and appointed to wage war against them a man of the people of Khurâsân called 'Ujaif ibn-'Anbasah,² supplying him with a contingent of officers and foot soldiers, and not refusing him any amount of funds he asked for. He organized between al-Baṭâ'ih and Madinat al-Salâm [Bagdad] a troop of horse, lean and shorn of tails. On a certain day or the first of the night news of the Zuṭt was brought to him in Madinat al-Salâm, and 'Ujaif ordered the water shut off, which was done in spite of great difficulties, so that they were taken without any casualties. 'Ujaif transported them to Madinat as-Salâm in small boats, and put some of them in Khânikin.³ and the rest of them he scattered in 'Ain Zarbah and the frontier. 376

Sayâbijah in the treasury of al-Başrah. A number of the Sayâbijah were appointed in the treasury of al-Basrah as agents. It is said that there were 40 of them. Others say 400. When Ṭalhah ibn-'Ubaidallâh and az-Zubair ibn-al-'Auwâm came to al-Başrah ('Uthmân ibn-Ḥunaif the Ansâri had been in charge of it previous to 'Ali ibn-abu-Ṭâlib), they refused to hand over the treasury at the accession of 'Ali. The appointees of 'Ali came upon them by stratagem and killed them, 'Abdallâh ibn-az-Zubair having charge of the affair together with a number who hastened to join him. Over the Sayâbijah at that time was abu-Sâlimah az-Zuṭṭi, an upright man.

ported the original Zuṭṭ and Sayâbijah to the coast of Sha'm [Syria] and Anṭâkiyah by kindly methods.¹ Al-Walid ibn-'Abd-al-Malik also removed a part of the Zuṭṭ to Anṭâkiyah and its environs.

Emigrants from Bukhârâ. 'Ubaidallâh ibn-Ziyâd enslaved some of the people of Bukhârâ. (Others say:—Not so, but they settled in obedience to an edict of his. Still, others say:—Not so, but he invited them, offering them security and a fixed stipend; and they settled on these conditions, and he established them in al-Baṣrah at their own request.) When al-Ḥajjâj built the city of Wâsiṭ he removed a great many of them to that city. Some of their descendants are there today, of whom is Khâlîd ash-Shâṭir, known as ibn-Marakili. He says the Andaghâr come from the regions of Kirmân where it adjoins Sijistân.

CHAPTER II

THE DISTRICTS OF AL-AHWÂZ

Sûk al-Ahwâz. Al-Mughirah ibn-Shu'bah raided Sûk al-Ahwâz during his rule, while 'Utbah ibn-Ghazwân was away from al-Başrah, in the last of the year 15 or the beginning of the year 16. Al-Birwâz, their dihkân, fought with him, but finally made peace for a payment of money. Afterwards he broke the treaty, and abu-Mûsa al-Ash'ari raided the city, when 'Umar ibn-al-Khaţţâb made him governor of al-Başrah after Mughirah. He subdued Sûk al-Ahwâz by assault, and conquered Nahr Tira in the same way, and governed this place himself in the year 17.

The accounts of abu-Mihnaf and al-Wâkidi. Abu-Mûsa came to al-Başrah and had Ziyâd write ¹ [to the caliph], and 'Umar ibn-al-Khaţţâb sent 'Imrân ibn-al-Ḥuşain al-Khuzâ'i, assigning him to teach the people jurisprudence and the Ḳurân and to be the lieutenant of abu-Mûsa when he was away from al-Başrah. Abu-Mûsa went to al-Ahwâz and kept on conquering village after village ² and canal after canal, and the Persians fled before him. He overcame the whole of the land except as-Sûs, Tustar, Manâdhir, and Râmhurmuz. 377

'Umar orders the captives set free. Al-Walid ibn-Şâlih from Marḥûm al-'Atţâr from his father from Shuwais al-'Adawi who says:—We came to al-Ahwâz in which were some of the Zuţţ and of the Asâwirah. We fought with them fiercely and defeated them, conquering and overcoming them, and making many captives whom we divided among ourselves. But 'Umar wrote to us, "It is not possible for you to inhabit the land; so release whatever captives are in your possession, and assess the kharāj upon them." Accordingly we set free the captives, and did not keep possession of them.

Al-Muhâjir devotes himself to martyrdom. Abu-Mûsa went also to Manâdhir and shut in its people, fighting fiercely with them. Al-Muhâjir ibn-Ziyâd al-Ĥârithi, the brother of ar-Rabî' ibn-Ziyâd ibn-ad-Daiyân, was among the troops. He was determined to devote himself,¹ and was fasting in preparation. Ar-Rabî' told abu-Mûsa, "Behold, al-Muhâjir has resolved to devote himself, and is fasting." And abu-Mûsa said, "I have resolved that every faster shall break his fast or not go out to fight." So al-Muhâjir took a drink of water, but he said, "I have obeyed the resolve of my commander. By Allah, I did not drink it from thirst." Then he went away with his sword and fought until he was martyred. And the people of Manâdhir took his head and set it up on their castle between two battlements.

About him was said the following:

"And in Manâdhir when they all were warring,
Al-Muhâjir went in fulfilment of an oath, with camels;
And his house, the house of the banu-d-Daiyân, we know
Among the family of Madhîj as the pearl of great price."

Manâdhir taken. Abu-Mûsa al-Ash'ari appointed ar-Rabî' ibn-Ziyâd as his lieutenant over Manâdhir and went on to as-Sûs. Ar-Rabî' subdued Manâdhir by force, killing its fighting men and making captives of the women and children. Manâdhir al-Kubra and aş-Şughra² both came into the possession of the Moslems, and over the two of them abu-Mûsa appointed as governor 'Âṣim ibn-Ḳais ibn-aṣ-Ṣalt as-Sulami; and over Sûḵ al-Ahwâz he appointed Samurah ibn-Jundab al-Ḳazâri, an ally of the Anṣâr.

Some say that 'Umar wrote to abu-Mûsa, while he was besieging Manâdhir, ordering him to appoint a lieutenant for that task, and to proceed himself to as-Sûs. So he appointed ar-Rabi' ibn-Ziyâd.

*Al-Muhallab's account.*¹ Sa'dawaih from Sharîk from abu-Ishâḳ from al-Muhallab ibn-abu-Ṣufrah who says:—We besieged Manâdhir and took captives among the booty. But 'Umar wrote that Manâdhir was as one of the cities of as-Sawâd,² saying, "Set free those whom ye have made captive."

The taking of as-Sûs. Abu-Mûsa went to as-Sûs³ and attacked its people. Then he besieged them until what food they had was consumed, and they were reduced to surrender. Their marzubân asked for safe-conduct to be given to eighty of them on condition that they open the gates of the city and surrender it. But when he named the eighty he left himself out, and abu-Mûsa ordered that he be beheaded. No harm was done to the eighty, but all the fighting men except them were put to death, their property seized, and their households enslaved.

*The tomb of Daniel.*⁴ Abu-Mûsa saw in their citadel a house upon which was a veil, and upon asking about it, was told that in it were the remains of Daniel the prophet. (Peace be upon him and upon the [other] prophets of Allah and upon his apostles.) Now the people of as-Sûs had been smitten with drought, and had asked the Babylonians to send Daniel to them in order that they might secure rain by his help. This was done. (Bakht Naṣṣar¹ had taken Daniel captive and had brought him to Babylon.) Thus Daniel came to die in Manâdhir. Abu-Mûsa wrote about this to 'Umar, who replied, "Wrap him in a shroud and bury him." Abu-Mûsa dammed up a river until he could bury him [in the river bed] while it was stopped. Then he let the water flow above him.

The account of Khâlid ibn-Zaid al-Muzani. Abu-'Ubaid al-Kâṣim ibn-Sallâm from Marwân ibn-Mu'âwiyah from Ḥumaid at-Ṭawil from Ḥabîb from Khâlid ibn-Zaid al-Muzani, whose eye was put out at as-Sûs, and who says:— We besieged that city under the command of abu-Mûsa, and [at first] we met with resistance. Then the dihkân made terms with abu-Mûsa, offering to open the city to him in return for safe-conduct from him for one hundred of its people. This he did after making a covenant with abu-Mûsa, who said to him, "Choose them out." While he was choosing them, abu-Mûsa said to his followers, "I hope that Allah will take his life." And when he had chosen the hundred, Allah's foe remained, and abu-Mûsa gave orders that he should be put to death; and although he cried out, "If thou wilt spare me, I will give thee a great sum of money," the commander refused and had him beheaded.

Reduction of Râmhurmuz. Abu-Mûsa made a truce with the people of Râmhurmuz,² but they broke their truce; so he sent to them abu-Miryam al-Ḥanafî, who made a new treaty with them for 800,000 dirhams [annual tribute].

Another account. Rauḥ ibn-'Abd-al-Mu'min from Ya'kûb from abu-Āṣim ar-Râmhurmuzî, who was about 100 years old, and who says:—Abu-Mûsa made terms with the people of Râmhurmuz for [an annual tribute of] eight or nine hundred thousand [dirhams.] Later they acted treacherously, and were subdued after a campaign which abu-Mûsa fought in the latter part of his life.

Surraḡ. Abu-Mûsa conquered Surraḡ,¹ giving them similar terms to those of Râmhurmuz. Some time after they rebelled, and he sent against them Ḥârithah ibn-Badr al-Ghudâni with a scratch army, but he failed to bring them to terms. When 'Abdallâh ibn-'Âmir arrived, he reduced them by assault. This Ḥârithah was afterwards governor of Surraḡ. In regard to him abu-l-Aswad ad-Du'ali says:

"Tell ibn-Badr Thou that rulest an empire,
Be in it like a rat, cautious and lurking.
For all men are either liars,
Saying what serves their desires, or truthful,
Uttering vain imaginings or guesses,
And if asked for proofs, they are dumbfounded.
But be not faint-hearted, for that is the worst habit,
For thy portion hath been stolen (surraḡ) from rich two-fold 'Irâk."

When the verses reached Ḥârithah he said:

"May the God of men grant thee his best reward,
For thou givest useful [counsel and] sufficient advice.
Thou bid'st me be resolute. Hadst bidden otherwise, Thou hadst found me rebellious 'gainst thy order."

Tustar. Abu-Mûsa went to Tustar,² in which was concentrated the main strength of the enemy. He wrote to 'Umar for reinforcements, and 'Umar wrote to 'Ammâr ibn-Yâsir, ordering him to take him troops from al-Kûfah. 'Ammâr put Jarîr ibn-'Abdallâh al-Bajali in charge, and marched until he came to Tustar. In command of his right wing (He means abu-Mûsa's right wing.) was al-Barâ' ibn-Mâlik, the brother of Anas ibn-Mâlik; over his

Fiercely defended. The people of Tustar opposed them fiercely, but the Baṣrans and Kūfans drove them back until they reached the gates of Tustar. Al-Barâ' ibn-Mâlik fought with them at the gate until he suffered martyrdom. Al-Hurmuzân and his followers retreated into the city in bad condition, 900 of them having been killed on the battle field and 600 captured. These were afterwards beheaded.

Al-Hurmuzân was a native of Mihrajânkadhaf¹ and had taken part with the Persians at the battle of Jalûlâ'.

Captured through treachery. Then one of the Persians asked for safety in exchange for guiding them to the polytheists' weak spot. He became a Moslem, stipulating that a pension be given to his son and to himself. Abu-Mûsa made a covenant with him to this effect, and sent with him a man of Shaibân, named Ashras ibn-'Auf. Together they waded the Dujail along a row of stones. When they had entered the city in this way, he pointed out al-Hurmuzân to Ashras, who then sent him back to the camp. Abu-Mûsa sent ahead forty men with Majzâh ibn-Thaur and had 200 men follow them up. This took place in the night, with the deserter leading them and taking them into the city. They killed the guards and shouted the takkîr upon the ramparts of the city. When al-Hurmuzân heard this he fled to his citadel, where he had his treasures and his possessions. Abu-Mûsa crossed the stream at dawn to enter the city and took possession of it. 381

Al-Hurmuzân said, "Surely the Arabs are a weak spot by some of those [Persians]. But they acted with the rising of the Moslems' cause and the setting of the Persians' cause, and they were subdued after the campaign of which 'Abu-Mûsa fought in the latter part of his life."

The deserter from the Persians set to killing his family and his children and throwing the Sarrah, leaving jail from fear that the Arabs would imitate the same time after similar terms to those of Râmîhuzâz.

The Persian leader, shahîd, al-Hurrîyah Bôz-Badd or al-Ghûdîyah with a scratch army, was defeated at the battle of Tamar. Upon decree of 'Umar, the Persians were to be put to death, all those in the ranks who did not govern safe-conduct. The Persians who did not govern safe-conduct were put to death. The Persians who did not govern safe-conduct were put to death.

In regard to the Sarrah, the Persians were to be put to death. The Persians who did not govern safe-conduct were put to death. The Persians who did not govern safe-conduct were put to death.

Al-Hurrîyah Bôz-Badd, afterwards suspected in connection with the murder of al-Mughîrah ibn-Sufyân, the murderer of truthful.

During his inquiries or guesses of 'Umar and 'Uthaydallâh ibn-'Umar said, "Let us go and look for a horse of mine." And if asked for proof, they said, "We have a horse of mine." But he was not allowed by that as the horse had been struck him with his sword, and he was taken, surrah, from him.

His audience, shahîd, al-Hurrîyah Bôz-Badd, from Marwan, the variously named, al-Hurrîyah Bôz-Badd, who says:— 38

We have been told that the Persians are a weak spot, and I was the one who was useful to you, and I gave you advice.

Ath-Thibân. 'Umar ibn-Ḥaṣṣ al-'Umari from abu-Ḥu-dhaifah from abu-l-Ashab from abu-Rajâ':—Ar-Rabî' ibn-Ziyâd conquered ath-Thibân by assault on order of abu-Mûsa. They afterwards revolted and Manjûf ibn-Thaur as-Sadûsi reconquered them.

Sanbil and Aidhaj. Among the places conquered by 'Abdallâh ibn-'Âmir were Sanbil¹ and az-Zuṭṭ whose populations had apostatized and with whom some of the Kurds of that region had joined themselves. He also subdued Aidhaj² after a fierce fight.

Daurak. Abu-Mûsa conquered as-Sûs, Tustar, and Daurak³ by assault.

Dhur-Rinâk. Al-Madâ'ini:—That ibn-dhul-Ḥarrah al-Ḥimyari conquered the fortress dhur-Rinâk.

Askar Mukram. Al-Madâ'ini from his teachers and 'Umar ibn-Shabbah from Mujâlid ibn-Yaḥya:—Muṣ'ab ibn-az-Zubair appointed Muṭarrif ibn-Sidân al-Bâhili, a member of the banu-Ji'âwah, to command his guard during part of the period of his governorship of al-'Irâq for his brother, 'Abdallâh ibn-az-Zubair. To Muṭarrif were brought two highwaymen, an-Nâbi ibn-Ziyâd ibn-Ṭhabyân, a member of the banu-'Â'ish ibn-Mâlik ibn-Taim-Allâh ibn-Tha'labah ibn-'Ukâbah, and a man of the banu-Numair. He had an-Nâbi put to death but the Numairi he had flogged and discharged. And when Muṭarrif was removed from the command of the guard and became wâlî of al-Ahwâz, 'Ubaidallâh ibn-Ziyâd ibn-Ṭhabyân gathered a crowd together and started out after him. The two met and stopped with a canal between them. Muṭarrif ibn-Sidân crossed over, and ibn-Ṭhabyân immediately leaped upon him, thrust him through with his spear, and killed him. Muṣ'ab sent Mukram ibn-Muṭarrif after the slayer. He went until he reached the place which is known today as 'Askar Mukram,¹ but did not meet ibn-Thabyân. The latter met with 'Abd-al-Malik ibn-Marwân and with him attacked Muṣ'ab, killed him, and cut off his head. 'Askar Mukram is named after this Mukram ibn-Muṭarrif. Al-Ba'ith as-Sukkari says:

"We gave ibn-Sidân to drink in an overflowing cup.

It sufficed us, though the best would not have sufficed us."

Others say that 'Askar Mukram was only named after Mukram ibn-al-Fazr, a member of the banu-Ja'wanah ibn-al-Ḥârith ibn-Numair, whom al-Ḥajjâj had sent on the campaign against Kharzâd ibn-Bâs, the time he rebelled. Mukram came up with him at Aidhaj, but Kharzâd fortified himself in the fortress of that name. When the siege began to drag out, he came down, concealed in a disguise, with the purpose of getting to 'Abd-al-Malik. But Mukram got the better of him and captured him with two pearls in his cap and sent him to al-Ḥajjâj, who beheaded him.

They relate that there was near 'Askar Mukram an old village which the buildings of the city afterwards reached. Then it kept on growing until it was a great city, and the whole thing was called 'Askar Mukram. It is today an extensive metropolis.

Ḥamzah ibn-'Abdallâh. Abu-Mas'ûd from 'Awânah:— 'Abdallâh ibn-az-Zubair appointed as governor of al-Baṣrah Ḥamzah ibn-'Abdallâh ibn-az-Zubair, who made an expedition to al-Ahwâz, and when he caught sight of its mountain, he said, "It is like Ḳu'aika'ân."²

Name of al-Ahwâz. Ath-Thauri says that al-Ahwâz was called in the Persian Hûzmasîr, and was named [by the Arabs] al-Akhwâz, but people changed it and said al-Ahwâz, and he quotes the following verses of al-A'râbi:

"Do not send me back again to al-Akhwâz
And Ka'ka'an beside the ~~market~~...
And the river Baṭṭ, which kept me awake at night,
The mosquitoes in it ruthlessly¹ stinging.
For what is the joy his soul promised him
From al-Ḥusaini or 'Amr in very sooth?"

The River al-Baṭṭ. The river al-Baṭṭ is a canal near which was a pasture for ducks [baṭṭ]. People in general said "Nahr Baṭṭ" just as they said "Dâr Biṭṭikh" [melon-patch]. I heard some one say that the canal belonged to a woman called al-Baṭ'ah, and it was named after her, the name being afterwards shortened.

Al-Ahwâs conquered by force. Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from al-Wâḳidi from Muḥammad ibn-'Abdallâh from az-Zuhri:—"Umar conquered as-Sawâd and al-Ahwâz by force. He was asked to divide this land, but said, "What then shall there be for those Moslems who come after us?" And he put the inhabitants in the category of dhimmis.²

The 'amils are accused of graft. Al-Madâ'ini from 'Ali ibn-Ḥammâd and Suḥaim ibn-Ḥafṣ and others:—Abu-l-Mukhtâr Yazîd ibn-Ḳais ibn-Yazîd ibn-aṣ-Ṣa'ik recited to 'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb some verses about the 'amils of al-Ahwâz and others:—

"Send to the Commander of the Believers a letter and say:
Verily, thou art the confirmed of Allah to command or forbid.
Yea, thou art Allah's confirmed among us, and whoever is Entrusted with the Lord's commission, I do trust.
Let not the people of countrysides and towns thoughtlessly Swallow up the wealth of Allah in countless dishes.
Send to al-Hajjâj and learn his account;
Send to Jaz', and send to Bishr;

² Hitti, pp. 422-3.

And do not forget the two Nâfi's, either of them;
 Nor ibn-Ghalâb, noblest of the banu-Naşr;
 Nor is 'Āṣim of their number with empty wallet;
 Nor that fellow in as-Sûk, the mawla of banu-Badr.
 Send also to an-Nu'mân and learn his account;
 And the brother-in-law of banu-Ghazwân I've heard of.
 Ask for the money from Shibl and from ibn-Muḥarrish,
 For he is notorious among the provincials.
 So divide up with them. I pledge my people as thy ransom.
 They will be pleased if they leave them half.
 But do not call me in to testify, for I Am hid—though I see the wonder of the age.
 We return when they return, and raid when they raid;
 How, then, have they abundance, while we have nought?
 When the merchant of Dârin brings a flask of perfume,
 It will soon be spread over their hair."

'Umar mulcts them. 'Umar took from those whom abu-l-Mukhtâr mentions half of all their property, even taking one sandal and leaving the other. Among them was abu-Bakrah, who protested, "I have not held any office under thee!" But 'Umar said to him, "Thy brother is in charge of the treasury and the tithes of al-Ubullah, and he lets thee have money with which to engage in trade." And so he took from him 10,000 dirhams. (Others say that he confiscated half his wealth.)

The offices of these 'âmils. The al-Ḥajjâj named here is al-Ḥajjâj ibn-'Atik ath-Thaḳafi, who was in charge of al-Furât. Jaz' ibn-Mu'âwiyah was the uncle of al-Aḥnaf and ruled Surrak. Bishr ibn-al-Muḥtafiz was in charge of Jundaisâbûr. The two Nâfi's are Nufai' abu-Bakrah and his brother, Nâfi' ibn-al-Ḥârith ibn-Kaladah. Ibn-Ghalâb is Khâlid ibn-al-Ḥârith of the banu-Duhmân and was in charge of the treasury in Iṣbahân. 'Āṣim ibn-Ḳais ibn-aṣ-Salt as-Sulami was over Manâdhir, and he who was in as-Sûk is Samurah ibn-Jundâb in charge of Sûk al-Ahwâz. An-Nu'mân ibn-'Adi ibn-Maḍlah ibn-'Abd-al-'Uzza ibn-Ḥurthân of the banu-'Adi ibn-Ka'b ibn-Lu'ai was over the districts of the Tigris. It is he who said:

“Who will tell al-Ḥasnâ’ that her beloved
 In Maisân is drinking with glass and flagon?
 At my desire the burgomasters sing to me,
 And the cymbalist sways this way and that.
 Perhaps the Commander of the Believers is displeased
 At our banqueting in the ruined tower.”

‘Umar, when these verses reached him, said, “Yes, by Allah, I am indeed displeased at this.” And he removed him from office.

The brother-in-law of the banu-Ghazwân is Mujâshi‘ ibn-Mas‘ûd as-Sulami, in whose household was the daughter of ‘Utbah ibn-Ghazwân. He was in charge of the land of al-Basrah and its alms-tax. Shibl ibn-Ma‘bad al-Bajali (further surnamed al-Aḥmasi) was in charge of the division of the booty, and ibn-Muharrish was over Râmhurmuz.

Land titles adjudicated. ‘Ausajah ibn-Ziyâd al-Kâtib 386 says:—Ar-Rashîd the Commander of the Believers granted to ‘Uбайдallâh ibn-al-Mahdi the right to farm the land of al-Ahwâz, but some question arose in regard to it, and some one brought the matter to the attention of al-Ma‘mûn, who ordered an investigation and adjustment of the case. Titles about which there was no question he confirmed, and what there was any question about he labeled “doubtful” (mash-kûk). This was well-known in al-Ahwâz.

PART XVII
FÂRS AND KIRMÂN

CHAPTER I

FÂRS

Abarkâwân. Al-'Alâ ibn-al-Ḥaḍrami the 'âmil of 'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb over al-Baḥrain sent Harthamah ibn-'Arfajah al-Bâriḳi of the Azd and he conquered one of the islands in the sea near to Fârs.¹ Then 'Umar wrote to al-'Alâ, to have him (i. e. Harthamah) go to the aid of 'Utbah ibn-Farḳad as-Sulami, which was done.² When later 'Umar appointed 'Uthmân ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi ath-Thaḳafi governor of al-Baḥrain and 'Umân, and he had subdued them and brought their inhabitants into obedience, he sent his brother al-Ḥakam ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi against Fârs by sea with a strong army from the tribes of 'Abd-al-Ḳais, the 'Azd, the Tamim, the banu-Nâjīyah, and others. Al-Ḥakam conquered the island of Abarkâwân;³ later he went as far as Tawwaj⁴ belonging to the land of Ardashîr Khurrah.⁵ (The meaning of Ardashîr Khurrah is "the splendor [bahâ] of Ardashîr.")

Tawwaj. According to the account of abu-Mikhnaf, 'Uthmân ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi himself crossed the sea to Fârs and landed at Tawwaj, conquered it, built the mosques, made it a dwelling for the Moslems, and settled the 'Abd-al-Ḳais and other tribes there. And he used to make incursions from it against Arrajân,¹ which bordered upon it. Afterwards he went from Fârs to 'Umân and al-Bahrain, having received instructions from 'Umar to do so, and left his brother, al-Ḥakam, in his place as governor.

Another authority than abu-Mikhnaḥ says that al-Ḥakam conquered Tawwaj and colonized it with Moslems of 'Abd-al-Ḳais and other tribes in the year 19.

Battle of Râshahr. They say that Shahrak,² the satrap [marzubân] and governor of Fârs, was impressed by such advances as the Arabs had made upon Fârs and worried; he heard of their slaughter and their victory over every one of their enemies that met them, and he collected a strong force and betook himself in person to Râshahr³ of the land of Sâbûr in the neighborhood of Tawwaj. Al-Ḥakam ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi came out to meet him, with Sawwâr ibn-Hammâm⁴ in command of his van, and a fierce battle ensued.

There was in this place a wâdi, to guard which Shahrak had appointed one of his chieftains with a company, ordering him to kill any fugitive from his followers who should attempt to pass it. One of the bravest of the knights approached, fleeing from the battle, and the captain was about to kill him; but the fugitive said to him, "Do not kill me! For we are fighting a victorious people with whom Allah is." He set up a stone and shot at it with an arrow and split it in two; then he said, "Dost thou see this arrow which split the stone? By Allah, it would not scratch one of them were it shot at him." The other replied, "There is no escape from thy being killed." But just then the news came to him of the death of Shahrak.

The one who killed him was Sawwâr ibn-Hammâm¹ al-'Abdi, who had charged upon him, with his spear, and unhorsed him, and then struck him with his sword until he was dead. The son of Shahrak then charged upon Sawwâr and killed him. But Allah defeated the polytheists, and Râshahr was conquered by force. The battle there in respect to its violence and the greatness of Allah's favor to the Moslems was comparable to the battle of al-Ḳâdisiyah.

'Amr ibn-al-Ahtam at-Tamîmi reported the victory to 'Umar ibn-al-Ḳhaṭṭâb in these words:

"I am come to the leader in haste to tell him
Aright of the news of al-'Abdi Sawwâr—
News of a wonderful and fortunate one, his soul employed
In the path of Allah, araiding."

Some of the people of Tawwaj say:—Tawwaj was made a capital city² after the death of Shahrak. Allah knows best.

'Uthmân makes Tawwaj his headquarters. Later 'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb wrote to 'Uthmân ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi to invade Fârs. The latter left as his lieutenant in charge of his governorship his brother, al-Mughirah. (Others say it was Ḥafṣ ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi, who was a man of sound judgment.) 'Uthmân came to Tawwaj and made his camp there, making raids from that point and returning thereto.

Raids by abu-Mûsa. 'Umar wrote also to abu-Mûsa who was in al-Baṣrah, ordering him to aid and assist 'Uthmân ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi. He made various attacks upon Fârs from al-Baṣrah, returning thereto after each raid.

Shabîr captured. 'Uthmân ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi sent Harim ibn- 388

Ḥayyân al-'Abdi against a fortress called Shabîr, which he conquered by force after siege and battle. (Some say it was the fortress of as-Satûj that Harim conquered by force.

Khurrah. 'Uthmân went to Khurrah¹ of Sâbûr and conquered it and its territory (after its inhabitants had engaged in battle with him) by capitulation upon condition of paying jizyah and kharâj and giving counsel to the Moslems.

Kâzarûn and Nûbandajân. 'Uthmân ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi conquered Kâzarûn² of Sâbûr and subdued its territory. He also conquered an-Nûbandajân³ of Sâbûr and subdued it.

Arrajân and Shîrâz. Abu-Mûsa and 'Uthmân ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi joined forces in the latter part of the caliphate of 'Umar, and the two of them conquered Arrajân⁴ by capitulation on condition of [paying] jizyah and kharâj. They also conquered Shîrâz,⁵ which is part of the land of Ardashîr Khurrah, on condition that they be *dhimmi*s, paying the kharâj, (except those of them who preferred to emigrate) without any being killed or enslaved.

Sinîz. They conquered Sinîz,⁶ part of the land of Ardashîr Khurrah, its people being left to cultivate the land.

Jannâbâ. 'Uthmân conquered the castle of Jannâbâ⁷ by surrender, granting amân.

Darâbjird. 'Uthmân ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi went to Darâbjird⁸ which was the center ¹ of their science and religion and in command of which was al-Hirbadh. The latter made terms with 'Uthmân for a sum of money which he paid him and on condition that the inhabitants of Darâbjird should all of them have the same rights as the cities which were conquered from the people of Fârs.

Jahram. There assembled against him in the regions of Jahram ² a force which he dispersed, and he subdued the land of Jahram.

Fasâ. 'Uthmân went to Fasâ, ³ whose magnate ('aṭhim) made peace with him on terms similar to those of Darâbjird. Others say that al-Hirbadh obtained the terms for it also.

Sâbûr. 'Uthmân ibn-abu-l-Âṣi went against the city of Sâbûr ⁴ in the year 23. (Others say in the year 24, before abu-Mûsa received the news of his appointment as governor of al-Baṣrah for 'Uthmân ibn-'Affân.) He found its people in awe of the Moslems. The brother of Shahrak dreamt that an Arab entered to him and deprived him of his tunic; and this caused him great perturbation (lit. "took the heart out of him"). He held out a little while; then he asked terms of surrender, and 'Uthmân made terms with him, the conditions being that none of them should be killed or enslaved, but that they should be dhimmis and straightway pay a sum of money.

Sâbûr rebels. Afterwards the people of Sâbûr rebelled and broke the treaty, and were reconquered in the year 26 by abu-Mûsa with 'Uthmân ibn-abu-l-Âṣi in command of his van. 389

Al-Jarûd killed. Ma'mar ibn-al-Muthanna and others say:—'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb ordered al-Jarûd al-'Abdi to be sent against the fortresses of Fârs in the year 22. When he was between Khurrah and Shirâz he separated himself from his followers on a hill there one morning for his necessity, with a water bottle [for ablution]. A band of Kurds surrounded and killed him,¹ and this hill was thereafter called 'Aḳabat-al-Jarûd.²

Iṣṭakhr and Jûr. When 'Abdallâh ibn-'Âmir ibn-Kuraiz governed al-Baṣrah for 'Uṭhmân ibn-'Affân after abu-Mûsa al-Ash'ari, he attacked Iṣṭakhr³ in the year 28, and Mâhak made terms with him for the people thereof. Then he set out towards Jûr,⁴ and the people of Iṣṭakhr upon his departure from them broke the compact and killed the 'âmil he had placed over them. Then when he had conquered Jûr, he came back against them and conquered them again.

Other versions. Harim ibn-Ḥayyân remained in command of Jûr, a city of Ardashir Khurrah which the Moslems had captured; then withdrew from it to attack Iṣṭakhr and raid the regions which had rebelled against them. When ibn-'Âmir arrived there with his forces, they attacked him, and then entrenched themselves, but he conquered them with the sword by force. This was in the year 29. Ibn-'Âmir also conquered al-Kâriyân⁵ and Fashjâtan⁶ (i. e. al-Fîshajân) of Darâbjird which had had no part in the treaty of al-Hirbadh and the breaking of it.

Jûr subdued by ibn-‘Âmir. Many people of learning relate:—Jûr was raided a number of years, but was not overcome until ibn-‘Âmir conquered it. The cause of its conquest was as follows: One of the Moslems stood praying one night with a leather wallet of his by his side with bread and meat in it. A dog came up and snatched it and ran with it until he entered the city by a concealed entrance. The Moslems followed closely to this entrance and so entered through it and conquered the city.¹

Ibn-‘Âmir reduces Iṣṭakhr. When ‘Abdallâh ibn-‘Âmir had completed the conquest of Jûr, he returned to deal with the people of Iṣṭakhr, conquering them by force after fierce fighting, casting with siege engines (manâjanîḳ), and killing therewith 40,000 of the Persians, and wiping out most of the noble families together with the chiefs of the horsemen ² 39| who had taken refuge there.

Some traditionists say:—Ibn-‘Âmir returned to Iṣṭakhr as soon as he learned of their breaking faith, and conquered the city. Then he went to Jûr with Harim ibn-Ḥayyân commanding his vanguard, and took it.

Iṣṭakhr again rebels. Al-Ḥasan ibn-‘Uthmân az-Ziyâdi:—The inhabitants of Iṣṭakhr rebelled during the governorship of ‘Abdallâh ibn-‘Abbâs over al-‘Irâḳ for ‘Ali, and ‘Abdallâh reconquered it.

Abu-Mikhnaf’s account. Al-‘Abbâs ibn-Hishâm from his father from abu-Mikhnaf:—Ibn-‘Âmir set out against Iṣṭakhr, sending in command of his van ‘Ubaidallâh ibn-Ma‘mar at-Taimi. The inhabitants of Iṣṭakhr met him in Râmjird.³ ‘Ubaidallâh attacked them and was killed by them, and was buried in a garden in Râmjird. The news came to ibn-‘Âmir, who approached in haste until he fell suddenly upon them with abu-Barzah Naḍlah ibn-ʿAbdallāh al-Aslami in command of his right wing, Maʿkīl ibn-Yasār al-Muzani over his left, ʿImrān ibn-al-Ḥuṣāin al-Khuzāʾi over the horse, and over the foot Khālid ibn-al-Muʿammar adh-Dhuhli. He attacked them and put them to rout and forced them to withdraw into Iṣṭakhr. Allah conquered the city by force.

Ibn-ʿĀmir killed in the neighborhood of 100,000 of them, and then went to Darābjird and subdued it, they having broken the treaty. Then he turned towards Kirmān.

Shuhriyāj surrenders to Moslem slave. ʿAmr an-Nāḳid from Marwān ibn-Muʿāwiyah al-Fazāri from ʿĀṣim al-Aḥwal from Fuḍail ibn-Zaid ar-Raḳḳāshi, who says:—We had besieged Shuhriyāj ¹ a month or more and had thought we were going to take it in a day or so. And one day we attacked its inhabitants and returned to our camp, but a black slave remained behind—a deserter they thought him—wrote a guarantee of protection [amān] for them and shot it to them with an arrow. In the evening we began the attack again, but they came out from their castle and said, “This is your guarantee of protection.” We wrote about this to ʿUmar and he wrote to us, “A Moslem slave is a Moslem; therefore his protection has the full value of theirs. So let his guarantee be effective.” And so we carried out its terms.

Al-Kāsim ibn-Sallām from abu-n-Naḍr from Shuʿbah from ʿĀṣim from al-Fuḍail:—We were drawn up in battle array against the enemy in Sirāf ² . . . (Then he relates about the same.)

were besieging a castle, and a slave wrote a guarantee of protection and shot it to the enemy by means of a dart. The Moslems said, "His guarantee is worth nothing." But the people [of the castle] said, "We cannot tell the difference between slave and free" A letter was written about this to 'Umar, who replied, "The favor of a Moslem slave's protection is identical with that of a free man."

One of the inhabitants of Fârs told me that the castle of Sirâf is called Sûryânj. The Arabs named it Shuhriyâj.

Fortress of Kharashah. In Fasâ is a fortress known as the fortress of Kharashah ibn-Mas'ûd of the banu-Tamîm (and of the banu-Shaḡirah), who was with ibn-al-Ash'ath. He fortified himself in this fortress, but [later] made a treaty. He died in Wâsit, but he had descendants in Fasâ.

KIRMÂN

Satrap of Kirmân killed. In the island of Abarkâwân 'Uthmân ibn-abu-l-Âṣi ath-Thakāfi met the marzubân ¹ [of Kirmân] with a small troop and killed him. This caused the inhabitants of Kirmân ² to weaken and lose heart.

Expedition under Mujâshi'. When ibn-Âmir invaded Fârs, he sent Mujâshi' ibn-Mas'ûd as-Sulami to Kirmân in pursuit of Yazdajird. He came to Bimandh, ³ but his army was wiped out there. Later when ibn-Âmir went on his expedition to Khurâsân, ⁴ he appointed Mujâshi' governor of Kirmân. The latter took Bimandh by assault but spared the population and granted them an amân. In this place is a castle known as Ḳaṣr Mujâshi'.

Ash-Shîrajân. Mujâshi' also captured Barûkhrawah and came to ash-Shîrajân, ⁵ the city of Kirmân, and besieged it a few days. Its inhabitants set to fortifying themselves, while their cavalry made sorties against the Moslems, but Mujâshi' attacked them and took the city by assault. He left a man there, but most of the inhabitants emigrated.

He captured Jirāft³ by storm. He went through Kirmān and subdued it as far as al-Ḳufṣ.⁴ There assembled against him in Hurmūz⁵ a number of Persian fugitives. He attacked, routed and defeated them.

Many emigrate. Many from among the inhabitants of Kirmān fled and crossed the sea. Some went to Makrān, and some as far as Sijistān. The Arabs took possession of their dwellings and their lands, cultivating the latter, and paying the tithe thereon, and digging water channels in some places.

Ḳaṭan governor for al-Ḥajjāj. Al-Ḥajjāj appointed Ḳaṭan⁶ ibn-Ḳabiṣah ibn-Mukhāriḳ al-Hilālī governor of Fārs and Kirmān. He is the one who came to a water course (nahr) which his followers thought impassable. He said, "A thousand dirhams to whoever crosses it." They crossed it and he paid up. This was the origin of the use of the word jā'izah (passage) in the sense of "gift".⁷ In regard to this the poet al-Jahhāf ibn-Ḥukaim says:

"As a ransom for the noble sons of Hilāl

In all their circumstances, my people and all I have [I offer].

They originated the passage-gifts,

Which became a custom of later days.

[May] their spears prevail against a score,

Whenever they meet the enemy."

So grant me patience for what Ḳaṭan shall bring.”

Ibn-Ziyâd appointed Sharik ibn-al-A'war al-Ḥârithi (i. e. Sharik ibn-al-Ḥârith) to govern Kirmân and wrote to him on behalf of Yazîd ibn-Ziyâd ibn-Rabi' ibn-Mufarrâgh al-Ḥimyari, and he assigned him land in Kirmân which was afterwards bought by Harb ibn-Ziyâd of al-Baṣrah.

Mosque and Residence of Arrajân. Al-Ḥajjâj appointed al-Ḥakam ibn-Nahîk al-Hujaimi governor of Kirmân after making him governor of Fârs. Al-Ḥakam built the mosque of Arrajân and the official residence.

PART XVIII
SIJISTÂN AND KÂBUL

CHAPTER I

‘UTHMÂN TO MARWÂN I

Ibn-‘Āmir’s expedition to Khurâsân. ‘Ali ibn-Muḥammad and others:—‘Abdallâh ibn-‘Āmir ibn-Kuraiz ibn-Rabī‘ah ibn-Ḥabīb ibn-Abd-Shams set out for Khurâsân in the year 30. He encamped with his army at Shaḳḳ ash-Shîrajân of Kirmân and sent ar-Rabī ibn-Ziyâd ibn-Anas 393 ibn-ad-Dayyân al-Ḥârithi on to Sijistân.¹ The latter traveled until he found a camping place at al-Fahraj.² Then he cut across the desert (a distance of 75 parasangs) and came to the district of Zâlik.³ From Zâlik to Sijistân is five parasangs. Zâlik is a fortress. He made an attack upon its people on the day of Mihrijân,⁴ and captured its dihkân, but spared his life in return for his sticking up a javelin and covering it with gold and silver. And he gave the dihkân a treaty, agreeing not to shed his blood.

Abu-‘Ubaidah Ma‘mar ibn-al-Muthanna says that the terms of the treaty with him were that his city should be like one of the captured cities of Fârs and Kirmân.

The advance to Zaranj. Then ar-Rabī went to a village called Karkûyah⁵ at a distance of five miles from Zâlik. They made peace with him without offering any resistance.

Next he pitched camp in a district called Haysûn,¹ whose inhabitants allowed him to camp there, making peace with him on condition that there should be no fighting. Then he went to Zâlik, from which he obtained guides to Zaranj,² proceeding until he reached the Hindmand.³ Crossing one of its affluents, a wâdi called Nûk,⁴ he arrived at Zûsht, distant two thirds of a mile from Zaranj. The inhabitants made a sortie against him and opposed him fiercely, a number of the Moslems being wounded. Then the Moslems rallied and put them to rout, finally driving them into the city after killing a great many.

Nâshrûdh. Then ar-Rabî' went to the town of Nâshrûdh.⁵ He attacked its people and was victorious over them. 'Abd-ar-Rahmân took captive here abu-Şâlih ibn-'Abd-ar-Rahmân (who wrote to al-Ḥajjâj in place of Zadânifarrûkh ibn-Nira and who had charge of the kharâj of al-'Irâk for Sulaimân ibn-'Abd-al-Malik) and his mother. He was bought by a woman named 'Ablah of the banu-Tamîm (i. e. of the banu-Murrah ibn-'Ubaid ibn-Mukâ'is ibn-'Amr ibn-Ka'b ibn-Sa'd ibn-Zaid Manâh ibn-Tamîm).

Sharwâdh. Ar-Rabî' then advanced from Nâshrûdh to the town of Sharwâdh,⁶ which he reduced, capturing in it the grandfather of Ibrâhîm ibn-Bassâm, who became the slave of ibn-'Umar al-Laithi.

Zaranj taken. He next besieged the city of Zaranj after being attacked by its inhabitants. Abarwîz, its satrap, sent to him, asking for safe-conduct in order to treat with him 394 for peace. The Moslem commander ordered one of the bodies of the slain to be brought to him. He took his seat upon it and leaned back against another, and had his followers sit upon corpses of the slain. Ar-Rabî‘ was dark, wide-mouthed, and tall, and when the satrap saw him he was in awe of him and made peace with him for 1,000 slaves, each slave with a cup of gold. And so Ar-Rabî‘ entered the city.

Sanârûdh. Then he advanced to the wâdi Sanârûdh.¹ Crossing it, he went to al-Ḳaryatân, where there was a stable of the horse of Rustam. He met with opposition but was victorious. He advanced then to Zaranj and remained there two years.

Then ibn-‘Âmir came and appointed as his lieutenant in that city a member of the banu-l-Ḥârith ibn-Ka‘b, but the inhabitants expelled him and closed up the city to the Moslems.

Ar-Rabî‘ took many captives. The term of the administration of ar-Rabî‘ was two years and a half, and in his time he made 40,000 captives. His scribe was al-Ḥasan of al-Baṣrah.

Ibn-Samurah governs Sijistân. Ibn-‘Âmir next appointed as governor of Sijistân ‘Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Samurah ibn-Ḥabîb ibn-‘Abd-Shams. He went to Zaranj and surrounded its satrap in his castle on one of their festal days. The latter made peace with him for 2,000,000 dirhams and 2,000 slaves. As for ibn-Samurah, he established his rule over everything between Zaranj and Kishsh² of the land of al-Hind, and over that part of the region of the road of ar-Rukhkhaj³ which is between it and the province of ad-Dâwar.⁴

The golden idol of az-Zûr. When he got as far as the provinces of ad-Dâwar, he surrounded the enemy in the mountain of az-Zûr.¹ They soon surrendered to him. The number of Moslems with him was 8,000 and each man of them received 4,000 dirhams. Ibn-Samurah went into the temple of the Zûr, an idol of gold with two rubies for eyes, and cut off a hand and took out the rubies. Then he said to the satrap, "Keep the gold and the gems. I only wanted to show you that it had no power to harm or help."

Bust and Zâbul. He obtained control of Bust² and Zâbul³ by covenant ('ahd).

Al-Ḥusain ibn-al-Aswad from Waki' from Ḥammâd ibn-Zaid from Yahya ibn-'Atîk from Muḥammad ibn-Sîrîn:—He did not want to take prisoners from Zâbul, saying that 'Uthmân had made a compact (walth) with them.

Waki' says:—He made an agreement ('aḥd') with them, which is inferior to a covenant ('ahd).

Umair succeeds ibn-Samurah. 'Abd-ar-Raḥmân went to Zaranj and remained there until the affairs of 'Uthmân became disturbed. Then he appointed Umair ibn-Aḥmar al-Yashkuri to take his place and withdrew from Sijistân himself. Of Umair says Ziyâd al-A'jam: 395

"Except for Umair, Yashkur had perished.

But Yashkur perished anyhow."

Subsequently the people of Zaranj expelled Umair and closed the town.

The "Beggar Army." When 'Ali ibn-abu-Ṭâlib had made an end of the affair of the Camel, Ḥasakah ibn-'Attâb al-Ḥabaṭi and 'Imrân ibn-al-Faṣîl al-Burjumi made an expedition with a band of Arab beggars to Zâliḳ, whose people had rebelled. From it they obtained money as well as slaves, among whom was the grandfather of al-Bukhtari, al-Aṣamm ibn-Mujâhid, maula of Shaibân. Next they went to Zaranj, whose satrap out of fear of them made terms of peace and let them enter the city. The poet says:

“Announce to Sijistân the news of famine and war,
Of ibn-al-Faṣil and his band of Arab beggars, Voracious of silver and gold.”

Ibn-Jaz’ killed by them. ‘Ali ibn-abu-Ṭâlib dispatched ‘Abd-ar-Rahmân ibn-Jaz’ at-Ṭâ’i to Sijistân, but Ḥasakah killed him. And ‘Ali said, “Verily, I will kill 4,000 of the Ḥabaṭât.” Some one said to him, “But the Ḥabaṭât do not number five hundred.”

‘Aun ibn-Ja’dah killed. Abu-Mikhnaf says:—‘Ali dispatched ‘Aun ibn-Ja’dah ibn-Hubaira al-Makhzûmi to Sijistân, but Bahdâla at-Ṭâ’i, the thief, killed him on the ‘Irâk road.

Rib’i appointed. ‘Ali wrote to ‘Abdallâh ibn-al-‘Abbâs, ordering him to appoint some one as governor of Sijistân with a force of 4,000. He accordingly sent Rib’i ibn-al-Kâs al-‘Anbari with 4,000. He was accompanied on the expedition by al-Ḥuṣain ibn-abu-l-Ḥurr (the name of abu-l-Ḥurr being Mâlik ibn-al-Khashkhâsh al-‘Anbari), and by Ṭhât ibn-dhul-Ḥarrah al-Ḥimyari, who was in command of the vanguard. When they arrived at Sijistân, they were attacked by Ḥasakah, but killed him, and Rib’i established order in the country.

One of their poet says:

“We who rushed rashly into Sijistân
Against ibn-‘Aṭṭâb and the army of Shaitân,
Our leader the glorious ‘Abd-ar-Rahmân,
Lo! we found in the bright guidance of the Kūrân
That we should not unite with the faction of ibn-‘Affân.”

(Ṭhât’s name was ‘Abd-ar-Rahmân, and Fairûz Ḥuṣain was named after Ḥuṣain ibn-abu-l-Ḥurr. This Fairûz was one of the captives of Sijistân.)

Ibn-ʿĀmir appoints ibn-Samurah. Mu-âwiyah ibn-abu-Sufyân, when he became ruler, made ibn-ʿĀmir his ʿāmil over al-Baṣrah, and the latter appointed as governor of Sijistân ʿAbd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Samurah. He went there accompanied by ʿAbbâd ibn-al-Ḥuṣain al-Ḥabaṭi in command of the guard, and by the following nobles (ashrâf): ʿUmar ibn-ʿUbaidallâh ibn-Maʿmar at-Taimi, ʿAbdallâh ibn-Khâzim as-Sulami, Kâtari ibn-al-Fujâʿah, and al-Muhallab ibn-abu-Sufrah.

Advances to Kâbul. He raided the country, whose people had apostatized, and subdued it either by force, or by making treaties with its people, advancing as far as Kâbul.¹ When he got there, he pitched his camp and besieged the inhabitants some months, attacking them continually, and pelting at them with his manjaniks until a great breach was made. ʿAbbâd ibn-al-Ḥuṣain made an attack upon it by night, fighting the polytheists with spears until dawn came, but without being able to overcome the defense. Ibn-Khâzim took part with him in this fight to take the city.

The elephant. When the darkness dawned, they made a sortie, attacking the Moslems, and ibn-Khâzim wounded an elephant that was with them, and it fell at the gate from which they had issued, so that they could not close the gate, and the Moslems entered the city by force.

Abu-Mikhnaf says that the one who slew the elephant was al-Muhallab.

Al-Ḥasan al-Baṣri used to say, "I did not think that one man could withstand a thousand until I saw ʿAbbâd ibn-al-Ḥuṣain."

Further conquests. ʿAbd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Samurah sent ʿUmar ibn-ʿAbaidallâh ibn-Maʿmar and al-Muhallab ibn-abu-Sufrah with news of the victory. Then he went out across the wādi Naṣl, coming next to Khuwāsh¹ and Kūzân Bust, which he conquered by force, proceeding to Razân,² whose inhabitants fled. And he subdued the region.

Next he went to Khushshak whose people capitulated. After this he came to ar-Rukhkaj. He met with opposition, but overcame it and conquered the city. Then he advanced to Dhâbulistân.³ The inhabitants, who had broken the treaty, attacked him, but he defeated them, obtaining captives. He went on to Kâbul, whose people had broken the treaty, and conquered them.

Ibn-Samurah governor. Mu'âwiyah subsequently appointed 'Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Samurah to govern Sijistân for him, dispatching to him his commission. He continued in charge of the land until Ziyâd came to al-Baṣrah.

Death of ibn-Samurah. Ziyâd left him in office some months. Then he appointed to it ar-Rabi' ibn-Ziyâd. Ibn-Samurah died in al-Baṣrah in the year 50, and Ziyâd conducted his funeral. He was the man to whom the Prophet said, "Do not ask for authority, for if you get it without asking, you can give it up when you get tired of it; but if you are given it for asking, you are under obligations to keep it. If you make a vow, and the event is good, you have to make good your vow."

'Abd-ar-Raḥmân took with him to al-Baṣrah slaves captured at Kâbul, and they built him a mosque in his castle there after the Kâbul style of building.

Kâbul and Dhâbulistân revolt. Then Kâbul-Shah assembled a force to oppose the Moslems and drove out all of them that were in Kâbul. And Ratbil came and gained control of Dhâbulistân and ar-Rukhkaj as far as Bust. Ar-

Rabī' ibn-Ziyād led out his men and attacked Ratbīl at Bust, put him to flight, and pursued him until he reached ar-Rukhkhaj. After attacking him in ar-Rukhkhaj, he continued to advance, and subdued the city of ad-Dāwar.

'Ubaidallāh supersedes ar-Rabī'. Then Ziyād ibn-abu-Sufyān removed ar-Rabī' ibn-Ziyād al-Hārithi and appointed 'Ubaidallāh ibn-abu-Bakrah over Sijistān. He continued the campaign, and when he reached Razān, Ratbīl sent to him asking for peace for his own country and the land of Kābul in return for 1,200,000 dirhams. When he consented to this, Ratbīl asked him if he would remit 200,000. He agreed, and the peace was established on the payment of 1,000,000 dirhams. 'Ubaidallāh went personally to Ziyād to tell him of this, and Ziyād confirmed the treaty. Then 'Ubaidallāh ibn-abu-Bakrah returned to Sijistān and remained there until Ziyād died.

Later governors. After the death of Ziyād, 'Abbād ibn-Ziyād ruled Sijistān for Mu'āwiyah. Yazīd ibn-Mu'āwiyah, when he became ruler, appointed Salm ibn-Ziyād governor of Khurāsān and Sijistān. Salm appointed his brother, Yazīd ibn-Ziyād, over Sijistān.

Kābul again revolts. At the time of Yazīd's death, or a little before, the people of Kābul treacherously broke the compact, and imprisoned abu-'Ubaidah ibn-Ziyād. Yazīd ibn-Ziyād proceeded against them and attacked them in Junzah, but he and many of those with him were killed, and the rest put to flight. Among those who were martyred were Zaid ibn-'Abdallāh ibn-abu-Mulaikah ibn-'Abdallāh ibn-Jad'ān al-Furashi and Ṣilah ibn-Ashtam abu-ṣ-Ṣahbā, al-'Adawi, the husband of Mu'ādhah al-'Adawiyah.

Talhah becomes governor. Salm ibn-Ziyād sent Ṭalhah ibn-'Abdallāh ibn-Khalaf al-Khuzā'i (known as Ṭalhah at-Ṭalhāt), who ransomed abu-'Ubaidah for 500,000 dirhams.

Ṭalhah went from Kābul to Sijistān as wālī over it for Salm ibn-Ziyād. He collected the taxes and paid his visitors, and died in Sijistân. He left as his successor a man of the banu-Yashkur, but the Muḍlari expelled him, and factions arose, and each people seized control of their own city. Ratbil aided and abetted them.

Death of Ratbil. When ‘Abd-al-‘Azîz ibn-‘Abdallâh ibn-‘Amir arrived as wâli over Sijistân for al-Ḳubâ’ (i. e. al-Ḥârith ibn-‘Abdallâh ibn-abu-Rabî‘ah al-Makhzûmi) in the time of az-Zubair, he was compelled to stop in the city of Zaranj, because Ratbil was at war with him. But abu-‘Afrâ’ ‘Umar al-Mâzini killed Ratbil and the polytheists were put to rout.

Ibn-Nâshirah killed. Abdallâh ibn-Nâshirah at-Tamîmi sent orders to ‘Abd-al-‘Azîz to take all that was in the treasury and depart, and he did so. Ibn-Nâshirah advanced until he entered Zaranj, while Waki’ ibn-abu-Sûd at-Tamîmi proceeded further. But ‘Abd-al-‘Azîz sent back and drove him into the city at the time it was opened for the woodcutters. Ibn-Nâshirah made a sortie, and ‘Abd-al-‘Azîz collected a force and attacked him, assisted by Waki’. Ibn-Nâshirah’s horse stumbled under him and he was killed.

Abu-Ḥuzâbah (others say Ḥanṭhalah ibn-‘Arâdah) says:

“There never was so bold a youth as ibn-Nâshirah,

And now he is gone and nought is left.

Was he a plant planted but for death to reap?

Why was not this green plant left?

The young Ḥanṭhalah kept distributing

Good things and refraining from evil.

I swear that Kuraish have destroyed our prince,

Fresh with the fragrant beauty of the evening.”

CHAPTER II

'ABD-AL-MALIK' TO MA'MUN

'Abdallâh ibn-'Umayyah governor. 'Abd-al-Malik ibn- 399
Marwân appointed over Khurâsân 'Umayyah ibn-'Abdallâh ibn-Khâlîd ibn-Asîd ibn-abu-l-'Îs. The latter sent his son, 'Abdallâh, to rule over Sijistân, entrusting him with the government of that province. He was in Kirmân at the time, and when he arrived in Sijistân, he made war upon Ratbîl (the successor as king to the former Ratbîl, who had been killed). He stood in awe of the Moslems, and when 'Abdallâh arrived at Bust and offered to make peace with him for 1,000,000 [dirhams], he agreed, and sent him in addition gifts and slaves; but these 'Abdallâh refused to accept, saying, "If he fill me this teni with gold, well; but it not, then no treaty between me and him." And he kept on fighting.

Ratbîl wins easier terms. Ratbîl did not oppose his advance into the land until he had penetrated deep into it, when he seized the mountain paths and passes against him, asking the Moslems to cease hostilities and offering to refrain from despoiling them. This was refused, and Ratbîl said, "Well then, take 300,000 dirhams for a treaty, and put it in writing for me, agreeing not to raid our land while you are wâli, nor to burn nor lay waste." 'Abdallâh did this, and when 'Abd-al-Malik ibn-Marwân learned of it, he dismissed him.

'Ubaidallâh offers terms to Ratbîl. Later, when al-Ḥajjâj ibn-Yûsuf was governor of al-'Irâk, he sent 'Ubaidallâh ibn-abu-Bakrah to Sijistân. He lost his way and took sick, and arrived at ar-Rukhkhaj while the country was suffering from drought. He went on and encamped in the neighborhood of Kâbul, stopping at a mountain path. The enemy blocked this against him until Ratbîl joined them. 'Ubaidallâh made peace with them on condition that they pay him 500,000 dirhams, sending him three of their ruler's sons as pledges, Nahâr, al-Ḥajjâj, and abu-Bakrah, and he wrote them an agreement not to raid them while he was governor.

Shuraiḥ persuades him to fight. But Shuraiḥ ibn-Hâni al-Ḥârithi said to him, "Fear Allah and fight this people, for if thou doest what thou art about to do, thou wilt weaken Islâm on this frontier, and wilt be attempting to flee from the death to which thou art destined." A battle ensued and Shuraiḥ made a charge, but was killed. The army fought their way out, although hard pressed, and made their way along the desert of Bust. Many of the men perished of thirst and hunger, and 'Ubaidallâh died of grief for what he had brought upon his men and the fate that had overtaken them. (Others say that he had a disease of the ear of which he died.) His son, abu-Burda'ah, succeeded to the command of the army.

Ratbîl and 'Abd-ar-Raḥmân. Subsequently 'Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Muhammad ibn-al-Ash'ath was deposed from office and went out to Sijistân as a rebel against 'Abd-al-Malik ibn-Marwân and al-Ḥajjâj. He concluded a truce with Ratbîl and went to visit him. Later Ratbîl betrayed him from fear of al-Ḥajjâj, because the latter had written a threatening letter. 'Abd-ar-Raḥmân threw himself from the top of a cliff (others say from the top of a flat roof), dragging down with him the man who was guarding him and to whom he was bound, and so was killed. His head was taken to al-Ḥajjâj.

Al-Ḥajjâj and Ratbîl. Al-Ḥajjâj made peace with Ratbîl, agreeing not to make war upon him for seven years, (others say nine years) on condition that he pay thereafter every year 900,000 dirhams in kind. When the years were completed, al-Ḥajjāj appointed al-Ashhab ibn-Baḥr al-Kalbi governor of Sijistān. He dealt harshly with Ratbil in regard to the goods which he paid. Ratbil wrote to al-Ḥajjāj, complaining to him about al-Ashhab, and al-Ḥajjāj dismissed the latter from office.

Ḳutaibah and Ratbil. Afterwards, when Ḳutaibah ibn-Muslim al-Bāhili governed Khurāsān and Sijistān in the reign of al-Walid ibn-ʿAbd-al-Malik, he appointed his brother, ʿAmr ibn-Muslim, governor of Sijistān. ʿAmr demanded the tribute from Ratbil in coined money. The latter declared that he was not able to do other than what al-Ḥajjāj had provided for, i. e. payment in kind. ʿAmr informed Ḳutaibah of this, and Ḳutaibah went to Sijistān. When the news of his arrival reached Ratbil, he sent to him saying, "We are not lacking a bit in obedience, but we agreed upon payment in kind. Do not deal harshly with us." Ḳutaibah said to the army, "Collect from him in kind, for the frontier is not prosperous." And with this they were content.

Vipers in Zaranj. Later Ḳutaibah withdrew from Khurāsān, although he had sowed seed in the land of Zaranj to make the enemy despair of his going and lead them to submit to him. But when he began to reap this crop, the vipers made it impossible, and he ordered it to be burned. Ḳutaibah left as his lieutenant over Sijistān ibn-ʿAbdallāh ibn-ʿUmair al-Laithi, brother of ʿAbdallāh ibn-ʿĀmir on his mother's side.

Ratbil gives more trouble. When Sulaimān ibn-ʿAbd-al-Malik became ruler, he appointed Yazid ibn-al-Muhallab governor of al-ʿIrāk. Yazid appointed his brother, Mudrik ibn-al-Muhallab, governor of Sijistān. Ratbil would not pay him any tribute at all. Then Muʿāwiyah ibn-Yazid was appointed. To him a paltry gift was given. Then Yazid ibn-'Abd-al-Malik became ruler, and Ratbîl would not pay his 'âmils anything, but said, "What has become of the people who used to come to us, empty-bellied, faces darkened by the sun, their sandals of palm leaves?" The reply was, "They have passed away." Said he, "They kept their word better than you, and were braver; though you are better-looking." Some one said to him, "What has come over thee? Thou didst pay tribute to al-Ḥajjâj and dost not pay it to us." And Ratbîl said, "Al-Ḥajjâj was a man who did not consider what he spent so long as he got what he wanted, even though not a dirham was returned to him. But you do not spend a dirham without wanting ten to be returned to you in place of it." And thereafter he did not pay any tribute to any of the 'âmils of the Umayyads or of abu-Muslim over Sijistân. 401

Ma'n takes the field against him. Al-Mansûr, the Commander of the Believers, when he became caliph, appointed Ma'n ibn-Zâ'idah ash-Shaibânî governor of Sijistân. He went thither and assigned his 'âmils over the land, writing to Ratbîl orders to bring the tribute for which al-Ḥajjâj had stipulated. He sent camels, Turkish tents, and slaves, reckoning each at double its value. Ma'n became angry, and betook himself to ar-Rukhkhaj with Yazid ibn-Mazyân in command of his vanguard, but he found that Ratbîl had withdrawn from that place and had gone to Dhâbulistân to spend the summer there. Ma'n reduced ar-Rukhkhaj, securing many captives, among them being Faraj ar-Rukhkhaji, at that time a lad, and his father Ziyâd. Faraj used to relate that Ma'n saw a cloud of dust raised by the hoofs of wild asses, and thought that it was an army which had started after him to engage him in battle and rescue the captives from his hand, and so he laid his sword among them and slew a great number of them. Presently the cause of the dust became manifest when the asses came in sight, and he desisted. Says Faraj, "I saw my father, when Ma'n ordered us to be put to the sword, bending over me and saying, 'Kill me, but do not kill my son'".

The number of those whom Ma'n captured and made prisoners was about 30,000.

Mâwand given safe-conduct. Mâwand, the lieutenant of Ratbil, asked for safe-conduct (amân) in order to be taken to the Commander of the Believers. Ma'n granted it, sending him to Baghdâdh with 5,000 of their soldiers, and al-Mansûr treated him generously, pensioning him and his chieftains.

Ma'n murdered. Ma'n, being fearful of the winter and its storms, withdrew to Bust. Some of the heretics (khawârij) who disapproved of his mode of life, plotted with certain workmen who were doing some building in his dwelling, and when they were putting on the roofing, they concealed their swords by putting them in the bundles of reeds. Then they surprised him in his tent while he was having himself cupped, and treacherously murdered him, one of them splitting his belly with a dagger he had. One of the assassins said, "Abu-l-Ghulâm at-Tâki struck him upon the head." (At-Tâk is a district in the neighborhood of Zaranj.) Yazîd ibn-Mazyad executed them all and not one of them escaped. 402

Yazîd governor of Sijistân. Then Yazîd succeeded to the command of Sijistân. His violence became too oppressive for either the Arabs or the Persians among its population, and certain of the Arabs forged in his name a letter to al-Mansûr in which it was stated that al-Mahdi had written something to him which perplexed and astounded him, and asking that he be allowed to resign from his post. This angered al-Mansûr, who cursed him and let al-Mahdi read the letter. Yazîd was dismissed by the caliph, who ordered him to be imprisoned and all of his property sold.

Later, there was some talk about him and he was summoned to Madinat-as-Salâm and was kept concealed there until the heretics met him on the bridge and were attacked by him. This aroused some interest in his case. Later he was sent to Yûsuf al-Barm in Khurâsân and continued in honor there.

Sijistân never completely subjugated. The 'âmils of al-Mahdi and ar-Rashîd continued to collect tribute from Ratbil of Sijistân as well as they could, and kept appointing their agents to rule over the regions to which Islâm had reached. When al-Ma'mûn was in Khurâsân, double tribute was paid to him. He subdued Kâbul, whose king professed Islâm and promised obedience, and brought his 'âmils into that land. Al-Barîd went as far as there and sent to the caliph some fresh myrobalan¹ fruit from there. He stayed there for a little while after this.

Weasels in Sijistân. Al-'Umari from al-Haitham from 'Adi—It was in the ancient treaties of Sijistân that the weasel should not be killed among them, because of the great number of vipers among them. The first to invite the people of Sijistân to the party of the heretics (khawârij) was a man of the banu-Tamîm called 'Âşim or ibn--'Âşim.

PART XIX
KHURASAN

CHAPTER I

CALIPHATES OF 'UMAR AND 'UTHMÂN

Aṭ-Ṭabasân. Abu-Mûsa al-Ash'ari sent 'Abdallâh ibn-Budail ibn-Warḳâ' al-Khuzâ'i on a raid. He went to Kir-mân, then advanced beyond until he reached aṭ-Ṭabasân,¹ two forts, one of them called Ṭabas and the other Kurain. It is a hot country, abounding in palms. The two forts are the gate of Khurâsân.² 'Abdallâh obtained there much booty. 403

Some of the inhabitants of aṭ-Ṭabasân went to 'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb and made peace with him for 60,000. (Others say 75,000.) He gave them a written covenant.

Other authorities insist that 'Abdallâh ibn-Budail set out from Iṣbahân of his own accord.

Ibn-'Âmir's Campaign. When 'Uthmân ibn-'Affân became caliph, he appointed 'Abdallâh ibn-'Âmir ibn-Kuraiz governor of al-Baṣrah in the year 28. (Others say in the year 29.) He was 25 years old. He made some conquests in the land of Fârs; then he raided Khurâsân in the year 30, leaving as his lieutenant over al-Baṣrah Ziyâd ibn-abu-Sufyân, and putting in command of his vanguard al-Aḥnaf ibn-Ḳais. (Other authorities say 'Abdallâh ibn-Khâzim ibn-Asmâ ibn-aṣ-Salt ibn-Ḥabîb as-Sulamî.)

Ḳûhistân. He admitted the validity of the treaty of aṭ-Ṭabasân, and sent al-Aḥnaf ibn-Ḳais on to Ḳûhistân.³ For he was directed to it when he asked for the nearest city on the road to aṭ-Ṭabasân. He was opposed there by the Hayâṭilah,¹ a tribe of Turks. (Others deny that they were Turks, saying that they were a tribe of Persians, who, because they practiced sodomy, were banished by Fairûz to Harât, where they became associated with the Turks.) They were assisting the people of Kûhistân, but ibn-Kais put them to flight and captured Kûhistân by force.

Other authorities assert that he drove them to their fort; then ibn-ʿĀmir joined him, and the people sued for peace, which he granted them for 600,000 dirhams.

Maʿmar ibn-al-Muthanna says that the one who was sent to Kûhistân was ʿUmair ibn-Aḥmad al-Yashkuri. It has remained until today the country of Bakr ibn-Wâ'il.

Zâm, Bâkharz and Juwain. ʿAbdallâh ibn-ʿĀmir dispatched Yazîd al-Jurashi, the father of Sâlim ibn-Yazîd, to the district (rustâk) of Zâm² of Nisâbûr. He took it by force, and conquered Bâkharz,³ a district of Nisâbûr, capturing also Juwain⁴ and taking a number of prisoners. 404

Death of al-Aswad. Ibn-ʿĀmir sent al-Aswad ibn-Kulthûm al-ʿAdawi (ʿAdi ar-Ribâb), a pious man, to Bai-hâk,⁵ a district of Nisâbûr. He entered one of the gardens⁶ belonging to its population by means of a breach in its wall, and a part of the Moslems entered with him. But the enemy seized the breach against them, and al-Aswad fought until he and those with him were killed. He was succeeded in command of the force by Adham ibn-Kulthûm, who accomplished the capture of Baihak. Al-Aswad had prayed his Lord to gather him at the resurrection from the bellies of the beasts and birds, and so his brother did not bury him, although his martyred companions were buried.

Nisâbur subdued. Ibn-'Âmir took Busht¹ of Nisâbûr, Ashband,² Rukhkh,³ Zâwah,⁴ Khuwâf,⁵ Asbarâ'in,⁶ and Arghiyân⁷ of Nisâbûr. Then he went to Abrashahr,⁸ the capital of Nisâbûr, and besieged its population several months. Now a man was appointed to rule over each of the quarters of the city, and one of these quartermasters asked for safety [amân] in return for letting the Moslems enter the city. It was granted him, and he let them in by night. They opened the gate, but the city's marzubân together with a number of the people fortified himself in the Kuhundiz.⁹ He asked for safety [amân], offering to make a pact for all Nisâbûr with the payment of tribute. This was done, the amount of tribute being 1,000,000 dirhams. (Others say 700,000.) When ibn-'Âmir had conquered Nisâbûr, he appointed Kais ibn-al-Haitham as-Sulami governor over it.

Nasâ. Ibn-‘Âmir sent ‘Abdallâh ibn-Khâzim as-Sulami against Ĥumrândiz¹ in Nasâ,² a rural district. ‘Abdallâh captured it, and the lord of Nasâ came to him and made a treaty with him for 300,000 dirhams, (Others say on condition that the land bear the kharâj.) stipulating that none be put to death nor enslaved.

Abîward. Bahmanah, the mayor of Abîward,³ went to ibn-‘Âmir, and he made a treaty with him for 400,000. (Other authorities say that ibn-‘Âmir sent ‘Abdallâh ibn-Khâzim to this city, and he made a treaty with its inhabitants for 400,000 dirhams.)

Sarakhs. ‘Abdallâh ibn-‘Âmir sent ‘Abdallâh ibn-Khâzim against Sarakhs.⁴ He attacked the people there until Zâdhawaih, their marzubân, asked for a treaty granting safe-conduct [amân] to one hundred men, but delivering the women up to the Moslems. The marzubân's daughter fell to the lot of ibn-Khâzim, who took her and called her Maithâ'. And so ibn-Khâzim subjugated the land of Sarakhs. (Another authority says that he made a treaty granting amân to one hundred men, and the marzubân named the hundred for him, but did not name himself, and so ibn-Khâzim put him to death and entered Sarakhs by force.)

Kîf and Bînâh. Ibn-Khâzim sent from Sarakhs Yazîd ibn-Sâlim, maula of Sharik ibn-al-A‘war, to attack Kîf⁵ and Bînâh,⁶ and he conquered them.

Ṭûs. Kanâznak, marzubân of Ṭûs,⁷ went to ibn-‘Âmir and made peace with him in the name of ʾṬūs for 600,000 dirhams.

Harât and vicinity. Ibn-ʿĀmir sent an army to Harât¹ under command of Aus ibn-Thaʿlabah ibn-Rufayy. (Others say under Khulaid ibn-ʿAbdallâh al-Ḥanafī.) The mayor of Harât learned of this, and went to see ibn-ʿĀmir, making a treaty with him for Harât and Bâdaghīs² and Bûshanĵ³ exclusive of ʾṬaghûn and Bâghûn,⁴ for they had been conquered by force. Ibn-ʿĀmir put the treaty in writing for him as follows:

In the name of God, the Compassionate, the Merciful. This is what ʿAbdallâh ibn-ʿĀmir commands the Mayor [ʿaṭhīm] of Harât, Bûshanĵ, and Bâdaghīs: He bids him fear God and be true to the Moslems, and to keep in peace the lands under his hand. And he has made a treaty with him in the name of Harât, plain and mountain, on condition that he pay the jizyah to which he had agreed, dividing this fairly over the lands. He who refuses what is laid upon him has no covenant and no protection.

Written by Rabīʿ ibn-Nahshal and sealed by ibn-ʿĀmir.

Other authorities add that ibn-ʿĀmir went himself with a large force to Harât and made war upon its people; but later their marzubân made terms with him for Harât, Bûshanĵ, and Bâdaghīs for 1,000,000 dirhams.

Marw ash-Shâhijân. The marzubân of Marw ash-Shâhijân⁵ sent to ask for a treaty, and ibn-ʿĀmir sent to Marw Ḥātim ibn-an-Nu'mân al-Bâhili, who made a treaty with him for 2,200,000 dirhams. (Others say for 1,000,000 dirhams and 200,000 jaribs of wheat and barley. And some say 1,200,000 ounces.) It was stipulated in their treaty that they should assign ample space for the Moslems for their dwelling places and that the apportionment of the money was the duty of the natives and not of the Moslems, who had only to collect it.

All of Marw was treaty land except one of its towns called as-Sinj,¹ which was taken by force.

Tribute in kind. Abu-'Ubaidah says: The treaty was made on condition of tribute in male and female slaves, beasts of burden, and goods, the people at this time not having money, and all the kharâj was on that basis until Yazîd ibn-Mu'âwiyah became ruler and commuted it to money.

Ḳasr al-Aḥnaf. 'Abdallâh ibn-'Âmir sent al-Aḥnaf ibn-Ḳais toward Ṭukhâristân. He came to the place called [later] Ḳasr al-Aḥnaf,² which was a stronghold of Marw ar-Rûdh with a large rural district now known as Rustâḳ al-Aḥnaf, but called at that time Shaḳḳ al-Juradh. He besieged the people, but they made terms for 300,000. Al-Aḥnaf said, "I agree to the treaty on condition that one of our men enter the castle and cry the *adhân*³ in it and remain among you until I depart." This was agreed to. The treaty was for the whole rustâḳ.

Marw ar-Rûdh. Al-Aḥnaf advanced to Marw ar-Rûdh⁴ and besieged its inhabitants. They resisted fiercely, but the Moslems routed them and drove them to their fort. The marzubân was a descendant or relative of Bâdhâm,⁵ master of al-Yaman. He wrote to al-Aḥnaf, "Bādhām's conversion bids me make peace." And he made peace with him for 60,000. (Al-Madâ'ini says that according to other authorities the amount was 600,000.)

Baghgh. Al-Aḥnaf had a force of cavalry which advanced and captured a rustâḳ called Baghgh¹ from which cattle were exported. Afterwards a treaty was made.

Abu-'Ubaidah's account. Al-Aḥnaf had made several attacks upon the people of Marw ar-Rûdh, when he happened to pass by a man who was boiling a pot or kneading some dough for his companions, and heard him say, "The commander should attack from one side, from the entrance of the mountain pass." And he said to himself, "What the fellow says is right." So he attacked them with al-Marghâb² at his right and the mountain at his left. (Al-Marghâb was a river which flowed through Marw ar-Rûdh and then sank in the sand, later emerging in Márw ash-Shâhijân.) He put them and the Turks that were with them to rout. After this they asked for amân, and al-Aḥnaf made a treaty with them.

Another version. Other authorities than abu-'Ubaidah say:—The inhabitants of Tūkhâristân³ united against the Moslems, and there assembled a force of the people of al-Jūzajân,⁴ at-Ṭālākân, al-Fâriyâb,⁵ and the vicinity thereof, attaining the number of 30,000. To them were added the 407 people of as-Saghâniyan,⁶ who were on the east bank of the stream. Al-Aḥnaf withdrew to his castle, whose inmates were faithful to him, and one night he went out and heard some tent-people conversing. One said, "The commander ought to go after them and join battle with them wherever he meets them." Another, who was either kindling a fire beneath his pottage or kneading, said, "Not so, but he ought to make a stand between al-Marghâb and the mountain, letting al-Marghâb be on his right and the mountain on his left, and even if the enemy outnumbered him he would only have to meet a number equal to his own followers." He thought this to be the right plan and adopted it. He had 5,000 Moslems (4,000 Arabs and 1,000 foreign converts). They joined battle. Al-Aḥnaf flourished his banner and charged. The enemy counter-charged. The king of aṣ-Ṣaghâniyân made for al-Aḥnaf, rushing upon him with his lance. Al-Aḥnaf, fighting fiercely, pulled the lance from his hand. He attacked three of those who were accompanied by drums, seeking the drum-master¹ and killing him. Then Allah struck the faces of the unbelievers, and the Moslems inflicted a great slaughter, smiting with their weapons wherever they wished.

Al-Jûzajân. Al-Aḥnaf returned to Marw ar-Rûdh and met some of the enemy at al-Jûzajân. He dispatched against them al-Akra' ibn-Ḥâbis at-Tamîmi with the cavalry, exhorting them thus, "O banu-Tamîm, love one another and be self-sacrificing, and your cause will prosper. Begin the battle in your appetites and lusts, and your religion will help you win. Be not treacherous, and your warfare will go well with you." So al-Akra' set forth and met the enemy at al-Jûzajân. The Moslems at first suffered a defeat, then they returned to the charge and put to rout the unbelievers, conquering al-Jûzajân by force.

Ibn-al-Ghuraizah al-Nahshali says:

"When torrents fall, may cloud-born water refresh
 The corpses of the young men in Jûzajân,
 The castles twain of the land of Hûf
 Which the two al-Akra's there destroyed."

Al-Aḥnaf reduced aṭ-Ṭâlakân by treaty and conquered al-Fâriyâb. (Other authorities deny the latter, saying that Umair ibn-Aḥmar conquered it.)

Balkh. After this al-Aḥnaf went to Balkh,¹ the capital of Ṭukhârâ, whose inhabitants made peace with the Moslems for 400,000. Others say 700,000, but the former is more probable.) He appointed as his agent over Balkh Usaïd ibn-al-Mutashammis. Then he attacked Khârizm,² which is wholly watered by the river, and whose capital is Sharḡiyah, but he could not prevail against it, and withdrew to Balkh where Usaïd had already collected the tribute money.

Transoxiana. Abu-'Ubaidah:—Ibn-'Âmir conquered the territory this side of the river, but when he came to deal with the people on the other side of the river (Transoxiana ³), they asked him to make a treaty with them, which he did. It is said that he crossed the river, going from place to place. Others, however, say that they came to him and arranged a treaty with him, and he sent agents who collected the tribute. Cattle, male and female slaves, silk, and garments were brought to him. Then he made the pilgrimage to give thanks to Allah.

No other authority mentions his crossing the river and making the treaty with the people of the eastern bank.

Siminjân. He made ready for the minor pilgrimage, going to 'Uthmân and leaving behind in his place Kaïs ibn-al-Haitham. After his departure, Kaïs went through the land of Ṭukhârîstân, and every region he came to made peace with him and submitted to him, until he came to Siminjân.¹ They resisted him, and so he besieged them until he reduced the city by force.

It has been said ibn-‘Âmir assigned Khurâsân to three governors, al-Aḥnaf ibn-Ḳais, Ḥâtim ibn-an-Nu‘man al-Bâhili, and Ḳais ibn-al-Haitham, but the former account is the more probable.

Ibn-Khâzim usurps command. Later ibn-Khâzim forged a covenant in the name of ibn-‘Âmir and made himself governor of Khurâsân. All the Turks there formed a combination, but he dispersed them. Then he went to al-Baṣrah before the murder of ‘Uthmân.

Al-Ḥusain ibn-al-Aswad from Nakî‘ from ibn-‘Aun from Muḥammad ibn-Sîrîn:—‘Uthmân ibn-‘Affân made a compact with the people of Transoxiana.

CHAPTER II

CALIPHATES OF 'ALI AND MU'ÂWIYAH

Khurâsân rebels. Mâhwaih, the marzubân of Marw, appeared before 'Ali ibn-abu-Ṭâlib during his caliphate while he was in al-Kûfah, and 'Ali wrote in his behalf to the dihkâns, the asâwirah, and the *dihshallârs*¹ to pay to him the jizyah. But Khurâsân rebelled against them, so he sent Ja'dah ibn-Hubairah al-Makhzûmi (his mother was umm-Hâni' bint-abu-Ṭâlib), who failed to subdue the province, and Khurâsân remained in a state of confusion until 'Ali was killed. 409

'Ali's 'âmils. Abu-Ubaidah says that the first of the 'âmils of 'Ali over Khurâsân was 'Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Abza, a freedman of Khuzâ'ah; then came Ja'dah ibn-Hubairah ibn-abu-Wahb ibn-'Amr ibn-'Â'idh ibn-'Imrân ibn-Makhzûm.

Under Mu'âwiyah. Mu'âwiyah ibn-abu-Sufyân appointed as 'âmil over Khurâsân Ẹais ibn-al-Haitham ibn-Ẹais ibn-aṣ-Ṣalt as-Sulami. He could accomplish nothing with the rebels, but collected the taxes from the people who observed the treaty. He was over them a year or a little less. Then the caliph removed him and appointed Khâlîd ibn-al-Mu'ammâr governor, but the latter died in Ẹasr Muḳâtil or 'Ain aṭ-Tamr. Some authorities say that Mu'âwiyah repented of appointing him, and sent him a poisoned robe. Others, however, say that a piece of glass got into his foot from which he bled to death.

Ḳais again governor. Mu'âwiyah afterwards combined Khurâsân with al-Baṣrah for ibn-'Âmir 'Abdallâh. The latter appointed Ḳais ibn-al-Haitham as-Sulami to govern Khurâsân. The people of Bâdghîs, Harât, Bûshanj, and Balkh were in a state of rebellion. Ḳais went to Balkh and began to attack its fire-temple.¹ The campaign was conducted by 'Atâ' ibn-as-Sâ'ib, freedman of the banu-l-Laith, known as al-Khashal, but al-Khashal was only his nickname. He constructed bridges over three rivers a parasang away from Balkh. They were called "the bridges of 'Atâ'".

Ḳais flogged. Later the people of Balkh offered to make peace and return to submission, and Ḳais concluded a peace with them. Then he reported to ibn-'Âmir, who inflicted upon him one hundred lashes and put him in prison. 'Abdallâh ibn-Khâzim was appointed governor. To him the people of Harât, Bûshanj, and Bâdghîs sent to ask for peace [amân] and a treaty. He made terms with them and brought the tribute money to ibn-'Âmir.

Arab colonists in Marw. Ziyâd ibn-abu-Sufyân governed al-Baṣrah in the year 45. He appointed Umair ibn-Aḥmar governor of Marw, Khulaid ibn-'Abdallâh al-Ḥanifi governor of Abrashahr, Ḳais ibn-al-Haitham governor of Marw ar-Rûdh, aṭ-Ṭâliḳân, and al-Fâriyâb, and Nâfi' ibn-Khâlîd aṭ-Ṭâhi of the Azd governor of Harât, Bâdghîs, Bûshanj, and Ḳâdis of Anwârân.² Umair was the first to settle Arabs in Marw.

Al-Ḥakam ibn-'Amr. Ziyâd afterwards appointed al-Ḥakam ibn-'Amr al-Ghifâri, an abstemious man and one of the Companions. Ziyâd had merely said to Fîl, his steward, "Bring al-Ḥakam to me." He meant al-Ḥakam ibn-abu-l-Āṣi ath-Thaḡafi. Umm-'Abdallāh bint-'Uthmān ibn-abu-l-Āṣi was in his household. But al-Ḥakam ibn-'Amr was brought to him. When he saw him, he was pleased with him, and said "An upright fellow, one of the Companions of the Apostle of Allah." And he appointed him governor of Khurāsān. He died there in the year 50. Al-Ḥakam was the first to conduct Moslem services in Transoxiana.

Abu-'Abd-ar-Rahmān al-Ju'ji says:—I heard 'Abdallāh ibn-al-Mubārīk asking us about the history of the land and saying to one of the people of as-Saghāniyān, "Dost thou know who conquered thy country?" He answered, "No." He said, "Al-Ḥakam ibn-'Amr al-Ghifāri."

Ar-Rabī'. Ziyād ibn-abu-Sufyān afterwards appointed as governor of Khurāsān ar-Rabī' ibn-Ziyād al-Ḥārithi in the year 51, sending with him about 50,000 of the men of Kūfah and Baṣrah with their families, among them being Buraidah ibn-al-Huṣaib al-Aslami abu-'Abdallāh. He passed away in Marw during the reign of Yazīd ibn-Mu'āwiyah. Among the colonists was also abu-Barzah al-Aslami 'Abdallāh ibn-Naḍlah, who also died there. Ar-Rabī' settled them in colonies this side of the river. He was the first who commanded the soldiers to share equally in the expenses of a campaign. He was overcome by grief when he heard of the killing of Ḥujr ibn-'Adi al-Kindi, and prayed for death. From that very day he fell into a decline and died. This was in the year 53.

Invasion of Transoxiana. Ar-Rabī' left his son, 'Abdallāh, to succeed him. The latter waged war with the people of Āmul¹ (i. e. Āmūyah) with some success. Then he made a treaty with them and returned to Marw, where he remained two months and then died. Ziyād also died, and Mu'āwiyah appointed as 'āmīl over Khurāsān 'Ubaidallāh ibn-Ziyâd, who was twenty-five years old. He crossed the Oxus with a force of 24,000 and attacked Baikand. Khâtûn¹ was in the city of Bukhârâ.² She sent to the Turks to ask for help, and a large number of them came to her. The Moslems encountered them and put them to flight, getting possession of their camp, and continued to advance, laying waste and burning.

Khâtûn capitulates. Khâtûn sent to them seeking terms of peace and safe-conduct, and the Moslem commander made peace with her for 1,000,000 dirhams. He entered the city and reduced Râmadîn and Baikand³ which are two parasangs apart, Râmadîn being an offshoot of Baikand. Others say that he conquered aş-Şaghâniyân and took captive with him to al-Başrah a number of the people of Bukhârâ and then liberated them.

Sa'id invades Transoxiana. Afterwards Mu'âwiyah appointed Sa'id ibn-'Uthmân ibn-'Affân governor of Khurâsân. He crossed the river, being the first governor to cross it with his army. With him was Rufai' abu-l-'Âliyah ar-Riyâhi, the freedman of a woman of the banu-Riyâh. Rufai' abu-l-'Âliyah means "honor and excellence."

Khâtûn rebels. When the news of his crossing the river reached Khâtûn, she made peace with him at once. The people of as-Sughd,⁴ the Turks, the people of Kishsh and Nasaf⁵ (i. e. Nakhshab) approached to attack Sa'id with 120,000, and they met at Bukhârâ. Khâtûn had tired of paying tribute and had broken the treaty. A certain slave belonging to one of the members of this coalition was present but withdrew with his followers. The rest were put to roul. When Khâtûn saw this she gave guarantees to Sa'id and renewed the treaty, and Sa'id entered the city of Bukhârâ.

Capture of Samarkand. Next Sa'id ibn-'Uthmân raided Samarkand,¹ Khâtûn assisting him with men from Bukhârâ. He encamped at the gate of Samarkand and swore that he would not leave the place until he captured it and overthrew its citadel. He engaged its people in battle three days, the number of them slain the third day being the most terrible. One of his eyes and an eye of al-Muhallab ibn-abu-Şufrah were put out. (Other authorities say that al-Muhallab's eye was put out at at-Ṭâlikân.) Then the enemy remained inside the city while the wounds among them were healing.

A man came and guided Sa'id to a castle in which were the sons of their kings and magnates. He went there and besieged them, and the people of the city, fearing that he would capture the castle by force and put to death the inmates of it, sued for peace. He made terms with them for 700,000 dirhams, stipulating that they should give him as pledges some of the sons of their magnates, and that he might enter the city with such of his followers as he wished, and go out by the other gate. They gave him fifteen of the sons of their kings. (Some say forty and others eighty.) He threw a rock at the citadel which became lodged in the window aperture.

At-Tirmidh. Then he withdrew, and when he was at at-Tirmidh,² Khâtûn again made peace with him at once, but he continued the assault of at-Tirmidh until he reduced it by capitulation. Afterwards when 'Abdallâh ibn-Khâzim as-Sulami was killed, his son Mûsa went to the king of at-

Tirmidh, who protected and defended him and the people with him. But Mûsa expelled him from the city and made himself ruler of it in open revolt. When Mûsa was killed, the place came under the sway of the wâlis. Later its people rebelled and Kûtaibah ibn-Muslim reconquered the city. 412

Mâlik ibn-ar-Raib says in regard to Sa'id:

"The rude north wind has blown, causing the leaves to fall;;

The wormwood has doffed its cloak of green for one of yellow.

So go and God be with you. Let not what we have won

Be as snow which the wind whirls against at-Tirmidh.

Winter is an enemy that we can not fight.

So go back and God bless you, while the warm garment is still spread."

It is said that Nahâr ibn-Tausi'ah wrote about Kûtaibah the stanzas which begin:

"Khurâsân was a land, where, when Yazid was there,

Every door of blessing was open.

But now it has received instead Kûtaibah¹ with grasping fingers,

As if his face were besprinkled with vinegar."

Death of Kûtham ibn-al-'Abbâs. With Sa'id ibn-'Uthmân was Kûtham ibn-al-'Abbâs ibn-'Abd-al-Muttalib. He passed away in Samarqand. Some say he suffered martyrdom there. When he learned of his death, 'Alḍaḥlâh ibn-al-'Abbâs said, "How far apart are his birthplace and his grave!" He was diligent in prayer and some one said to him, "What is the matter?", and he replied, "Have ye not heard the words of Allah, 'Ask for help with patience and prayer; verily this is a burden except for the humble'?"²

Kûtham's modesty. Abdallâh ibn-Ṣâliḥ from Sharik from Jâbir from ash-Sha'bi:—Kûtham came into the presence of Sa'id ibn-'Uthmân in Khurâsân, and to him Sa'id said, "I will give thee from the spoils a thousand portions."

² Kōran, 2:42.

He replied, "Nay, give me only a portion for myself and one for my horse."

Murder of Sa'id. With the hostages he had taken from as-Sughd Sa'id marched until he reached his own city with them. He gave their clothes and sashes to his freedmen, put woollen gowns on them, and compelled them to work at the water-wheels and pumps¹ and at plowing. They surprised him in his council chamber and assassinated him. Then they killed themselves.

Mâlik ibn-ar-Raib says of Sa'id:

"At the battle of as-Sughd thou trembledest
From craven fear till I too feared—lest thou become a Christian."

Khâlid ibn-'Uqbah ibn-abu-Mu'aiṭ says:

41

"The best of men and the best of fathers
Was Sa'id ibn-'Uthmân, slayer of Persians,
And if fate has willed such troubles for Sa'id, who these days can be free from trouble?"

Sa'id's peculations. Sa'id deceived his associate in the matter of the kharâj of K̲hurâsân and got some of the money away from him, but Mu'âwiyah sent a messenger to meet him in Hulwân and he succeeded in recovering the money from him. His associate's name was Aslam ibn-Zur'ah. (Others say Iṣḥâk ibn-Talhah ibn-'Ubaidallâh.) Mu'âwiyah had become suspicious that Sa'id might repudiate him, and on that account he hastened to depose him.

Next Mu'âwiyah appointed 'Abd-ar-Rahmân ibn-Ziyâd governor of K̲hurâsân. He was of excellent character. Mu'âwiyah died while he was governor.

He is unpopular. When Yazid ibn-Mu'âwiyah died, the natives of the province combined against Salm, saying, "Ibn-Sumaiyah is infernally mistaken if he thinks he is going to rule us in peace and war as was said to his brother 'Ubaidallâh in al-Baṣrah." He withdrew from Khurâsân and 'Abdallâh ibn-az-Zubair came and fined him 4,000,000 dirhams and put him in prison.

Salm used to say, "Would that I had gone to Syria and had not been ashamed to serve my brother, 'Ubaidallâh ibn-Ziyâd, even though I had to wash his feet, instead of seeking 414 the hospitality of ibn-az-Zubair."

His escape and death. He remained in Makkah until al-Ḥajjâj ibn-Yûsuf had surrounded ibn-az-Zubair, when he broke out of the prison and went to al-Ḥajjâj, and then to 'Abd-al-Malik. The latter said to him, "By God, if thou hadst remained in Makkah, she would have had no ruler but thee, and there would have been none in her to command thee." And he appointed him governor of Khurâsân again. But he died when he arrived at al-Basrah.

Another version. Some authorities say that 'Abdallâh ibn-Khâzim as-Sulami had met Salm ibn-Ziyâd in Nisâbûr at the time of his departure from Khurâsân, and Salm wrote him a diploma for Khurâsân and had assisted him to the amount of 100,000 dirhams. A large number of Bakr ibn-Wâ'il and others got together and said, "Why should these fellows devour Khurâsân to our hurt?" They attempted to seize the treasures of ibn-Khâzim, but their attack was successfully resisted.

Rival governors. Sulaimân ibn-Marṭhad, a member of the banu-Sa'd ibn-Mâlik ibn-Dubai'ah ibn-Ḳais ibn-Tha'labah ibn-'Ukābah of the Marâthid ibn-Rabî'ah, sent to ibn-Khâzim a message, saying, "The diploma of investiture which thou hast, if its owner wishes to stay in Khurâsân, let him not depart therefrom, and it will be well with thee."

went and established himself in Mashra'at-Sulaimân. Ibn-Khâzim abode in Marw, and they agreed to appoint Ibn-az-Zubair and whichever one of the two he chose should be the amîr. This was done, and Ibn-az-Zubair appointed 'Abdallâh ibn-Khâzim governor of Khurâsân. Six months later 'Urwah ibn-Kuṭbah brought him a diploma, but Sulaimân forbade this to be accepted, saying, "Ibn-az-Zubair is not caliph. He is only a refugee in the East?"

Sulaimân killed. Ibn-Khâzim attacked him at the head of his men, although Sulaimân had 15,000, but Sulaimân was aided by Kais ibn-'Āsim as-Sulami, and his head cut off. A number of the followers of Ibn-Khâzim were wounded.

The war-cry of Ibn-Khâzim was "Hâma! they shall not win victory!" and that of Sulaimân was "Ho! The help of Allah is nigh!"

Ibn-Khâzim and Aus. The routed troops of Sulaimân were met by 'Umar ibn-Marṭhad in at-Tâlikân, and Ibn-Khâzim attacked him, attacked, and killed him. Rabî'ah fled to Ibn-Tha'labah in Harât, and Ibn-Khâzim, leaving Mûsa, in his place, proceeded against him. There were some encounters between their followers, and they seized upon this as an opportunity for plunder, keeping their raids until they got near to Nisâbûr.

Death of Aus. Ibn-Khâzim plotted to poison Aus, who came sick as they assembled for the battle. Ibn-Khâzim exhorted his followers, saying, "Make the day be speared the horses in their nostrils." (For a horse may be speared in the nostrils, unless it turned back.) There was a fierce conflict. Aus, who was sick, was overcome by wounds and died as a result of them a few days later. Ibn-Khâzim appointed his son Muḥ-ammad governor of Harât, setting Bukair ibn-Wishah in command of his guard, and Khurâsân was in his power.

Insurrection of the banu-Tamîm. Later the banu-Tamîm in Harât were aroused and killed Muḥammad, whereupon his father seized 'Uthmân ibn-Bashr ibn-al-Muḥtafiz and had put him to death when in bonds, also putting to death a man of the banu-Tamîm. The banu-Tamîm assembled and took counsel together, saying, "What think ye of this? Let a large party of us separate and go to Ṭûs, and when he (ibn-Khâzim) proceeds against them, those of us who remain in Marw will depose him." Bujair ibn-Wakâ' aṣ-Ṣuraimi of the banu-Tamîm went to Ṭûs with a number of companions and entered the fort.

Ibn-Khâzim deposed. Then they removed to Abrashahr and deposed ibn-Khâzim. Ibn-Khâzim sent his treasures to at-Tirmidh with his son, Mûsa, not daring to entrust it to any one of the banu-Tamîm in Marw. A letter of 'Abd-al-Malik ibn-Marwân was sent to ibn-Khâzim, appointing him governor of Khurâsân, but he made his messenger eat the letter, saying, "I do not want to meet Allah after depriving of his office the son of a disciple of the Apostle of Allah and acknowledging in his stead a son of those who persecuted him."

Bukair becomes governor. 'Abd-al-Malik wrote to Bukair ibn-Wishah to administer Khurâsân, and ibn-Khâzim was afraid to refer the matter of the people of Marw to him. Bukair had deposed ibn-Khâzim, seized the weapons and the treasury, and urged the people of Marw to acknowledge his own investiture by 'Abd-al-Malik. They accepted his appointment.

Bujair attacks ibn-Khâzim. Ibn-Khâzim left to join his son, Mûsa, who was in at-Tirmidh with his household and valuables. Bujair followed him and attacked him in the neighborhood of Marw. He summoned Waki' ibn-ad-

Daurāḳiyah al-Kurai'i (His father's name was 'Umairah, but his mother was one of the captives of Daurak and from her his surname is derived.) to bring his breast-plate and weapons, and he put on his armor and went out and charged upon ibn-Khâzim, accompanied by Bujair ibn-Waḳâ'. They thrust him through with the spear, and Waki' sat on his breast and said, "Revenge for Dawilah!" (Dawilah, whom ibn-Khâzim had killed, was the brother of Waki' on his mother's side and was a freedman of the banu-Ḳurai'.) Ibn-Khâzim spat in his face, saying, "Allah curse thee. Dost thou kill the leader of Muḍlar to avenge thy brother, an unbeliever not worth a handful of date-stones?" Waki' said,

"Taste, O son of 'Ajla, the like of that thou givest me to taste,
And think not that I am like to forget it."

('Ajla was the mother of ibn-Khâzim. His kunyah was abu-Ṣâliḥ. The kunyah of Waki' ibn-ad-Daurāḳiyah was abu-Rabî'ah.)

Together with 'Abdallâh ibn-Khâzim were killed his two sons, 'Anbasah and Yahya; and Ṭahmân, the freedman of ibn-Khâzim, grandfather of Ya'qûb ibn-Dâ'ûd, who was the scribe of the Commander of the Believers, al-Mahdi, after abu-'Ubaidallâh, was wounded with a lance.

Ibn-Khâzim's head. Bukair ibn-Wishah was presented with the head of ibn-Khâzim, and sent it to 'Abd-al-Malik ibn-Marwân who set it up in Damascus. His right hand was cut off and sent to the sons of 'Uthmân ibn-Bishr ibn-al-Muḥtafis al-Mazani.

Waki'. Waki' was rough and of a rugged constitution. In front of him one day as he was praying was a plant. He began to eat from it, and some one said to him, "Dost thou eat while thou art praying?" He replied, "Allah has not forbidden us to eat a plant which he causes to grow with water from heaven falling upon the dust of the earth?"

He used to drink wine, and when he was remonstrated with on this account, he said, "Concerning wine do ye remonstrate with me, though it makes my urine clear until it is like silver?"

Another version. Many were indignant at ibn-Khâzim, and a difference of opinion arose; part of the people siding with Bukair ibn-Wishaḥ and part with Bujair. The chiefs and nobles of the people of Khurâsân wrote to 'Abd-al-Malik, informing him that Khurâsân would not recover from the effects of the civil strife except under a man of Kuraish. And so he appointed Umaiyaḥ ibn-'Abdallâh ibn-Khâlid ibn-Asîd ibn-abu-l-Îṣ ibn-Umaiyaḥ governor of Khurâsân, and Bukair ibn-Wishaḥ he made governor of Tukhâristân. Later he commissioned him to raid Transoxiana. Then Umaiyaḥ urged the raiding of Bukhârâ. Then they both went against Mûsa ibn-'Abdallâh ibn-Khâzim in at-Tirmidh. But Bukair withdrew to Marw, seized and imprisoned Umaiyaḥ's son, and urged the people to depose Umaiyaḥ. They complied, and when this came to the ears of Umaiyaḥ, he made peace with the people of Bukhârâ for a small ransom, reconstructed the boats which Bukair had burned, and returned, giving up the campaign against Mûsa ibn-'Abdallâh. Umaiyaḥ advanced, and Bukair attacked him, but later made peace with him on condition that he receive the appointment as governor of whatever region he chose. Afterwards Umaiyaḥ, finding out that even after this he was intriguing for his deposition, gave orders that when he entered his house he should be seized. He entered, was seized, and ordered to prison, but Bujair ibn-Wakâ' fell upon him by surprise and killed him. 417

Al-Khutal. Umaiyaḥ raided al-Khutal,¹ who had broken their treaty after Sa'id ibn-'Uthmân had made terms of peace with them, and he subjugated them again.

CHAPTER IV

MÛSA'S INSURRECTION

Al-Muhallab governor. Al-Ḥajjāj ibn-Yūsuf later ruled over Khurāsān together with the two 'Irāqs. He appointed over Khurāsān al-Muhallab ibn-abu-Ṣufrah. (His name was Ṭhālīm ibn-Sarrāḳ ibn-Ṣubḥ ibn-al-'Atik of the Azd. In the year 99 he took the kunyah abu-Sa'id.) He made many raids, and conquered al-Khutul, which had again broken faith, and Khujandah. As-Sughd paid up the tribute to him. He raided Kishsh and Nasaf, and after his return, he died of the pleurisy in Zāghūl of Marw ar-Rudh. His illness began with the mourning over his son, al-Mughīrah ibn-al-Muhallab.

Yazīd ibn-al-Muhallab. Al-Muhallab left his son, Yazīd ibn-al-Muhallab, in his place. The latter made many raids, conquering al-Buttam¹ by the hand of Mukhallad ibn-Yazīd ibn-al-Muhallab. Al-Ḥajjāj gave Yazīd ibn-al-Muhallab the appointment as governor. Now at the time of the flight of ibn-al-Ash'ath and the others, 'Abd-ar-Raḥmān ibn-al-'Abbās ibn-Rabī'ah ibn-al-'Ḥārith ibn-al-Muṭṭalib, having set out in company with ibn-al-Ash'ath, had gone to Harāt, killed ar-Ruḳād al-'Ataki, and took the kharāj. Yazīd proceeded against him. They fought a battle, and Yazīd put them to rout, but gave orders to refrain from pursuing them. The Hāshimi² fled as far as as-Sind. Yazīd raided Khārizm and obtained captives. The army put on the garments of the captives, who died as a consequence of the cold.

Al-Mufaḍḍal brother of Yazîd. Afterwards al-Ḥajjāj appointed al-Mufaḍḍal ibn-al-Muhallab ibn-abu-Ṣufrah governor. He reduced Bâdghîs, which had broken the covenant, Shûmân¹ and Âkhrûn, obtaining booty which he divided among the army.

The campaign against Mûsa. Mûsa ibn-'Abdallâh ibn-Khâzim as-Sulami was in at-Tirmidh. He had gone to Samarḳand, whose king, Ṭarkhûn, entertained him hospitably. But one of Mûsa's followers assaulted and killed a man of as-Sughd, and Ṭarkûn expelled him and those with him, and he went to the lord of Kishsh. Then he came to at-Tirmidh, which is a stronghold, and lodged as the guest of the dihkân of at-Tirmidh. The latter prepared him a dinner, and he reclined as he ate. The dihkân said to him "Depart." But he replied, "I do not know another such a home as this." He fought the people of at-Tirmidh until he overpowered them. Its dihkân and people went out to the Turks to ask them for help, but they gave them no assistance, saying, "Allah curse you. Have ye no pride? A man comes upon you with a hundred followers and expels you from your city and deprives you of it by force." 418

Mûsa's forces rally. Then the followers of Mûsa came to him one and all, those who had been with his father and others. The lord of at-Tirmidh and its people kept at the Turks until they gave them aid, and in a body they advanced upon Mûsa and his men. But Mûsa attacked them by night and got possession of their camp. Sixteen of the Moslems were taken prisoner.

Thâbit and Hurâith. With Mûsa were Thâbit and Hurâith, the Khuzâ'is, sons of Kūṭbah. They urged Ṭarkhûn and his followers to supply Mûsa with troops. He gave him help and enlisted many men for him. The boldness of these two brothers was of great service to Mûsa, and they became generals and counsellors in his army. It was even said to him, "Thou hast only the name, while these two are masters of camp and campaign."

Mûsa wins a victory. A number of the Hayâtîlah and the Turks on the side of the people of at-Tirmidh made a sortie against him, fighting fiercely, but the Moslems defeated them and their allies. When al-Ḥajjâj heard of this he said, "Praise be to Allah who has helped the 'hypocrites' against the polytheists." Mûsa made great watch towers of the heads of those who had attacked him.

Death of Huraith. Ḥuraith ibn-Ḳuṭbah was struck by a wooden arrow and killed, and the followers of Mûsa said to Mûsa, "Allah has freed us in regard to Ḥuraith; now free us in regard to Thâbit, for we cannot endure him."

Thâbit flees. Thâbit learned of what they were saying about him, and upon obtaining proof of it, he fled to Baḥshûrâ, asking Ṭarkhûn for assistance, which was granted. Mûsa made a sudden attack and got possession of the suburbs of the city. Then the Sogdians received many reinforcements, and so he returned to at-Tirmidh and fortified himself therein, the people of Kishsh, Nasaf, and Bukhârâ giving him help.

Thâbit assassinated. Thâbit besieged Mûsa with 80,000, and Mûsa sent Yazîd ibn-Huzail as a mediator to Yazîd al-Ḳaṣîr al-Khuzâ'i and he accomplished the following: He 419 gained an audience with Thâbit and struck him on the head with his sword a blow from which he died seven days later. When he died, Yazîd threw himself into the river of aş-Şaghâniyân and escaped.

Ṭarkhûn defeated. Urged by his companions, Ṭarkhûn made a stand, but Mûsa defeated them by a night attack, and the Persians returned to their several countries. The people of Khurâsân used to say, "We never saw the like of Mûsa, who fought with his father two years without a retreat."

Mūsa takes at-Tirmidh. Then he went to at-Tirmidh, and got control of it, though with but a trifling number of followers, and expelled its king from it. Then he fought the Turks and Persians, and routed them with sudden attacks.

‘Uthmân ibn-Mas‘ûd put in command. When Yazid ibn-al-Muhallab was dismissed, and al-Mufaḍḍal ibn-al-Muhallab became ruler of Khurâsân, he put Uthmân ibn-Mas‘ûd in command of the campaign. The latter advanced until he took his position with 15,000 men on an island in [the country of] at-Tirmidh, called today Jazīrah ‘Uthmân. He hemmed in Mūsa, and wrote to Ṭarkhûn, who came to him. Mūsa, when he saw who it was that had come out against him, made a sortie from the city, saying to his men whom he left behind in the city, “If I am killed, surrender the city to Mudrik ibn-al-Muhallab, and do not surrender it to ibn-Mas‘ûd.”

Mūsa slain. The Turks and the Sogdians moved in between Mūsa and the fort. His horse stumbled with him and he fell. Khalaf, one of his freedmen, was riding behind him. Mūsa said, “Death is hateful.” ‘Uthmân caught sight of him and exclaimed, “By the company of Moses and the Lord of the Ka‘bah,” rushing upon him until he and his freedman were struck down. Then they leaped upon him and killed him. His followers also were killed. None of them escaped except Raḳīyah ibn-al-Harfânah, who was handed over to Khâlîd ibn-abu-Barzah al-Aslami. The man who gave the last stroke to Mūsa ibn-‘Abdallâh was Wâṣil ibn-Ṭaisalah al-‘Anbari. The city was surrendered to Mudrik ibn-al-Muhallab. Mūsa’s death was in the latter part of the year 85. A man struck Mūsa’s thigh after he was slain, and when K̲utaibah became ruler, he put this man to death.

CHAPTER V

ḲUTAIBAH'S CONQUESTS

Ḳutaibah governor of Khurâsân. Al-Ḥajjâj then appointed as governor of Khurâsân Ḳutaibah ibn-Muslim al-Bâhili. He made an expedition against Akharûn. When he was in at-Ṭalikân,¹ the two dihkâns of Balkh met him and crossed the river with him. At the time he crossed the river, there also came to him the king of aş-Ṣaghâniyân with gifts and a golden key, paying him submission and inviting him to settle in his country. The king of Akharûn and Shûmân had been oppressing and raiding the king of aş-Ṣaghâniyân, and that is why he gave Ḳutaibah these presents and this invitation. The king of Kafyân came to Ḳutaibah with the same purpose as that for which the king 420 of aş-Ṣaghâniyân had come to him, and both surrendered their lands to him.

Conquests by Ṣâlih. Ḳutaibah withdrew to Marw, leaving his brother, Ṣâlih, as his lieutenant over Transoxiana. Ṣâlih conquered Kâsân² and Ūrasht³ which is part of Farghânah. With him in his army was Naṣr ibn-Sayyâr. Ṣâlih conquered . . . ,⁴ and Khashkat⁵ of Farghânah, its ancient capital. The last of the conquerors of Kâsân and Ūrasht was Nāuḥ ibn-Asad, the people thereof having risen in rebellion in the caliphate of the Commander of the Believers, al-Muntaṣir-billāh.

Baikand reduced. The king of Jūzajān sent envoys to Ḳutaibah, who made peace with him on condition that he come to him. He did so, but later returned, and died in at-Ṭālikān. Then Ḳutaibah, Nizak being with him, raided Baikand in the year 87. He crossed the river from Zamm to Baikand, which is the nearest of the cities of Bukhārâ to the river. They rebelled and asked the Soghdians for aid, but Ḳutaibah attacked them, invading their country and besieging them. They asked for terms, but he reduced the city by force.

Tûmushkat and Karminiyah. Ḳutaibah raided Tûmushkat¹ and Karminiyah² in the year 88, leaving as his lieutenant over Marw his brother, Bashshâr ibn-Muslim. After capturing a few small forts, Ḳutaibah made peace with them. He also raided Bukhārâ and reduced it by treaty.

Ibn-al-Muthanna's account. Ḳutaibah made an expedition against Bukhārâ. The inhabitants defended themselves against him, and he said, "Let me enter the city, and I will only pray two reka's therein." They gave him permission to do so, but he concealed some men in ambush, and upon entering the city, these overpowered the gate keepers, and the Moslems entered the city. Ḳutaibah obtained much money thereby, dealing perfidiously with the inhabitants. He assaulted as-Sughd; killed Nizak in Tukhâristân, and crucified him, and reduced Kishsh and Nasaf (i. e. Nakshab) by treaty.

The king of Khârizm. The king of Khârizm was weak, and Khurzâd, his brother, had opposed him and overpowered him. The king sent to Ḳutaibah, saying, "I will 421 make thee such and such gifts, and deliver unto thee the keys, on condition that thou establish me securely as king over my country instead of my brother."

Khârizm consists of three cities encompassed by a moat. The strongest of them is Madînat-al-Fil.¹ 'Ali ibn-Mujâhid says that Madînat-al-Fil is merely Samarkand. The king established himself in the strongest of the cities and sent to K̲utaibah the money specified in his agreement with him, and the keys. K̲utaibah dispatched his brother, 'Abd-ar-Rahmân ibn-Muslim against Khurzâd, whom he attacked and killed, getting possession of 4,000 captives. He put these to death, and established the former king of Khârizm on the throne in accordance with the agreement made with him. The people of his kingdom, however, said to the Moslem, "He (their king) is weak." And they assaulted and killed him. K̲utaibah appointed his brother, 'Ubaid-allâh ibn-Muslim, governor of Khwârizm (sic).

Samarkand reduced. K̲utaibah raided Samarkand, where the kings of as-Sughd formerly used to live, although later they made their abode in Ishtikhân. K̲utaibah besieged the people of Samarkand, engaging in many battles. While the fighting was going on between them, the king of as-Sughd wrote to the king of ash-Shâsh, who was staying in aṭ-Ṭaraband.² The latter came to him with a number of his soldiery. The Moslems met them and there was a very fierce engagement. Finally K̲utaibah, with a sudden charge, put the enemy to rout. Ghûzak capitulated, the terms being an annual payment of 1,200,000 dirhams, and that the Moslem might conduct prayers in the city. K̲utaibah entered the city, where Ghûzak had prepared for him a feast. He ate and led in prayer; constructed a mosque, and departed, leaving it, the city several Moslems, among them aḍ-Ḍaḥḥāk ibn-Muzāḥim, author of the commentary on the Kuran.

Another version. Other authorities say that Kṭaibah granted peace for 700,000 dirhams and entertainment for the Moslems for three days. The terms of the surrender included also the houses of the idols and the fire temples. The idols were thrown out, plundered of their ornaments, and burned, although the Persians used to say that among them was one idol with which whoever trifled would perish. But when Kṭaibah set fire to it with his own hand, many of them accepted Islām.

Al-Mukhtār ibn-Ka'b al-Ju'fi says of Kṭaibah:

"He subdued as-Sughd with the tribes until He left the Soghdians sitting in nakedness."

'Umar orders an investigation. Abu-'Ubaidah and others say:—When 'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-'Aziz became caliph, 422 there came to him representatives of the people of Samarkand who complained to him that Kṭaibah had entered their city and settled the Moslems there fraudulently. 'Umar wrote to his 'āmil with orders to appoint them a k̄aḍī to investigate what they had related, and, if he decided in favor of expelling the Moslems, they should be expelled. The 'āmil appointed for them Jumai' ibn-Ḥāḍir al-Bāji, who decreed the expulsion of the Moslems, provided that the two parties should fight upon equal terms. But the people of the city of Samarkand were averse to warfare, and let the Moslems remain, and so they stayed among them.

Kṭaibah's conquests. Al-Haitham ibn-'Adi from ibn-'Ayyāsh al-Hamadhāni:—Kṭaibah conquered the whole of ash-Shāsh and took Asbijāb.¹ Other authorities say that the fortress of Ashbijāb was captured before; then the Turks together with some of the people of ash-Shâsh took it; finally in the caliphate of the Commander of the Believers, al-Mu'taṣim-billâh, Nauḥ ibn-Asad conquered it and built about it a wall surrounding the vineyards and farms of the inhabitants.

Abu-'Ubaidah Ma'mar ibn-al-Muthanna says that Ḳutaibah conquered Khârizm and Samarkand by force. Sa'id ibn-'Uthmân had made treaties with their inhabitants, but Ḳutaibah conquered them afterwards. They had not broken faith, but he disregarded their treaty. He conquered Baikand, Kishsh, Nasaf, and ash-Shâsh; raided Farghânah and subdued part of it, and raided as-Sughd and Ushrûsanah.¹

CHAPTER VI

ḲUTAIBAH'S DOWNFALL

Ḳutaibah and Sulaimân. Ḳutaibah feared the hostility of Sulaimân ibn-ʿAbd-al-Malik; he had worked to have ʿAbd-al-ʿAziz ibn-al-Walid succeed to the caliphate, and wanted to keep the succession from Sulaimân. When al-Walid died, and Sulaimân succeeded him, Ḳutaibah harangued the people, and said, "Habannakat-al-ʿÂ'ishi has become your ruler." This he said because Sulaimân used to give gifts to and confer favors upon the wealthy and prosperous and neglect others; and Habannakah¹ (i. e. Yazid ibn-Tharwân) used to give his fat camels much fodder and pasture [instead of feeding up the thin ones], saying, "I will not try to improve what Allah has spoiled." Ḳutaibah urged the people to depose Sulaimân, but none of them consented to this. Then he reviled the banu-Tamim, reproaching them with treachery, and saying, "Ye are not banu-Tamim [upright], but banu-Dhamim [blameworthy]." And he upbraided the banu-Bakr ibn-Wâ'il, calling them "brothers of Maslamah." He upbraided the Azd, saying, "Ye have traded your spears for oars and the bridles of your horses for boats." And he said, "O people of the Sâflah (lowlands, or vileness), for I will not call you people of the ʿÂliyah (highlands, or superiority). Verily, I place you where Allah hath placed you."

423

Sulaimân wrote to Ḳutaibah, in regard to his governorship of Khurâsân, and ordered him to release all who were in his prison, to pay the army their stipends, and to allow all who wished to return to do so—something they were looking forward to—and he ordered the messenger to make public the contents of the letter. Ḳutaibah said, "This is part of his plan against me" And he arose and said, "Men, behold, Sulaimân hath bestowed upon you the marrow of mosquitoes' legs, and you are going to permit the oath of allegiance to a good-looking boy whose sacrificial animal is not [yet] lawful."¹

The people were angered against him because of his reviling them, and he apologized for it, saying, "I was angry and did not know what I was saying I sought only your good." They, however, talked among themselves, saying, "If he permit us to return, it were well for him. If he does not, he has only himself to blame" This came to Ḳutai-bah's ears, and he harangued the men, setting forth in detail his beneficence towards them, and blaming their lack of fidelity to him and their opposition, and showing them the danger from the Persians against whom he had led them to victory. But they resolved to fight him, and answered him not a word, but besought al-Ḥudain ibn-al-Mundhir to be allowed to appoint him to take command of their affairs. He declined, but recommended to them Waki' ibn-Ḥassân ibn-Ḳais ibn-abu-Sûd ibn-Kalb ibn-'Auf ibn-Mâlik ibn-Ghud-ânah ibn-Yarbû' ibn-Hanthalah at-Tamîmi, saying, "No one except him is strong enough for this matter, for he is a rough Arab whose kinfolk will obey him, and moreover he is of the banu-Tamîm, and since Ḳutaibah put to death the sons of al-Ahtam, the Tamîm will seek blood revenge for them." And so they betook themselves to Waki', and he gave them his hand and they swore obedience to him. Before this the mediator between him and them was Ḥayyân, the freedman of Maşkalah.

In Khurâsân at this time there were of Baṣran soldiery 40,000, of Kûfans 7,000,¹ and of mawâli 7,000.

Waki' feigned illness and remained indoors. Kûtaibah kept sending for him. He had rubbed his feet and his leg with red clay, and would say, "I am so ill that I am unable to move about." And when Kûtaibah would send some people to bring Waki' to him, they would slip away and go to Waki' and tell him. Then Waki' called for his armor and a spear and took the veil of the mother of his children and tied it to it. A man called Idris met him and said to him, "O abu-Muṭarrâf, thou desirest something and thou fearest that from which the man has granted thee safety; Allah is Allah!" But Waki' said, "This Idris is the apostle of Iblîs. Will Kûtaibah indeed grant me safety? By Allah! I will not go to him until his head is brought to me."² And he went slowly on towards the camp of Kûtaibah and came to it while Kûtaibah was with his household and some people who were loyal to him. 424

His brother Ṣâliḥ said to his slave, "Bring my bow." Some one there said to him scoffingly, "This is no time for a bow," and [at this moment] a man of the banu-Dabbah shot at him and pierced his breast bone. He fell to the ground and was carried into the camp and died, Kûtaibah being at his head. Then Kûtaibah kept saying to Ḥayyân, who was in command of the Persians, "Charge," but Ḥayyân would say, "The time for this has not yet come;" and when the Persians did charge upon the Arabs, Ḥayyân said, "O soldiers of Persia, why should ye kill one another for Kûtaibah? It is because he is kindly disposed towards you?" And he deserted with them to the banu-Tamîm.

The battle began. Those who stood by Kûtaibah were his brothers and his household and some of the sons of the kings of as-Sughd who were ashamed ^uto desert him. The tent ropes of his camp were cut, and the ropes of the pavilion, and they collapsed upon Ḳutaibah. The supports of the pavilion struck him on the top of his head and killed him, and 'Abdallāh ibn-'Alwān cut off his head.

Some authorities, among them Hishām ibn-al-Kalbi, deny this, saying that the soldiers came in upon him in his camp, and Jahm ibn-Zahr al-Ju'fi killed him, and Sa'd ibn-Majd struck him, and ibn-'Alwān cut off his head.

With him were killed many of his brothers and of his household, and aṣ-Ṣammā', the mother of his children. Dirār ibn-Muslim escaped, the banu-Tamīm according him protection. The Azd took the head of Ḳutaibah and his signet ring. To Waki' was brought Ḳutaibah's head, and he sent it to Sulaimān by Salīṭ ibn-'Aṭiyah al-Ḥanifi. The army started to plunder the Bāhilah,¹ but Waki' prevented this.

Waki' wrote to abu-Mijlaz Lāḥik ibn-Ḥumaid, appointing him over Marw. He accepted, and the people were pleased with him.

Ḳutaibah, the day he was killed, was fifty-five years old.³ At his death those who were in Khurāsān were divided into factions, but Waki' ibn-abu-Sūd kept order in the country.² Sulaimān wanted to make him governor of it, but some one told him that Waki' was exalted by war but degraded by 425 peace, and was characterized by rudeness and the uncouthness of the desert. Waki' used to call for a brass chamber-pot and urinate while people were looking at him.

Waki' imprisoned. He continued there nine months, until Yazīd ibn-al-Muhallab came to supersede him. Yazīd was in al-'Irāk, and Sulaimān wrote to him to go to ² Text corrupt. I have adopted De Goeje's suggestion as to the reading.

Khurâsân, dispatching to him his writ of appointment. Yazid sent his son, Mukhallad, on ahead. The latter had an accounting with Waki' and put him in prison, saying to him, "Pay over Allah's money." He replied, "Hast thou been one of Allah's treasurers?"

Al-Buttam reduced. Mukhallad raided al-Buttam and conquered it. The inhabitants afterwards broke faith, and he left them and went off in another direction from them, so that they hoped he had withdrawn. But he returned suddenly and entered their city. Jahm ibn-Zahr also entered it and seized in it money and idols of gold, and the people of al-Buttam [today] claim relationship to him.

Kutaibah and the sons of al-Ahtam. Abu-'Ubaidah Ma'mar ibn-al-Muthanna says that they used to believe that 'Abdallâh ibn-'Abdallâh ibn-al-Ahtam abu-Khâkân had written to al-Ḥajjâj, traducing Ḳutaibah and telling of the wealth that he had acquired. 'Abdallâh at that time was Ḳutaibah's lieutenant over Marw for Ḳutaibah, whenever he sent on a raid, would make him his lieutenant over Marw. When the raid against Bukhârâ and its vicinity was going on, and as usual Ḳutaibah had appointed him his lieutenant, there came to him (Ḳutaibah) Bashir, one of the sons of al-Ahtam, and said to him, "Thou art too lenient with 'Abdallâh, though he is an envious mischief-maker. We do not feel confidence in him that he will not displace thee and mistreat us." Ḳutaibah replied, "Thou sayest this only because of thine own envy towards the son of thy uncle." He said, "Let my pardon rest with thee; if this come to pass, thou wilt excuse me."

Ḳutaibah went off on a raid, and 'Abdallâh wrote the above mentioned letter about him to al-Ḥajjâj, and al-Ḥajjâj enclosed his letter with one of his own to Ḳutaibah. The messenger went on his journey, stopped in a street of Marw, and then went on without coming to 'Abdallâh. But the latter had a presentiment of evil, and fled all the way to Damascus, where he spent some time peddling wine and linen stuffs in a bundle which he carried on his back. Then he placed a rag and some cotton on one of his eyes, and then bandaged it, and so got the nickname of abu-Ṭinah ("the muddy"); and he used to sell olive oil. In this condition he continued until al-Walid ibn-'Abd-al-Malik perished and Sulaimân succeeded him. Then he put off the dirt and the rag and delivered a speech of congratulation for Sulaimân and of excoriation for al-Ḥajjāj and Ẹutaibah, 426 who had both sworn allegiance to 'Abd-al-'Aziz ibn-'Abd-al-Malik and had repudiated Sulaimân. As the people dispersed, they said, "Abu-Ṭinah, the oil seller, is the most eloquent of men."

When ibn-al-Ahtam's letter to al-Ḥajjāj finally reached Ẹutaibah, the latter, failing to get hold of 'Abdallāh, turned against al-Ahtam's cousins and sons, one of whom was Shaibah abu-Shabib, and killed nine of their men, Bashir among them. Bashir said to him, "Remember my excuse with thee" But Ẹutaibah said, "Thou didst put one foot forward and the other back,¹ O enemy of Allah," and killed them all.

Wakī' swears vengeance. Before this Wakī' ibn-abu-Sūd had been in command of the banu-Tamim in Khurāsān. Then Ẹutaibah had removed him from the command over them, and appointed a certain man of the banu-Darār aḍ-Dabbi, who said, when they were killed, "Allah slay me if I slay him not." People noticed his absence from the noon and afternoon prayer, and said to him, "Thou didst not attend prayer." He answered, "How shall I pray for a master who has killed a number of ours, all of them mere boys, and felt no anger in their behalf?"

Madīnat-al-Fil. Abu-'Ubaidah relates:—Ẹutaibah raided

¹ Proverb equivalent to "trying to carry water on both shoulders".

Madinat-al-Fil and conquered it; Umayyah ibn-'Abdallâh ibn-Khâlid ibn-Asîd had taken it before this, but they broke the terms of the treaty, and Yazîd ibn-al-Muhallab made an unsuccessful attempt to reconquer it. Ka'b al-Ashkârî says:

" Fil gave herself to thee and well for her! Though before thee the babbling Braggard aspired to her."

(He meant Yazîd ibn-al-Muhallab.)

'Umar II appoints al-Jarrâh. 'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-'Azîz, when he became caliph, wrote to the kings of Transoxiana, inviting them to accept Islâm. Some of them did so. The 'âmil of 'Umar over Khurâsân was al-Jarrâh ibn-'Abdallâh al-Ḥakamî. He seized Mukhallad ibn-Yazîd and Yazîd's *'âmil*s and imprisoned them.

The frontier of China. Al-Jarrâh sent 'Abdallâh ibn-Ma'mar al-Yashkuri to Transoxiana. The latter advanced far into the country of the enemy, even having it in his mind to enter China (aṣ-Sîn). But the Turks hemmed him in, until to save himself he drew back from them, going to ash-Shâsh. 'Umar refused to collect the kharâj from those who accepted Islâm in Khurâsân, showed favors to the converts, and built khâns.

Al-Jarrâh removed. Later 'Umar was told that al-Jarrâh was ruling in a partisan spirit. The latter wrote him that the inhabitants of Khurâsân could not be kept in order except by the sword. The caliph did not credit this, and dismissed him. 'Umar owed him a debt, but paid him, and appointed 'Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Nu'aim al-Ghâmîdî to take charge of the military operations in Khurâsân, and 'Abd-ar- 427
Raḥmân ibn-'Abdallâh al-Kushairî to collect the kharâj.

Al-Jarrâh ibn-'Abdallâh used to take silver and gold coins of different weights and put them under the carpet in his room, and when any one of his brothers or intimate friends came to visit him, he would toss to each one of them in proportion to his opinion of each one's deserts.

CHAPTER VII

CALIPHATES OF YAZÎD AND HISHÂM

Sa'id al-Khudhainah. Afterwards Yazid ibn-'Abd-al-Malik, when he became ruler, appointed Maslamah ibn-'Abd-al-Malik governor of al-'Irâq and Khurâsân. Maslamah appointed Sa'id ibn-'Abd-al-'Aziz ibn-al-Ĥârith ibn-al-Ĥakam ibn-abu-l-'Âṣi ibn-Umayyah to govern Khurâsân. This Sa'id was nicknamed Ĥudhaifah,¹ because some one of the dihkâns of Transoxiana happened upon him in a yellow gown and with his hair done up, and said, "This is Ĥudhaifah," meaning "mistress." Sa'id was Maslamah's nephew by his daughter.

Sa'id's lieutenant defeated. Sa'id sent on as his lieutenant Saurah ibn-al-Ĥurr al-Ĥanṭhalî. Later he sent his son. The latter crossed over to Transoxiana and established himself at Ishtikhan.² The Turks had attacked the city, but he entered into conflict with them, putting them to rout, and protecting the people from their exactions for a [long] time. Later on he met the Turks in battle again, and they defeated him and made a great slaughter among his followers; and Sa'id appointed Naṣr ibn-Sayyâr to the command.

of Sa'id; so he dismissed him, and made Sa'id ibn-'Amr al-Jurashi governor of Khurâsân. When the latter arrived there, he ordered his scribe to read aloud his commission. The scribe made some mistakes in pronunciation, and Sa'id said, "O people, the commander is guiltless of these mistakes which ye have heard."

As-Sughd subjugated. Al-Jurashi sent to as-Sughd, inviting its people to return to submission, and refrained from troubling them until his envoys could bring back their acquiescence in his succession to the rule. Then he marched against them. More than 10,000 of their main body deserted and left them, coming over to submit, and al-Jurashi conquered all of the strongholds of as-Sughd, subjugating the enemy completely.

Muslim succeeds al-Jurashi. Yazid ibn-'Abd-al-Malik had designated Hishâm ibn-'Abd-al-Malik as heir apparent, and after him al-Walid ibn-Yazid. When Yazid ibn-'Abd-al-Malik died, Hishâm succeeded to the throne, and appointed 'Umar ibn-Hubairah al-Fazâri governor of al-'Irâq. The latter dismissed al-Jurashi, and appointed Muslim ibn-Sa'id as his 'âmil over Khurâsân. He raided Afshin and then made peace with him, the terms being 6,000 sheep and the surrender of his citadel to him. Then he withdrew to Marw. 428

Naşr ibn-Sayyâr. He made Naşr ibn-Sayyâr his lieutenant over Tukhâristân. A number of the Arabs refused to acknowledge the latter's authority, and he resorted to force, but, later, ambassadors of both parties met and came to an agreement.

Muslim's rebellion. Then Hishâm appointed as his 'âmil over al-'Irâq Khâlid ibn-'Abdallâh al-Kasri, who made his brother, Asad ibn-'Abdallâh, governor of Khurâsân. News of this reached Muslim ibn-Sa'id, who marched until he came to Farghânah, and took possession of that city. He cut the trees and laid waste the cultivated land. The Turkish Khâkân came down upon him with his army, and he withdrew from Farghânah and marched three stages on a single day, until his beasts could go no further. The Turks attacked the outskirts of his camp.

One of the poets says :

“Thou didst wage war on us rebelliously, fearing dismissal,
But thou didst not escape from this vain world of trouble.”

Al-Hasan fears the Turks. Asad proceeded to Samarḳand and appointed as ‘âmil over it al-Ḥasan ibn-abu-l-‘Amarraṭah. The Turks used to attack the outskirts of Samarḳand and raid, and al-Ḥasan would retreat whenever they made a raid, and would not meet them. One day he was preaching, and cried out against the Turks in his sermon, saying, “O God, cut off the last remnant of them, and speedily destroy their power, and send down calamity (ṣabr) upon them.” And the people of Samarḳand reviled him, and said, “Nay, let God rather send down ice (ṣabar), and make their feet to slip.”

Asad's conquests. Asad raided the Nimrûd mountains, and Nimrûd surrendered to him and accepted Islâm. He raided al-Khuttal. When he arrived at Balkh, he ordered its city to be built and transferred the government offices thither. In his raids against al-Khuttal he could accomplish nothing, but brought suffering and hunger upon the people. Charges were preferred to him against Naṣr ibn-Sayyâr, and he had him beaten and sent him to Khâlîd together with three men who were suspected of insurrection. Then Asad withdrew from Khurâsân, leaving as his lieutenant over it al-Ḥakam ibn-‘Awânah al-Kalbi.

Ashras governor. Hishâm appointed as ‘âmil over Khurâsân Ashras ibn-‘Abdallâh as-Sulami. With him was a Nabatean scribe named ‘Umairah, his kunyah being abu-Umayyah. This scribe incited him to evil. Ashras increased the assessments of Khurâsân, ignored the dihkâns, invited the people of Transoxiana to accept Islâm, and ordered the remission of the jizyah for all converts to the faith. There was a rush to accept Islâm, and the taxes decreased. When Ashras saw this, he seized the tribute money.¹ The people disapproved of this, and became disaffected towards him. Thâbit Ḳuṭnah al-Azdi championed their cause. He was called Ḳuṭnah ("cotton") because he had a sightless eye upon which he used to wear a piece of cotton. Ashras sent and scattered them, seized Thâbit and imprisoned him. Later he let him go, on paying a sum of money, and sent him away somewhere, and the Turks made an attack upon him and killed him.

Al-Junaid governor. In the year 112 Hishâm appointed al-Junaid ibn-'Abd-ar-Rahmân al-Murri 'âmil over Khurâsân. He met the Turks and attacked them, sending out some skirmishers, who defeated the son of Khâkân while he was out hunting and drunk. They captured him and took him to al-Junaid ibn-'abd-ar-Rahmân, who sent him to Hishâm, and continued the campaign against the Turks until he had overcome them. He wrote for reinforcements to Hishâm, who sent to his assistance 'Amr ibn-Muslim at the head of 10,000 men from al-Baṣrah, 'Abd-ar-Rahmân ibn-Nu'aim at the head of 10,000 from al-Kûfah. He also supplied him with 30,000 spears and 30,000 shields, and took charge of the payments, assigning stipends to 15,000 men.

Death of al-Junaid. Al-Junaid made many raids. During his administration the partisans of the banu-Hishâm spread and their cause became strong. Al-Junaid died in Marw, and Hishâm appointed as governor of Khurâsân 'Âsim ibn-'Abdallâh ibn-Yazîd al-Hilâlî.

Abu-'Ubaidah Ma'mar ibn-al-Muthanna says that the regions about Tukhâristân became turbulent, and al-Junaid ibn-'Abd-ar-Rahmân subdued them and brought them back to peace and the payment of tribute.

CHAPTER VIII

UNDER THE ABBASIDES

Border raids. Naṣr ibn-Sayyâr raided Ushrûsanah during the reign of Marwân ibn-Muḥammad, but could accomplish nothing against it. And when the Commander of the Believers, abu-l-'Abbâs, succeeded to the caliphate, he and the caliphs after him kept appointing 'āmils who penetrated the borders of the enemy's country, invading their territory, and making war upon whoever did not acknowledge allegiance, or who having made an agreement, had broken it, and bringing back to terms those who refused to fulfil 430 their agreement, by declaring war upon them.

Ushrûsanah. Al-Ma'mûn, the Commander of the Believers, when he became caliph, made war upon as-Sughd and Ushrûsanah and those of the inhabitants of Farghânah who had rebelled against him. He persevered in fighting and attacking them as long as he was in Khurâsân and afterwards. When he sent his cavalry against them, he would write to them, inviting them to become converts to Islâm and subjects of the caliph, and even making them desire to do so.

*Kâbul.*¹ He sent an army against Kâbul-Shah, who submitted to taxation and acknowledged obedience. The post reached to that country, so that myrobalan² fruit was brought to the caliph therefrom, arriving quite fresh.

The king of Ushrûsanah. Kâwis, king of Ushrûsanah, wrote to al-Faql ibn-Sahl, al-Ma'mûn's wazîr and secretary [of state], who is known as dhu-r-Riyâsatain,¹ asking him for peace, agreeing to pay him tribute in money, if he would keep the Moslems from raiding his country. This was agreed to; but when al-Ma'mûn went to Madinat-as-Salâm, Kâwis refused to carry out the agreement.

In his household was a favored steward (Kahramân) who had given his daughter in marriage to Kâwis' son, al-Faql. Al-Faql used to associate intimately with him and loved him dearly. He used to talk with him against Kâwis' son, Haidar (known as al-Afshin), reviling him. Haidar assaulted the steward and killed him at the Kunb gate of their city, and fled to Hâshim ibn-Muḥawwar al-Khuttali. Hâshim was in his country to appoint a king over it. Haidar besought him to write to his father (Kâwis), asking for pardon. But when he killed his steward, Kâwis had already married Umm-Junaid to Tarâdis, and he fled in company with some of his dihkâns. When this came to the knowledge of Haidar, he professed Islâm and set out for Madinat-as-Salâm, and described to al-Ma'mûn the ease with which Ushrûsanah might be taken; he made light of the bad reports which people had made to the caliph in regard to the place, and described to him a short road thither.

As a consequence al-Ma'mûn sent Ahmad ibn-abu-Khâlid al-Ahwal, the scribe, with a strong force to raid it. When he became aware of the latter's approach towards him, Kâwis sent al-Faql ibn-Kâwis to the Turks to ask for aid. Numbers of them rallied to his assistance; but Ahmad ibn-abu-Khâlid marched to the country of Ushrûsanah and had conquered its capital before al-Faḍl reached the Turks. Kâwis had thought that he would advance along the long road, and that he did not know the short way, and consequently fell into his power. Becoming disheartened, he submitted and declared obedience. The news of it reached al-Faḍl and he turned aside with the Turks to a desert place. Then he separated from them and went rapidly until he came to his father and received amnesty (amân) together with him. The Turks perished of thirst.

Kâwis went to Madinat-as-Salâm and professed Islâm, and al-Ma'mûn confirmed him as king over his country. Later he made his son, Ḥaidar (i. e. al-Afshîn), king after him.

Transoxiana under al-Ma'mûn. Al-Ma'mûn used to write to his 'amîls in Khurâsân to raid those of the people of Transoxiana who had not submitted and accepted Islâm. He would send his envoys to grant pensions in the Register (dîwân) to those whom he liked. He wanted the good will of the people of these regions and of the sons of their kings, and to conciliate them by favors. When they came to his door, he honored them and gave them his blessing.

Under Mu'tasim. Then Mu'tasim-billâh became caliph, and followed the example of his predecessor to such an extent that most of the leaders¹ of his army were from the troops of the people of Transoxiana: Sogdians, Farâghânah, and people of al-Ushrûsanah, ash-Shâsh, and other places. Their kings used to visit him; Islâm became dominant in those regions; and the inhabitants of those countries began to make-war against the Turks beyond them.

The Ghûziyah. 'Abdallâh ibn-Tâhir had his son, Tâhir ibn-'Abdallâh raid the country of the Ghûziyah,² and he conquered places to which none of the Moslems before him had reached.

Arab colonists. Al-'Umari from al-Haitham ibn-'Adi from ibn-'Ayyâsh:—Kutaibah colonized Transoxiana with Arabs, settling them in the land of Farghânah and ash-Shâsh.

PART XX
CONQUEST OF AS-SIND

CHAPTER I

BORDER RAIDS

Under 'Umar I. 'Ali ibn-Muḥammad ibn-'Abdallāh ibn-abu-Saif :—'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭāb appointed 'Uthmān ibn-abu-l-'Āṣi ath-Thakafī over al-Baḥrāin and 'Umān in the year 15. The latter sent his brother, al-Ḥakam, to al-Baḥrain, and went himself to 'Umān, and sent an army across to Tānah.¹ When the army returned, he wrote to 'Umar, informing him of this expedition. 'Umar wrote to him in reply, "O brother of the Thakif, thou hast put a worm upon the wood. By Allah, I swear that if they had been smitten, I would exact from thy tribe the equivalent." 432

Al-Ḥakam sent an expedition against Barwaṣ² also, and sent his brother, al-Mughīrah ibn-abu-l-'Āṣi, to the gulf of ad-Daibul,³ where he met the enemy in battle and won a victory.

Under the caliph 'Uthmān. When 'Uthmān ibn-'Affān became ruler, he appointed 'Abdallāh ibn-'Āmir ibn-Kuraiz governor of al-'Irāk, and wrote to him, ordering him to send to the frontier of al-Hind⁴ to secure information about it and to bring him back the news thereof. 'Abdallāh sent Ḥakīm ibn-Jabalah al-'Abdi, and upon his return, despatched him to 'Uthmān, who asked him about the condition of the country. He replied, "O Commander of the Believers, I have examined it and know it thoroughly." The caliph said, "Then describe it to me." He answered, "The water supply is scanty; the dates are inferior; and the robbers are bold. A small army would be lost there, and a large army would starve." 'Uthmân said to him, "Are you giving me information or reciting poetry?"¹ He replied, "Nay, information." As a consequence 'Uthmân did not have any one raid the land.

Al-Hârith's raid. But in the latter part of the year 38 and the beginning of the year 39, in the caliphate of 'Ali ibn-abu-Ṭâlib, al-Hârith ibn-Murrah al-'Abdi undertook an expedition to this frontier, with the permission of 'Ali. He was victorious, and gained booty and captives, distributing on a single day 1,000 head. He was later killed together with all but a few of his followers in the country of al-Ḳikân.² His death occurred in the year 42.

Al-Ḳikân is part of the land of as-Sind where it boards on Khurâsân.

Al-Muhallab raids frontier. Then al-Muhallab ibn-abu-Ṣufrah raided this frontier in the days of Mu'âwiyah in the year 44. He reached Bannah³ and al-Ahwâr,⁴ towns between al-Multân⁵ and Kâbul. The enemy met and attacked him and his followers. In the country of al-Ḳikân, al-Muhallab met with eighteen Turkish knights, riding horses with docked tails. They attacked him, but were all killed. Al-Muhallab said, "How much more expeditious in manœuvring these barbarians were than we!" [In consequence] he had the tails of his own horses docked, being the first Moslem to do such a thing.

Of Bannah al-Azdi says:

433

"Knowest thou not that the Azd, the night they were attacked
In Bannah, were the best of the army of al-Muhallab?"

‘Abdallâh ibn-Sawwâr. Afterwards ‘Abdallâh ibn-‘Âmir, in the time of Mu‘âwiyah ibn-abu-Sufyân, appointed ‘Abdallâh ibn-Sawwâr al-‘Abdi over the frontier of al-Hind. (Some say that Mu‘âwiyah himself appointed him.) He made a raid upon al-Kikân and obtained booty. Then he went to Mu‘âwiyah and presented him with some Kikân horses. He remained there for a while and then returned to al-Kikân, but the Turks collected their forces and killed him. The poet says about him:

"Ibn-Sawwâr all the time
Kindling fires and slaying hunger."¹

He was given to hospitality and let no fire be kindled in his camp except his own.² One night he saw another fire and said, "What is this?" They answered, "A woman in child birth for whom a date custard is being made." Thereupon he ordered that the men be given such a custard to eat three times.

Šinân ibn-Salamah. Ziyâd ibn-abu-Sufyân, in the days of Mu‘âwiyah, appointed Sinân ibn-Salamah ibn-al-Muḥabbik al-Hudhali to the command. He was an excellent, godly man, and was the first to bind the troops by an oath to divorce their wives.³ He proceeded to the frontier and conquered Mukrân¹ by force. He established a garrison there and made it his headquarters and kept the country in order. Concerning him the poet says:

² So that he would have a monopoly of the hospitality.

"I saw the Hudhail, solemnly swearing
To divorce their wives who had no dower.
It were easy for me to take such an oath as ibn-Muḥabbiq's,
When they have taken the gold rings from their necks.²

Ibn-al-Kalbi says that the one who conquered Mukrân was Ḥakīm ibn-Jabalah al-'Abdi.

Râshid ibn-'Amr. Afterwards Ziyâd put in charge of the frontier Râshid ibn-'Amr al-Judaidi of the Azd.³ He went to Mukrân; then he conducted a successful raid against al-Ḳikân; but later, while raiding the Mîd, he was killed. Sinân ibn-Salamah succeeded to the command of the army, and Ziyâd appointed him over the frontier. He remained there two years.

Al-A'sha of Hamdân says of Mukrân:

"And thou art going to Mukrân.—
How far the destination from the starting place!
I have no use for Mukrân,
Either to fight there or to trade.
I was told about it; I did not go there;
And I always dislike to hear about it.
Most people there are hungry,
And the rest of them are depraved.⁴

Al-Ḳunduhâr. Abbâd ibn-Ziyâd raided the frontier of al-Hind from Sijistân. He went to Sanârûdh; thence he proceeded by way of Kahz to ar-Rûdhbâr,⁵ of the land of Sijistân as far as the river Hindmand.⁶ He camped at Kishsh,¹ and crossed the desert until he came to al-Ḳunduhâr,² whose inhabitants he attacked and put to flight, driving them back, and conquering the land after a number of Moslem casualties. He saw there the high turbans of the natives, and had some made like them. [In consequence of this] they are called 'abbâdiyyah.'

Mufarrigh says:

"How many a footprint in the jungles and land of India,
And tunics of the unburied slain
In Ḳunduhâr. Yea, of these whose scroll was sealed
In Ḳunduhâr, none brought back the news."

Al-Mundhir. Ziyâd next appointed al-Mundhir ibn-al-Jârûd al-'Abdi (his kunya being abu-l-Ash'ath) over the frontier of al-Hind. He raided al-Bûkân³ and al-Ḳiḳân. The Moslems were victorious and captured much booty and distributed the troops among the cities there. Al-Mundhir conquered Ḳusdâr⁴ and took many captives there. Sinân had taken it before, but its inhabitants had rebelled. Al-Mundhir died there. The poet says:

"He came to Ḳusdâr, and there he found
The grave. He rejoiced not with them that rejoiced.
To Allah belong Ḳusdâr and its grapes.
Alas! What a hero of the world and of religion is buried there!"⁵

Ibn-Harrî. Then 'Ubaidallâh ibn-Ziyâd put in command ibn-Harrî al-Bâhili, by whose hand Allah subdued this country. He fought a fierce and successful campaign there, acquiring much booty.

Some authorities say that 'Ubaidallâh appointed Sinân 435 ibn-Salamah and that Ḥarrî (sic) was in command of his troops.

Concerning Ḥarrî ibn-Ḥarrî the poet says :

“Had I not been bold in al-Bûkân, there had not returned Thence the troops of ibn-Ḥarrî with spoils of war.”

Al-Bûkân. The inhabitants of al-Bûkân today are Moslems. ‘Imrân ibn-Mûsa ibn-Yahya ibn-Khâlid al-Barmaki built a city there which he named al-Baiḍâ’ (“the white”). This was in the caliphate of al-Mu‘taṣim-billâh.

CHAPTER II

CAMPAIGNS UNDER AL-ḤAJJÂJ

Sa'id ibn-Aslam governor. When al-Ḥajjâj ibn-Yûsuf ibn-al-Ḥakam ibn-abu-'Uḡail ath-Thaḡafi became governor of al-'Irâḡ, he appointed Sa'id ibn-Aslam ibn-Zur'ah al-Kilâbi over Mukrân (i. e. the frontier). Mu'âwiyah and Muḥammad, the sons of al-Ḥârith al-'Ilâfi, led an expedition against him, and he was killed. The two 'Ilâfis got control of the frontier. The name of 'Ilâf was Rabbân ibn-Ḥulwân ibn-'Imrân ibn-al-Ḥâf ibn-Ḳuḏâ'ah, and he was the father of Jarm.

Mujjâ'ah. Al-Ḥajjâj then appointed Mujjâ'ah ibn-Si'r at-Tamîmi governor of this frontier. Mujjâ'ah made raids, gaining booty, and conquering portions of Ḳandâbil.¹ Later Muḥammad ibn-al-Ḳâsim completed the conquest. Mujjâ'ah died a year after in Mukrân.

The poet says :

„ Not one of the great deeds thou hast done,
But the mention of it makes thee more shameless.”²

Followed by Muḥammad ibn-Hârûn. Then, after Mujjâ'ah, al-Ḥajjâj appointed Muḥammad ibn-Hârûn ibn-Dhirâ' an-Namâri, and during his administration the king of the island of Rubies³ sent to al-Ḥajjâj some women who were born in his country as Moslems, their fathers, who had been merchants, having died. He wanted to court favor with al-Ḥajjāj by sending them back. But the ship in which they were sailing was attacked by some of the Mīd of ad-Daibul in barks (bawārij), and was captured with all that was in it. One of the women, who was of the tribe of the banu-Yarbū', cried out, "O Ḥajjāj!" al-Ḥajjāj heard of this and exclaimed, "Here am I." He sent to Dāhir, asking him to set the women free, but Dāhir replied, "Pirates over whom I have no control captured them." So al-Ḥajjāj sent 'Ubaidallāh ibn-Nabhān to raid ad-Daibul, but he was killed. Then al-Ḥajjāj wrote to Budail ibn-Ṭahfah al-Bajali, who was in 'Umān, ordering him to go against ad-Daibul. But when Budail met the enemy, his horse ran away with him, and the enemy surrounded him and killed him. (Other authorities say that he was killed by the Zuṭṭ of al-Budhah.¹) 436

This island was called the Island of Rubies because of the beauty of the faces of its women.

Muḥammad ibn-al-Kāsim. Then al-Ḥajjāj put Muḥammad ibn-al-Kāsim ibn-Muḥammad ibn-al-Ḥakam ibn-abu-'Ukail in charge, during the reign of al-Walid ibn-'Abd-al-Malik. He raided as-Sind. Muḥammad was at that time in Fārs and had received orders from al-Ḥajjāj to march to ar-Rai. He sent abu-l-Aswad Jahm ibn-Zahr al-Ju'fi towards ar-Rai in command of his van, but al-Ḥajjāj sent Jahm back to Muḥammad, and had the latter take over the frontier of as-Sind, reinforcing him with 6,000 from the army of the people of Syria, and a number from other sources, and supplying him with everything he desired, even to thread and needles. Al-Ḥajjāj ordered him to stay in Shirāz until he got all his followers together, and all of his preparations made.

Vinegar in cotton. Al-Ḥajjāj prepared clean cotton and soaked it in vinegar made of sour wine, and then hung it up in the shade to dry. He said, "When ye get to as-Sind, vinegar is scarce there, so put this cotton in water; then heat it up, and season with it." Other authorities say that Muhammad, when he got to the frontier, wrote to al-Ḥajjāj, complaining of the scarcity of vinegar with them, and he sent him the cotton dipped in vinegar.

Ibn-al-Kâsim's campaigns. Muhammad ibn-al-Kâsim went to Mukrân and remained there some days; then he went to Kânazbûr¹ and conquered it; then to Armâ'il² and conquered it. Muhammad ibn-Hârûn ibn-Dhirâ' met him, joined forces with him, and accompanied him, but died not far from there, and was buried in Kanil.³

Siege of ad-Daibul. Then Muhammad ibn-al-Kâsim went from Armâ'il, accompanied by Jahm ibn-Zahr al-Ju'fi, arriving at ad-Daibul on a Friday. To him came some ships laden with men, weapons, and supplies. When he encamped at ad-Daibul, he constructed trenches; lances were set up along the trenches, with flags flying from them, and the troops camped according to their flags. He had catapults, known as 'arûs,⁴ set up, manned by 500 men.

Buddhist temple in ad-Daibul. In ad-Daibul was a great Buddhist temple on which was a long yard-arm [daḳal] with a red banner on it that, when the wind blew, went around the city, twisting and turning. The temple [budd] (according to tradition) was a great minaret erected in the midst of their buildings, and housing their idol or idols, through which the building was renowned. The idol was inside of the minaret also. Everything which they honored in a religious way was called by them Budd, the idol also being Budd.

Al-Ḥajjāj counsels Muḥammad. Al-Ḥajjāj kept sending messages to Muḥammad, and every three days Muḥammad would dispatch his replies to him, describing the progress of the campaign, and asking his advice about what should be done in the matter. One letter came to Muḥammad from al-Ḥajjāj, saying, "Set up the 'arūs, shortening its foot, and placing it towards the east. Then summon the officer in command of it, and order him to aim the shot at the yard-arm which thou didst describe to me."

Ad-Daibul taken. The yard-arm was shot at and broken, and the consequent dismay of the unbelievers was great. Then Muḥammad, upon their making a sortie against him, attacked them, and drove them clear back in flight. He ordered up the ladders. They were placed in position, and the men went up them, the first of them to get up being a Kūfan from Murād. The city was thus conquered by force, and Muḥammad kept up the slaughter of the inhabitants for three days. Dāhir's governor fled from the place, but the custodians of the house of their god were killed. Muḥammad marked out a quarter for the Moslems, built a mosque, and settled 4,000 colonists there.

The Buddhist temple destroyed. Muhammad ibn-Yahya says, "Mansūr ibn-Ḥātim an-Nahawi, freedman of the family of Khālid ibn-Asīd, related to me that he saw the yard-arm, which was on the minaret of the Budd, broken, and that 'Anbasah ibn-Ishāk aḍ-Dabbi, who ruled over as-Sind in the caliphate of al-Mu'taṣim-billāh, tore down the top of this minaret, and made a prison of it; and began the rebuilding of the city with the stones of this minaret which were torn down. He was deposed before the completion of this.

After him Hârûn ibn-abu-Khâlid of Marw-ar-Rûdh was ruler. He was killed there."

Al-Birûn and Sahbân. Muḥammad ibn-Kâsim went to al-Birûn,¹ whose inhabitants had sent two Buddhist monks of their number to al-Ḥajjâj and had made a treaty with him. They supplied Muḥammad with provisions, received him into their city, and had the treaty confirmed. Muḥammad brought to terms every city he came to, until he crossed a river this side of the Mihrân, where some monks of Sarbidas² came to him and made a treaty with him in behalf of the people they represented. He imposed the kharâj upon them and advanced against Sahbân³ and conquered it. Then he went to the river Mihrân [Indus] and encamped in the midst of it.⁴ This came to the knowledge of Dâhir, who made ready to attack him. 438

Sadûsân. Muḥammad ibn-al-Kâsim had sent Muḥammad ibn-Muṣ'ab ibn-'Abd-ar-Raḥmân ath-Thakafi against Sadûsân⁵ with cavalry and pack trains.⁶ Its inhabitants sought peace [amân] and a treaty, and the monks sent envoys to mediate between him and them. He granted them peace; assessed taxes upon them; took pledges from them, and returned to Muḥammad ibn-Kâsim with 4,000 of the Zutt, who joined Muḥammad. The general appointed a man to rule Sadûsân.

² Name doubtful. De Goeje lists it as a place, as also Reinaud, who translates, "Alors il vit venir à lui les Samanéens (prêtres) de . . . qui venaient" etc. Elliot, op. cit., p. 121, translates, "Then he saw approaching towards him Sarbidas, the Samanî, who came" etc.

³ Sihwân. Elliot, p. 397, equates Siwistân with Sihwân. Reinaud has Sohwan in his map.

⁶ Ar. ḥamsnârât = riders upon asses, but is a double plural.

Dâhir killed. Later Muḥammad sought to cross over the Mihrân, and succeeded in doing so by means of a bridge which he built across it at a point where it borders on the territories of Râsil,¹ the king of Kaṣṣah of al-Hind, while Dâhir was careless and neglectful of him. Muḥammad and the Moslems met him mounted upon an elephant and surrounded by elephants and accompanied by the Takâkirah.² A fierce battle ensued, the like of which had not been heard of. Dâhir was forced to dismount; he kept on fighting, but was killed near evening. The polytheists were put to rout, and the Moslems slaughtered them at will. The one who killed Dâhir, according to the tradition of al-Madâ'ini, was a man of the banu-Kilâb, who said,

"The horses at the battle of Dâhir bear witness and the spears
And Muḥammad ibn-al-Ḳâsim ibn-Muḥammad,
That fearlessly I scattered the host of them
Until I came upon their chief with my sword,
And left him rolled in the dirt,
Dust on his unpillowed cheek."

Maṣṣûr ibn-Ḥâtim told me that Dâhir and his slayer are portrayed in Barwaṣ, and Budail ibn-Ṭahfah is portrayed in Kaṣṣah,³ and his grave is in ad-Daibul.

'Ali ibn-Muḥammad al-Madâ'ini from abu-Muḥammad al-Hindi from abu-l-Faraj, who says: When Dâhir was killed, Muḥammad ibn-al-Ḳâsim was in complete control of the country of as-Sind.

Ibn-al-Kalbi says: The one who killed Dâhir was al-Ḳâsim ibn-Tha'labah ibn-'Abdallah ibn-Ḥiṣn at-Ṭâ'i.

The wife of Dâhir. Muḥammad ibn-al-Ḳâsim conquered Râwar⁴ by force. In this place there was a wife of Dâhir, who, in fear lest she be captured, burned herself and her attendants and all her possessions.

✓ Brahmanâbâdh. Then Muḥammad ibn-al-Ḳâsim went to old Brahmanâbâdh,¹ just two parasangs from al-Manṣûrah.² (Al-Manṣûrah did not exist at that time; its site was nothing but a jungle.) The disordered forces of Dâhir were in this Brahmanâbâdh. They resisted Muḥammad, and he conquered the place by force. 8,000 were killed there. (Some say 26,000.) He left his lieutenant to govern the place for him. It is in ruins today.

Sâwandarai. Muḥammad set out for ar-Rûr³ and Baghrûr,⁴ and the people of Sâwandarai⁵ met him asking for peace. He granted it to them, but made it a condition that they should entertain the Moslems and furnish them with guides. The people of Sâwandarai are Moslems today.

Basmad. Then he proceeded to Basmad⁶ and made a treaty with its people having terms like those of the treaty of Sâwandarai.

The Buddhist temples. Ar-Rûr is as far as Muḥammad advanced. It is one of the cities of as-Sind, and is on a mountain. He besieged its inhabitants some months, but finally reduced the city by capitulation, the terms being that he should not put anyone to death, nor interfere with their temples [budd]. He said, "The budd are like the churches of the Christians, the synagogues of the Jews, and the fire-temples of the Magians." He imposed the kharâj upon them in ar-Rûr and built a mosque.

As-Sikah. Muhammad proceeded against as-Sikah,¹ a city on this side of the Bayâs² and conquered it. Today as-Sikah is in ruins.

Al-Multân. Then he crossed over the Bayâs river to al-Multân. The people of al-Multân resisted him, but Zâ'idah ibn-'Umais at-Ṭâ'i covered himself with glory, and the polytheists fled and entered the city. Muhammad besieged them. The supplies of the Moslems became so low that they ate the asses. Then a man came to them, asking for protection [amân], and guided them to the place where the water of which the people drank entered. It was water flowing from the Basmad river, and was collected in a reservoir like the Pool in al-Madinah. They call it al-Balâh.³ He shut it off, and when they became thirsty, they 440 surrendered at discretion. Muhammad put to death the men of fighting age, and enslaved the women and children, and made captives of the custodians of the budd, numbering 6,000. He obtained much gold.

The House of Gold. This wealth was collected in a building, ten by eight cubits in dimension, into which whatever was deposited was cast through a window, opening in its roof. From this al-Multân was called the "Farj of the House of Gold." (Farj means literally "the frontier.")

The temple in al-Multân. The Budd of al-Multân was a shrine to which valuable offerings were given, and to which vows were paid, and to which the people of as-Sind made pilgrimages. They made the circuit of it, and shaved their heads and beards there. They claim that the image in it is that of the prophet Aiyûb [Job].

A profitable campaign. Al-Ḥajjāj made a reckoning, and found that he had expended upon Muḥammad ibn-al-Kāsim 60,000,000 dirhams, and that what the latter brought back was 120,000,000. So he said, "We have appeased our rage and obtained revenge, and have made a profit of 60,000,000 dirhams plus the head of Dāhir."

Al-Bailamân and Surast. Al-Ḥajjāj died and the news of his death was brought to Muḥammad, who returned from al-Multân to ar-Rûr and Baghrûr, which he had conquered, and distributed gifts to the army. He dispatched a force against al-Bailamân,¹ which did not resist, but offered submission. Also the people of Surast² made peace with him. It is at war with the people of al-Baṣrah today. Its habitants are Mîd who cross over the sea.

Al-Kîraj. Then Muḥammad went to al-Kîraj.³ Dûhar issued forth against him, and they fought. The enemy was put to rout, and Dûhar fled. (Others say that he was killed.) The inhabitants of the city surrendered at discretion to Muḥammad, who put them to death or enslaved them.

The poet says:

"We [it was who] slew Dāhir and Dûhar,
The cavalry trotting, squadron by squadron."

CHAPTER III

CALIPHATE OF SULAIMÂN

Muhammad imprisoned. Al-Walid ibn-‘Abd-al-Malik died, and Sulaimân ¹ ibn-‘Abd-al-Malik succeeded him. He appointed Ṣâliḥ ibn-‘Abd-ar-Raḥmân to take charge of the kharâj of ‘Irâq. The latter sent Yazîd ibn-abu-Kabashah as-Saksaki to as-Sind, and he put Muhammad ibn-al-Kâsim in chains together with Mu‘âwiyah ibn-al-Muhallab. Muhammad quoted the proverb:

“They lost me, and a precious thing they lost,
For a day of adversity and frontier defence.”

The people of al-Hind mourned the loss of Muhammad, and set up a portrait of him in al-Kiraj; but Ṣâliḥ imprisoned him in Wâṣit. And Muhammad said:

“Though I am imprisoned in Wâṣit and its land
In bonds of iron, twisted hard;
Yet many a youth of Persia have I fought,

And again he said:

“‘Twere easy, had I but made a stand, for me to mount;
Mares as well as horses were ready for battle.
And the horsemen of the Saksakites would not have entered our land;
There would not have been an Akkite to rule over me;
I should not have been at the mercy of a liveried slave.
Alas for thee, O Time, careless of the noble.”

Muhammad put to death. Ṣâliḥ tortured him and others of the family of abu-‘Ukail to death. Al-Ḥajjāj ² had put to death Šâlih's brother, Adam, who shared the opinions of the heretics.

Ḥamzah ibn-Baiḍ al-Ḥanafi says :

"Gratitude, forgiveness, and generosity

Were virtues of Muḥammad ibn-al-Ḳāsim ibn-Muḥammad.

Another version is :

His contemporaries were busied with other matters.

Ḥabīb succeeds Yazîd. Yazîd ibn-abu-Kabashah died eighteen days after he arrived in the land of as-Sind, and Sulaimân ibn-'Abd-al-Malik commissioned Ḥabīb ibn-al-Muhallab to wage the as-Sind campaign, and he set out thither. The kings of al-Hind had come back to their kingdoms, and Dâhir's son, Ḥullishah,¹ had come back to Brahmanâbâdh. Ḥabīb stationed himself upon the banks of the Mihrân. The people of ar-Rûr submitted to him, and he fought and defeated a certain tribe.

The kings of as-Sind become Moslems. Then Sulaimân ibn-'Abd-al-Malik died, and after him came the caliphate of 'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-'Aziz. He wrote to the kings, inviting them to become Moslems and be subject to him, agreeing to let them continue on their thrones, and have the same privileges and obligations as the Moslems. An account of his mode of life and how he practiced his religion had already reached them. Ḥullishah accepted Islâm, and so did the other kings, and they adopted Arab names.

'Umar's agent. 'Amr ibn-Muslim al-Bâhili was 'Umar's 442

Al-Muhallab's sons. The sons of al-Muhallab¹ fled to as-Sind in the days of Yazid ibn-'Abd-al-Malik, who sent against them Hilâl ibn-Ahwaz at-Tamîmi. The latter fought with them, and killed Mudrik ibn-al-Muhallab at Kāndâbil. The rest of al-Muhallab's sons, al-Mufaḍḍal, 'Abd-al-Malik, Ziyâd, Marwân, and Mu'âwiyah, he also killed. Last of all he killed Mu'âwiyah ibn-Yazid.

Al-Junaïd becomes governor Al-Junaïd ibn-'Abd-ar-Rahmân al-Murri governed the frontier of as-Sind for 'Umar ibn-Hubairah al-Fazâri. Then Hishâm ibn-'Abd-al-Malik appointed him to rule over it, and when Khâlîd ibn-'Abdallâh al-Kasri went to al-'Irâk, Hishâm sent orders to al-Junaïd to correspond with him. So al-Junaïd went to ad-Daïbul; next he encamped on the Mihrân, but Ḥullishah prevented his crossing the river, sending to him this message, "I have accepted Islâm, and an honest man ² appointed me to rule my country. But I have no faith in thee."

Ḥullishah apostatizes. They exchanged pledges in regard to the matter of the kharâj due upon his country. Later they both sent back the pledges, and Ḥullishah apostatized and declared war. (Others say that he did not begin the hostilities, but that al-Junaïd attacked him.) He went to al-Hind, collected forces, seized the boats, and prepared for war.

Defeated and killed. Al-Junaïd sailed to meet him, and they joined battle at Batihat³-ash-Sharki. Ḥullishah was taken prisoner, his ship having missed the way. He was put to death, and Dâhir's son, Sisah, tried to flee with the intention of proceeding to al-'Irâk and complaining of al-Junaïd's treachery. The latter, however, cajoled him until he got him into his power, and then killed him.

Al-Kiraj. Al-Junaid raided al-Kiraj, which had broken the covenant. He constructed battering rams and with them beat the walls of the city until he broke them down, and entered the city by force, killing, enslaving, and plundering.

He sent lieutenants against Mirmad, al-Mandal, Dahnaj,¹ and Barwaṣ.

Al-Junaid used to say, "It is better to die fighting boldly than to die with resignation."

Other campaigns. Al-Junaid sent an army to Uzain,² and sent Ḥabīb ibn-Murrah with an army to the land of al-Mâlibah.³ They waged a war with Uzain, raided Bahrîmad,⁴ and set fire to its suburbs. Al-Junaid conquered al-Bailamân and al-Jurz.⁵ There remained in his camp, over and above what he gave to his friends, 40,000,000 dirhams, and he turned in [to the caliph] an equal amount. 443

Jarîr says:

"The guests and friends of al-Junaid came With smiling faces brightened by his gifts."

Abu-l-Juwairiyah says:

"Were it possible to sit above the sun for generosity,
Some would sit there for their virtues or nobility,
Enviied for their generous natures,
May God never refuse them his bounties which they desire.

Tamîm succeeds al-Junaid. Next after al-Junaid, Tamîm ibn-Zaid al-'Utbi was ruler. He had a weak constitution, and fell sick and died near ad-Daibul, at a spring called "the water of the buffaloes". It is called "the water of the buffaloes" only because they take refuge in it from some blue flies which are on the banks of the Mihrân.

Generosity of Tamim. Tamim was one of the most generous of the Arabs. He found in the treasury in as-Sind 18,000,000 dirhams in coin,¹ which he made quick work of. There had accompanied him in his army a youth of the banu-Yarbû', called Khunais, as far as al-Hind. His mother was of the ʿṬai'. She went to al-Farazdak² and asked him to write to Tamim to send him back, invoking the grave of his father, Ghâlib. Al-Farazdak wrote to Tamim:

"O Tamim, a woman came to me asking in the name of Ghâlib,

And his dust-covered grave.

So give me Khunais and win thereby my gratitude.

For the love of a mother whose drink is not swallowed in comfort,
Tamim ibn-Zaid, put not off my request,

And be not averse to answer her.

Delay not in what I ask you for, because

I grow impatient when men delay in gratifying me."³

Tamim could not make out what the youth's name was, whether Ḥubaish or Khunais,⁴ so he gave orders that every man whose name was similar in form to these letters should go back.

In the days of Tamim, the Moslems withdrew from the land of al-Hind, and abandoned their headquarters, and they have not returned so far as that since.

place of refuge to which the Moslems might flee was not to be found, so he built on the further side of the lake (al-Buḥairah), where it borders on al-Hind, a city which he named al-Maḥfūthah, establishing it as a place of refuge for them where they would be secure, and making it a capital. He said to the sheikhs of the tribe of Kalb of the people of Syria, "What do you think we should name it?" Some of them said, "Damascus." Another said, "Ḥams." And another said, "Name it Tadmur." But al-Ḥakam said, "May God destroy¹ thee, O fool. I shall name it al-Maḥfūthah."² He himself settled in it.

Al-Manṣûrah built. 'Amr ibn-Muhammad ibn-al-Kâsim accompanied al-Ḥakam, who used to rely upon him and leave to his discretion the most important business and affairs. He sent him on a raid from al-Maḥfūthah, and upon his triumphant return,³ he built on this side of the lake a city which he called al-Mansûrah. It is where the governors reside today.

Al-Ḥakam's success. Al-Ḥakam won back from the hands of the enemy all that they had conquered from him. The people were pleased with his administration, and Khâlid used to say, "How wonderful! I appointed a generous Arab (meaning Tamîm), and he was unpopular. I appointed the stingiest man alive, and he was quite acceptable."

Al-Ḥakam was killed there later, and afterwards the governors kept fighting the enemy and seizing whatever came into their hands, and subduing the neighborhoods whose inhabitants rebelled.

CHAPTER IV

UNDER THE ABBÂSIDES

Mughallis governor of as-Sind. When first the Blessed Dynasty¹ came into power, abu-Muslim ‘Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Muslim appointed Mughallis al-‘Abdi governor of the frontier of as-Sind. He went by way of Ṭukhâristân² and advanced until he came upon Manşûr ibn-Jamhûr al-Kalbi, who was in as-Sind. Manşûr met him in battle, killed him, routed his army.

Mûsa ibn-Ka‘b succeeds him. When the news of this came to abu-Muslim, he entrusted the matter to Mûsa ibn-Ka‘b at-Tamîmi and sent him to as-Sind. When he arrived there, between him and Manşûr ibn-Jamhûr was the Mihrân. Presently they joined battle, and he put to rout Manşûr and his forces, killing Manthûr, his brother. Manşûr made his escape, fleeing until he reached the desert, and perished of thirst. Mûsa governed as-Sind, restored al-Manşûrah and enlarged its mosque, and conducted successful campaigns.

Hishâm ibn-‘Amr becomes governor. Al-Manşûr, the Commander of the Believers, appointed Hishâm ibn-‘Amr 445 at-Taḡhlibi governor of as-Sind. He conquered what was left unsubdued and sent ‘Amr ibn-Jamal with a fleet to Nârind.³ He also went to the regions of al-Hind and conquered Kāshmir,¹ obtaining many prisoners and slaves. He conquered al-Multān and cleared out a faction of Arabs which was in Kāndābil. He went to al-Kunduhār with the fleet, and conquered it, throwing down the Budd and building a mosque in its place. The land prospered in his administration, and his name was blessed.² He maintained peace along the frontier, and kept its affairs in order.

Other governors. Afterwards the frontier of as-Sind was governed by 'Umar ibn-Ḥafṣ ibn-'Uthmān Hazārmard. Then by Dā'ūd ibn-Yazīd ibn-Ḥātim, with whom was associated abu-ṣ-Ṣammah, a freedman of Kindah, who holds the office now.

Bālah, king of ash-Sharḳi. Conditions along the frontier continued quiet until Bishr ibn-Da'ūd became ruler over it in the caliphate of al-Ma'mūn. Bishr refused to obey orders, and the caliph sent to him Ghassān ibn-'Abbād, a native of Sawād of al-Kūfah. Bishr met him, on the assurance of a safe-conduct, and returned with him to Madīnat-as-Salām.³ Ghassān left as his lieutenant over the frontier Mūsa ibn-Yahya ibn-Khālīd ibn-Barmak. The latter killed Bālah, king of ash-Sharḳi, although the latter had offered him 600,000 dirhams on condition that he spare him. This Bālah had tried to intrigue with Ghassān and had written to him in the presence of his army and through the princes who accompanied him, but Mūsa refused him.

Mūsa succeeded by his son. Mūsa lived an upright life, and died in the year 221,⁴ leaving to succeed him his son, 'Imrān ibn-Mūsa. To him al-Mu'taṣim-billāh, the Commander of the Believers, wrote in regard to governing the frontier. He made an expedition against the Kikānites, who are Zutt, fighting and defeating them, and building a city which he called al-Baiḍâ', where he established his army. Then he went to al-Manṣûrah, and thence to Kandâbil. The latter is a city on a mountain, and the man who was the actual ruler of it was named Muḥammad ibn-al-Khalîl. 'Imrân fought him and conquered the city and took its chief men to Kaṣṣâr. Then he raided the Mîd, killing 3,000 of them. He built a highway known as the highway of the Mîd. The camp of 'Imrân was upon the river of ar-Rûr. Then he summoned the Zutt who were in his neighborhood. They came to him, and he sealed their hands,¹ collecting from them the jizyah, and giving them the order that each 446 of them should bring a dog with him when he presented himself. The price of a dog rose to 50 dirhams.² Later he raided the Mîd, with the assistance of the chiefs of the Zutt. He dug a canal from the sea, which he ran into their fresh water until their water became salty, and [then] he started to attack them. Then strife arose between the Nizârites³ and the Yemenites, and 'Imrân favored the latter. 'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-'Azîz al-Ḥabbâri went out against him, and killed him by surprise. This 'Umar's grandfather was among those who went to as-Sînd with al-Ḥakam ibn-'Awânah al-Kalbi.

Sîndân. Manṣûr ibn-Ḥâtim says that al-Faḍl ibn-Mâhân, a freedman of the banu-Sâmah, conquered and subdued Sîndân.⁴ He sent to al-Ma'mûn an elephant, corresponded with the caliph and invoked the blessing upon him in a cathedral mosque which he had erected there. When he died he was succeeded by Muḥammad, ibn-al-Faḍl ibn-Mâhân, who made an expedition with a fleet of 70 ships of war against the Mid of al-Hind. He killed many of them, and conquered Fâli,¹ and returned to Sindân. A brother of his, named Mâhân ibn-al-Faḍl, had made himself master of that city and had written to the Commander of the Believers, al-Mu'taṣim-billâh, presenting him with a turban,² the like of which in size and length had not been seen. But the Hindus were under the sway of his brother, and they turned against Mâhân, killed him and crucified him. Then later the Hindus got control of Sindân, but they left its mosque for the Moslems to assemble in and pray for the caliph.

The king of al-'Usaifân. Abu-Bakr, a freedman of the Kûraizi, told me that a country called al-'Usaifân, between Ḳashmîr, al-Multân and Kâbul, had a wise king. The people of the country used to worship an idol over which a house was built. They were assembled in this temple one day when the son of the king fell sick. The king summoned the priests of the temple and said to them, "Pray to the idol that my son may recover." They withdrew from him for the space of an hour. Then they came to him and said, "We have asked him and he has answered our request." But the boy soon after died, and king fell upon the house and had it razed to the ground; the idol he smashed to pieces, and the priests were put to death. Then he summoned some Moslem merchants, who explained to him the doctrine of the unity of God. He acknowledged the unity and became a Moslem. This was in the caliphate of the Commander of the Believers, al-Mu'taṣim-billâh.

APPENDIX I

CONCERNING THE LAWS OF KHARÂJ¹ LANDS

Bishr ibn-Ghiyâth from abu-Yûsuf:—Only land which 447 was taken by assault, such as as-Sawâd, ash-Sha'm, and others, [is subject to the kharâj]. If the leader divided it among those who conquered it, it is tithe-land, and its inhabitants slaves; if the leader did not divide it, but turned it over to the Moslems as a whole, as 'Umar did with as-Sawâd, then its people sustain the burden of the jizyah, and the land is subject to the kharâj, but the people are not slaves. This is the dictum of abu-Hanifah [also].

Al-Wâkidi, on the authority of Sufyân ath-Thauri, makes the same statement. Al-Wâkidi [further] quotes Mâlik ibn-Anas and ibn-abu-Dhi'b, who says:—When an unbe-liever from the people of "assault" accepted Islâm, his land was confirmed in his possession for him to cultivate, paying the kharâj for it, just as other Moslems.

Mâlik, ibn-abu-Dhi'b, Sufyân ath-Thauri, and ibn-abu-Laila say in regard to one of the people "of assault" who accepts Islâm:—The kharâj is upon the land and, in addition to the kharâj, the zakât (alms tax) of the crop. This is [also] the dictum of al-Auzâ'i.

Abu-Hanifah and his school say:—A man is not liable for both kharâj and zakât.

¹ For kharâj and jizyah and the financial system in general of the Arab State, see von Kremer, Culturgeschichte des Orients, pp. 59-65, 256-379; Juynboll, Handbuch des Islamischen Gesetzes, pp. 344 et seq., and the literature mentioned there. Many items in regard to taxation may be gleaned from Balâdhuri, particularly in vol. i.

Mâlik, ibn-abu-Dhi'b, Sufyân, and abu-Ḥanifah say:—If a man sow his land, being kharâj-land, [several] times in a year, only a single kharâj was collected from him.

Ibn-abu-Laila says:—The kharâj is collected from him as often as a crop ripens for him. And this is [also] the dictum of ibn-abu-Sabrah and abu-Shimr.

Abu-z-Zinâd, Mâlik, abu-Ḥanifah, Sufyân, Ya'kûb, ibn-abu-Laila, ibn-abu-Sabrah, Zafr, Muḥammad ibn-al-Ḥasan, and Bishr ibn-Ghiyâth say:—If a man leaves his land fallow, he is told to 'cultivate it and pay its kharâj, or else give it to some one else to cultivate.' In the case of tithe-land, nothing is said to him about it. The ṣadakah is collected from him whether he sow or not. Allāh knows best.

The same authorities say:—If a man leaves his land fallow two years, and then cultivates it, he pays a single kharâj. But abu-Shimr says:—He pays kharâj for the two years.

Abu-Ḥanifah, Sufyân, Mâlik, ibn-abu-Dhi'b, and abu-'Amr al-Auzâ'i say:—If insects or flood destroy the crops, the kharâj is not collected from the owner.

If it is a portion of kharâj-land belonging to a slave or a school or a woman, then, according to abu-Ḥanifah, the kharâj alone is assessed against it.

Sufyân, ibn-abu-Dhi'b, and Mâlik say:—The kharâj is assessed against it, and the tithe against the remainder of the crop.

Abu-Ḥanifah and ath-Thauri say in regard to kharâj-land:—If a Moslem or a dhimmi builds a building on it for shops or other such purposes, there is no tax on it; but if he makes it a garden, kharâj is due.

Mâlik and ibn-abu-Dhi'b say:—We think he owes the kharâj if he gets an income from the building, just as if he got an income from sowing. But if it is tithe-land, Allāh knows best what is collected from it.

Abu-Yûsuf says concerning unoccupied ground forming part of a land "of assault":—If a Moslem reclaims it, it is his, and is subject to khqraj if it is watered with water [from land subject to] kharâj; but if he constructs a well for it, or waters it with water from the heavens, then it is tithe-land.

Bishr says:—It is tithe-land whether watered with water [from land subject to] kharâj or otherwise.

Abu-Ḥanîfah, ath-Thauri, and their school, and Mâlik, ibn-abu-Dhi'b, and al-Laila ibn-Sa'd say in regard to kharâj-land which has no owner:—If the Moslems live on it, and transact business, and use it as a market place, no kharâj is assessed against them for it.

Abu-Yûsuf says:—If there is in the land a foreign custom of long standing, which the Moslems have not changed or abrogated, and some one complains of it to the leader [i. e. the caliph] because of the damage it causes them, it is not possible for him to change it.

Mâlik and ash-Shâfi'i say:—He may change it even if it is ancient, because it is in his power to disacknowledge any custom whatever which any of the Moslems have made, as well as those which unbelievers have made.

APPENDIX II

HISTORY OF THE 'ATÂ'¹ IN THE CALIPHATE OF 'UMAR IBN-AL-KHATTÂB

Order of precedence. 'Abdallâh ibn-Şâlih ibn-Muslim al-'Ijli from Ismâ'il ibn-al-Mujâlid from his father, Mujâlid ibn-Sa'id, from ash-Sha'bi, who says:—When 'Umar conquered al-'Irâk and Syria and collected the kharâj, he called together the Companions of the Apostle of Allah, and said, "I have decided to make allotments of the 'atâ' to his people." They said, "Surely, thou hast decided aright, O Commander of the Believers." "With whom then shall I begin?" he asked. They replied, "With thyself." He said, "No, but I will put myself where Allah has put me, and will begin with the family of the Apostle of Allah." And he did so. 449

He assigned to 'Â'ishah, the Mother of the Believers, 2,000 dirhams, and to the rest of the wives of the Prophet 10,000. To 'Ali ibn-abu-Tâlib he assigned 5,000, and the same amount to those of the banu-Hâshim who had taken part at the battle of Badr.

'Abd-al-A'la ibn-Hammâd an-Narsi from Hammâd ibn-Salamah from al-Hajjâj ibn-Artâh from Habîb ibn-abu-Thâbit:—The wives of the Prophet followed one another in succession with regard to the 'atâ'.

the Moslems concerning the institution of the Register [dirwân]. 'Ali ibn-abu-Ṭâlib said to him, "Divide each year whatever wealth has been accumulated by thee, without holding back any of it." 'Uthmân said, "I see wealth in plenty, sufficing for everybody; but if a record is not kept so that he who receives is known from him who has not received, I think the matter will become complicated." Al-Walid ibn-Hishâm ibn-al-Mughirah said to 'Umar, "I have been in Syria and observed that the kings thereof kept a register and enrolled the troops. So start a register and enroll the troops."

'Umar followed his suggestion, and summoned 'Aḳil ibn-abu-Ṭâlib, Makhramah ibn-Naufal, and Jubair ibn-Muṭ'im, who were of the tongue of Kuraish, and said, "Write a list of the people according to their ranks [manâzil]." They accordingly began with the banu-Hâshim, putting next to them abu-Bakr and his family, then 'Umar and his family, following the order of the caliphate. But when 'Umar learned of this, he said, "By Allah, I would it were so; but begin with the relatives of the Prophet, the nearest first, and so on, thus putting 'Umar where Allah has put him."

✓ Muḥammad from al-Wâḳidi from Usâmah ibn-Zaid ibn-Aslam from his father from his grandfather, who said:—The banu-'Adi went to 'Umar and said, "Thou art the Successor [Caliph] of the Apostle of Allah, and the Successor of abu-Bakr, and abu-Bakr was the Successor of the Apostle of Allah, and dost thou really put thyself where these clerks have put thee?" He answered them, "Bravo! O banu-'Adi! Ye desire to eat at my back, and have me show favors to you. No, by Allah! Not until your turn comes, even though the book be closed upon you. (He means 'even though ye be the last enrolled'.) I have had two companions who have traveled a [straight] road. I must not disregard them, lest I too be disregarded. By Allah, we shall not be pardoned in this world, nor can we hope for a reward for our works, except through Muḥammad; for he is foremost of us, and his family are the foremost of the Arabs; then the nearest related to them, and so forth. Verily, by Allah, if foreigners come with good works, and we [Arabs] come without good works, they shall be nearer to Muḥammad than we in the day of resurrection, for he whose good works are deficient, will get no help from his lineage"

✓ Muhammad ibn-Sa'd from al-Wākidi from Muḥammad ibn-'Abdallāh from az-Zuhri from Sa'id from some others whom al-Wākidi names and whose traditions are interwoven:—When 'Umar called the assembly for the purpose of instituting the Register [diwān], which was in the month Muharram of the year 20, he began enrolling with the banu-Hāshim, then the nearest related to the Apostle of Allah, and so forth. If any were equal in their relationship, he put first those of priority of conversion. Next he came to the Companions [Anṣār], and was asked, "With whom shall we begin?" He replied, "Begin with the family of Sa'd ibn-Mu'ādh al-Ashhali of the Aus, then those nearest related to Sa'd, and so forth."

✓ Size of the allotments. 'Umar assigned pensions to those enrolled, favoring in size of allotments those who were converted first, and those who had taken part in the battles, although abu-Bakr had divided equally among the people. Some one spoke to 'Umar about this, and he said, "I can not put those who fought against the Apostle of Allah in the same class with those who fought for him." So he began with those of the Emigrants and of the Companions who had taken part at Badr, assigning to each one of them 5,000 dirhams per year, and putting their clients [halif] and freedmen [maẓwālī] on an equality with them. He assigned to those who were converted to Islām as early as the veterans of Badr, to those who emigrated to Abyssinia, and to those who fought at Uhud, 4,000 dirhams each. To the sons of the veterans of Badr he assigned 2,000 each, with the exception of Ḥasan and Ḥusain, for their pension he made equal to that of their father, because of their close relationship to the Apostle of Allah, assigning to each of them 5,000 dirhams. To al-'Abbās ibn-'Abd-al-Muṭṭalib he assigned 5,000, because of his close relationship to the Apostle of Allah. Some say that he assigned 7,000 dirhams to him, but most authorities say that he did not favor any-one more than the men of Badr, except the wives of the Prophet, for to them he assigned 12,000 each, including with them Juwairiyah bint-al-Ḥārith and Ṣafiyah bint-Ḥuyai ibn-Akḥṭab. 451

He assigned to those who emigrated before the conquest [of Makkah] 3,000 apiece, and to those converted at the conquest 2,000 apiece, and to the young men of military age among the sons of the Emigrants like pensions with the converts of the conquest. To 'Umar ibn-abu-Salimah he assigned 4,000. Muḥammad ibn-'Abdallāh ibn-Jaḥsh said, "Why dost thou favor 'Umar more than us, in view of the fact that our fathers were Emigrants and took part at Badr?" The caliph replied, "I favor him because of his position with reference to the Prophet. Moreover, if anyone with a mother like umm-Salimah asks for help, I will help him."

To Usāmah ibn-Zaid he assigned 4,000. 'Abdallāh ibn-'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭāb said, "Thou assignest to me 3,000, to Usāmah 4,000, although I took part in more battles than Usāmah." 'Umar said, "I have given him more, because he was dearer to the Apostle of Allah than thou, and his father was dearer to the Apostle of Allah than thy father."

Then he made assignments to the people according to their ranks [manâzil], their reading of the Kurân, and their campaigns [jihâd]. The remainder of the people he put in a single category, including those Moslems who came to al-Madinah, at 25 dînârs apiece, and he made grants to others with them.

To the people of al-Yaman and Kais in Syria and in al-'Irâq he assigned from 2,000 to 1,000 to 900 to 500 to 300 each, not giving to anyone less than 300 dirhams. For he said, "If money were more abundant, I would assign to each man 4,000 dirhams: 1,000 for his traveling expenses, 1,000 for his weapons, 1,000 to leave for his family, and 1,000 for his horse and his horseshoes."

He assigned pensions to women who had emigrated: to Safîyah bint-'Abd-al-Muṭṭalib 6,000 dirhams, to Asmâ' bint-'Umais 1,000 dirhams, to umm-Kulthûm bint-'Uqbah 1,000 dirhams, and to umm-'Abdallâh ibn-Mas'ûd 1,000 dirhams.

Al-Wâḳidi says there is a tradition that he assigned to 452 the women who emigrated 3,000 dirhams apiece.

Al-Wâḳidi with his [usual] isnâd says:—Upon orders from 'Umar, the 'amils of the people of the uplands of Nejd wrote to him, describing the needs of the people, and he issued to them a pension of food. Later, 'Uthmân, when he was ruler, provided for them an issue of food and clothing.

Pensions for children. 'Umar used to assign to a new-born child 100 dirhams; when it was larger, he raised the amount to 200; and when the child became of age, he increased it [again]. When a foundling was brought, he assigned to it 100, making an allotment for maintenance which the child's guardian received each month in proportion to his needs, and taking constant care of them from year to year, providing for their nursing and expenses from the public treasury.

Khuzâ'ah. Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from al-Wâkidi from Hizâm ibn-Hishâm al-Ka'bi from his father, who says:— I saw 'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb taking the Register [diwân] of Khuzâ'ah as far as Kudaïd. At Kudaïd [the tribe] came to him, without a woman, virgin, or even divorced, being absent, and he would pay them personally. Then he would go on to 'Usfân and do the same. [He kept this up] until he died.

Himyar. Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from al-Wâkidi from abu-Bakr ibn-abu-Sabrah from Muhammad ibn-Zaid:—The Register of Himyar in the time of 'Umar was kept separately.

The pensions please the army. Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from al-Wâkidi from 'Ubaidallâh ibn-'Umar al-'Umari from Jahm ibn-abu-Jahm:—Khâlid ibn-'Urfutah al-'Udhri appeared before 'Umar, who inquired of him in regard to conditions in the province which he had [just] left. He answered, "I have left those who were praying to Allah for thee that He would lengthen thy life even at the expense of their own. There rides not a man of the veterans of al-Kâdisiyah without a pension of 2,000 or 1,500, and none begets a child, male or female, to which is not assigned 100 [dirhams] and two jarîbs per month."

"It is only their due," said 'Umar "and I am the happier for giving it to them. Do not praise me for it, for if it belonged to the property of al-Khaṭṭâb, I would not give it to them. Well do I know that the pensions are rather large; and yet, when the allotment of one of these men is issued, he buys with it a beast and adds to his property, and when his allotment is issued a second time, he buys a head or two [more] and puts that in. As a consequence if he has a child who survives him, he will have something to depend upon. For I do not know what shall be after me, but, verily, I will give my counsel to whoever refers his case to me. For the Apostle of Allah said, 'Whoever dies deceiving his subjects, shall not smell the perfume of Paradise.' 453

Superabundant funds. Muhammad ibn-Sa'd from al-Wākidi from Muḥammad ibn-ʿAmr from al-Ḥasan:—ʿUmar wrote to Ḥudhaifah, 'Give the men their stipends and their rations.' He replied to him, 'We have done so, and a considerable amount remains.' And ʿUmar wrote to him, 'It is their property, which Allah has given them as booty; it does not belong to ʿUmar nor to the family of ʿUmar; so divide it among them.'

Wahb ibn-Bakīyah and Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from Yazid ibn-Ḥārūn from Muḥammad ibn-ʿAmr from abu-Salimah from abu-Hurairah:—He went to ʿUmar from al-Baḥrain. Abu-Hurairah said;—I met him at the time of the evening prayer, and greeted him. He asked me about the people; then he said to me, 'What hast thou brought?' I said, 'I have brought 500,000.' He said, 'Dost thou know what thou sayest?' I said, 'I have brought 500,000.' He said, 'What do you mean?' I said, '100,000 and 100,000 and 100,000—and I counted to five.' He said, 'Thou art half asleep. Go home and sleep, and come to me in the morning.'

'I went to him early in the morning (continues abu-Hurairah) and he said, 'What hast thou brought?' I said, '500,000.' He said, 'Are they good?' I said, 'Yes, so far as I know.' Then ʿUmar said to the people, 'A great amount of money has come to us. Do you wish us to count it for you or to weigh it for you?' Some one said to him, 'O Commander of the Believers, I have seen these Persians keeping a register [diwān] according to which they pay the men.' So ʿUmar had a register made and assigned to the Emigrants first 5,000, to the Companions 4,000, and to the wives of the Prophet 12,000.

Zainab bint-Jaḥsh. Yazid from Muḥammad from ibn-

Khuṣaifah from 'Abdallâh ibn-Râfi' from Barzah bint-Râfi', who says:—When the 'aṭâ' was paid out, 'Umar sent to Zainab bint-Jahsh her share. She said, when it was brought in to her, "Allah be merciful to 'Umar. The rest of my sisters will be better able to divide this than I." They said, "This is all for thee." She said, "God bless me," and covered her face with her cloak, that she might not see it. Then she said, "Empty it out and put a garment over it." Then she said to me, "Put in thy hands and take a handful of it and present it to so-and-so," of her relatives and orphan proteges of hers. So I distributed it until only a small portion remained beneath the garment, (continues Barzah bint-Râfi'). Then I said, "Allah be merciful to thee, O Mother of the Believers. By Allah, verily we ourselves have a right to this money." She said, "You can have what is beneath the garment." And we found beneath it 580 dirhams. Then she raised her hands to the heavens and said, "O God, let no pension come to me from 'Umar after this year." And she died.

Other traditions of the institution of the Register. Abū-'Ubaid from 'Abdallâh ibn-Ṣâliḥ from al-Laith from Muḥammad ibn-'Ajlân, who says:—When 'Umar instituted the dîwân, he said, "With whom shall we begin?" They replied, "With thyself." He said, "Nay. The Apostle of Allāh is our leader. We will begin with his family, then the nearest relatives, and so forth."

'Amr an-Nâqid from 'Abd-al-Wahhâb ath-Thaḡafi from Ja'far ibn-Muḥammad from his father:—'Umar put al-Ḥasan and al-Ḥusain on an equality with their father, and assigned to them 5,000 dirhams.

Al-Ḥusain ibn-'Ali ibn-al-Aswad from Waḳi' from Sufyân ath-Thauri from Ja'far ibn-Muḥammad from his father, who says:—When 'Umar founded the Register, he asked advice of the people as to whom he should begin with. They said, "Begin with thyself." He said, "No, but I will begin with the nearest relatives of the Apostle of Allah and so forth." And he began with them.

Al-Ḥusain ibn-al-Aswad from Waḳī' from Sufyân from abu-Ishâḳ from Muṣ'ab ibn-Sa'd:—'Umar assigned to the men of Badr 6,000 dirhams apiece, to the Mothers of the Believers 10,000 apiece, giving an excess of 2,000 to 'Â'ishah because of the love of the Prophet for her, to Ṣafiyah and Juwairiyah 6,000 apiece, and to the women who emigrated 1,000 apiece. Among the latter was unmm-'Abd, the mother of 'Abdallâh ibn-Mas'ûd.

Al-Ḥusain from Waḳī' from Ismâ'il ibn-abu-Khâlid 455 from Ḳais ibn-abu-Ḥâzim:—'Umar assigned to the men of Badr, both Arabs and mawâlî, 5,000 each, saying, "Verily, I will favor them above all the rest."

Al-Ḥusain from Waḳī' from Isrâ'il from Jâbir from 'Âmir:—Among those [who received pensions] were five 4 Persians, of whom were Tamîm ad-Dâri and Bilâl. Waḳī' adds that ad-Dâr is part of Lakhm, but ash-Sha'bi states it as above.

Al-Ḥusain from Waḳī' from Sufyân from al-Aswad ibn-Ḳais from one of their sheikhs, who says:—I heard 'Umar say, "Verily, if I live till next year, I will bestow upon the humblest of the Emigrants 2,000 each."

Abu-'Ubaid from 'Abdallâh ibn-Ṣâlih al-Miṣri from al-Laith ibn-Sa'd from 'Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Khâlid al-Fahmi from ibn-Shihâb:—When 'Umar instituted the Registers, he assigned to the wives of the Prophet whom he had regularly married, 12,000 dirhams each; to Juwairiyah and Ṣafiyah bint-Ḥuyai ibn-Akhtab 6,000 dirhams, because they were part of what Allah gave to his Apostle as booty. He assigned to the Emigrants who took part at Badr 5,000 each; to the Companions who took part at Badr 4,000 each; including in his assignment every pure-blood [ṣarîḥ], client

‘Amr an-Nâqid and abu-‘Ubaid from Aḥmad ibn-Yûnus from abu-Khaithamah from abu-Ishâk from Muṣ‘ab ibn-Sa’d:—‘Umar assigned to the men of Badr, both Emigrants and Companions, 6,000 apiece; to the wives of the Prophet 10,000 each, but he favored ‘Â’ishah above the rest, assigning to her 12,000 dirhams; to Juwairiyah and Ṣafiyah he assigned 6,000 each; and to the first women Emigrants, Asmâ’ bint-‘Umais, Asmâ’ bint-abu-Bakr, and umm-‘Abdallâh ibn-Mas‘ûd, 1,000 each.

Al-Ḥusain ibn-al-Aswad from Waki‘ from Muḥammad 456 ibn-Kais al-Asadi from his mother, umm-al-Ḥakam, who says:—‘Ali apportioned to her from the ‘aṭâ’ 100.

Al-Ḥusain from Waki‘ from Sufyân from ash-Shaibâni from Yusair ibn-‘Amr:—Sa’d assigned to whoever read the Ḳurân 2,000 dirhams, but ‘Umar wrote to him, “Do not give to anyone because of [his reading] the Ḳurân.”

Abu-‘Ubaid from Sa’d ibn-abu-Maryam from ibn-Luhai‘ah from Yazîd ibn-abu-Ḥabîb:—‘Umar gave 200 to ‘Amr ibn-al-‘Âṣi because he was an amîr; to ‘Umair ibn-Wahb al-Jumāḥi 200 because of his patience in adversity; to Busr ibn-abu-Artâh 200 because he won a victory. Said ‘Umar, “Many a victory Allah won by his hand.” Abu-‘Ubaid says that by the above number dînârs are meant.

Abu-‘Ubaid from ‘Abdallâh ibn-Ṣâlih from al-Laith ibn-Sa’d from Yazid ibn-abu-Ḥabîb:—‘Umar wrote to ‘Amr ibn-al-‘Âṣi, “Give to those who swore allegiance under the tree [of al-Ḥudaibiyah] 200 from the aṭâ’ (meaning dînârs), and take the same for thyself because of thy amîr-ship, and assign to Khârijah ibn-Ḥudhâfah the maximum ‘aṭâ’ because of his bravery.”

• Abu-‘Ubaid from ‘Abdallâh ibn-Ṣâlih from al-Laith ibn-Sa’d from Muḥammad ibn-‘Ajlân:—‘Umar gave more to Usâmah ibn-Zaid than to his own son, 'Abdallâh. People kept at 'Abdallâh until he spoke to 'Umar, saying, "Dost thou prefer before me one who is no more worthy than I, by assigning to him 2,000, and to me 1,500 dirhams?" And 'Umar said, "I have done this because Zaid ibn-Ḥârithah was more beloved of the Apostle of Allah than 'Umar, and Usâmah was more beloved of the Apostle of Allah than 'Abdallâh ibn-'Umar."

Yahya ibn-Mu'in from Yahya ibn-Sa'id from Khârijah ibn-Muṣ'ab from 'Ubaidallâh ibn-'Umar from Nâfi' (or some other) from ibn-'Umar, who says that he spoke to his father in regard to his favoring Usâmah above him in the 'aṭâ', saying, "By Allah, he does not surpass me in anything." And 'Umar replied. "His father was more beloved of the Apostle of Allah than thy father, and he himself was more beloved of the Apostle of Allah than thou." 457

Muḥammad ibn-aṣ-Ṣabbâḥ al-Bazzâz from Hushaim from Manṣûr from al-Ḥasan:—Some persons appeared before an 'âmil' of 'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb's, who granted the 'aṭâ' to the Arabs among them and omitted the marwâli. And 'Umar wrote to him, "It is considered an evil thing for a Moslem to despise his brother. Peace be with thee."

Abu-'Ubaid from Khâlid ibn-'Amr from Isrâ'il from 'Ammâr ad-Duhni from Sâlim ibn-abu-l-Ja'd:—'Umar set the 'aṭâ' of 'Ammâr ibn-Yâsir at 6,000 dirhams.

Abu-'Ubaid from Khâlid from Isrâ'il from Ismâ'il ibn-Sumai' from Muslim al-Baṭin:—'Umar set the 'aṭâ' of Sal-mân at 4,000 dirhams.

Rauḥ ibn-'Abd-al-Mu'min from Ya'kûb from Ḥammâd from Ḥamid from Anas:—'Umar assigned to al-Hurmuzân 2,000 from the 'aṭâ'.

Al-'Umari from abu-'Abd-ar-Raḥmân aṭ-Ṭâ'i from al-Mujâlid from ash-Ṣha'bi:—When 'Umar in the year twenty purposed instituting the diwân, he summoned Makhramah ibn-Naufal and Jubair ibn-Muṭ'im, and ordered them to enroll the people according to their ranks [manâzil]. They wrote [first] the banu-Ḥâshim, putting next abu-Bakr and his family, and 'Umar and his family. But when 'Umar saw the book, he said, "I wish that I belonged thus among the kinfolk of the Apostle of Allah. Begin with the nearest related to him, and so forth; then put 'Umar where Allah has put him." Al-'Abbâs ibn-'Abd-al-Muṭṭalib was gratified at this, and said, "Thy relationship has drawn thee."

When 'Umar instituted the dîwân, abu-Sufyân ibn-Ḥarb asked, "Is it a dîwân like that of the banu-Asfar [Greeks]? If thou assignest pensions to the people, they will eat by the dîwân and neglect business." But 'Umar said, "There is no way out of it, for the booty of the Moslems is abundant."

'Umar assigned to the dihkân of Nahr al-Malik, to ibn-an-Nakhirkhân, to Khâlid and Jamil, sons of Busbuhra, dihkân of al-Falâlij, to Bistâm ibn-Narsi, dihkân of Bâbil and Khuṭarniyah, to ar-Rufail, dihkân of al-'Âl, to al-Hurmuzân, and to Jufainah al-'Ibâdi, 1,000 dirhams each.

Others say that he favored al-Hurmuzân, by assigning to him 2,000.

Abu-'Ubaid from Ismâ'il ibn-'Ayyâsh from Arṭâh ibn-al-Mundhir from Ḥakim ibn-'Umair:—"Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb wrote to the commander of the armies, "Those of the foreigners [lit. "red-faced"] whom ye have set free, and who have accepted Islâm, put on an equality with your mawâlî in regard to rights and duties. If they prefer to be a tribe [by themselves], let them, but make them the equals of the mawâlî with regard to the 'aṭâ'."

Hishâm ibn-'Ammâr from Baḳiyah from abu-Bakr ibn-'Abdallâh ibn-abu-Maryam from his father from abu-'Ubaidah:—"Some bedouin asked him to give them rations, but he said, "By Allah, I will not, until I have provided for the city-Arabs."

Abu-'Ubaïd from abu-l-Yamân from Şafwân ibn-'Amr:—'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-'Aziz wrote to Yazîd ibn-Ḥuşayn, "Have pensions assigned to the army, and take care of the city-Arabs [thyself]."

Abu-'Ubaïd from Sa'id ibn-abu-Maryam from 'Ubaïd-allâh ibn-'Umar al-'Umari from Nâfi' from ibn-'Umar:—'Umar did not give the people of Makkah any 'aṭâ', nor require of them any military service [ba'ath], and used to say, "They are so-so."

Abu-'Ubaïd al-Ḳâsim ibn-Sallâm from 'Abd-ar-Rahmân ibn-Mahdi from Shu'bah from 'Adi ibn-Thâbit from abu-Ḥâzim from abu-Hurairah:—The Apostle of Allah said, "If anyone leave fresh herbage, it is for us; if he leave money, it is for his heirs."

Hishâm ibn-'Ammâr ad-Dimashqî from al-Walîd ibn-Muslim from Sulaimân ibn-abu-l-'Âtikah and Kulthûm ibn-Ziyâd from Sulaimân ibn-Ḥabîb:—'Umar apportioned the tithes to the families and children of the soldiers. 'Uthmân and the rulers after him continued this, making them hereditary, heritable by the heirs of the dead who had no 'aṭâ'. This continued until 'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-'Aziz became caliph. Sulaimân says:—He consulted me about this matter, and I told him thus and so. He denied the right of inheritance, saying, "I will cut it off, and include everyone in the pensions." And I said, "But I fear that thy successors will follow thy lead in cutting off inheritances, and will not follow thee in extending the pensions." He said, "Thou art right." And he left them [as they were]. 459

Bakr ibn-al-Haitham from 'Abdallâh ibn-Sâlih from ibn-Luhai'ah from abu-Ḳabîl:—'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb used to assign to an infant when he was born ten [dirhams], and when he came to the age of the [regular] pension, it was given to him. When Mu'âwiyah became caliph, he assigned this to every weaned child. But when 'Abd-al-Malik ibn-

Marwân became caliph, he cut this off entirely, except from such as he wished.

'Affân from Yazid from Yahya ibn-al-Mutawakkil from 'Abdallâh ibn-Nâfi' from ibn-'Umar:—At first 'Umar did not give the pension to a child until it was weaned. Later his herald proclaimed, "Do not hasten your children's weaning, for we will give a pension to every child in Islâm."

'Amr an-Nâkid from Aḥmad ibn-Yûnus from Zubair ibn-Mu'âwiyah from abu-Ishâk who says that his grandfather went to 'Uthmân, who said to him, "How many hast thou in thy family, O sheikh?" He replied, "I have such a number." The caliph said, "We have assigned to thee and to thy family a pension of 100 each."

Abu-'Ubaid from Marwân ibn-Shujâ' al-Jazari, who says:—'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-'Aziz appointed for me when I was weaned a pension of ten dînârs.

Ibrâhîm ibn-Muḥammad ash-Shâmi from 'Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Mahdi from Sufyân ath-Thauri from abu-l-Jahhâf from a man of Khuth'am, who says:—A child was born to me, and I brought it to 'Ali, and he fixed its pension at 100 dirhams.

'Amr an-Nâkid from 'Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Mahdi from Sufyân from 'Abdallâh ibn-Sharik from Bishr ibn-Ghâlib, who says:—Al-Ḥusain ibn-'Ali ('Amr thinks that perhaps he says al-Ḥasan ibn-'Ali.) was asked, "When does the share of a child become due?" He replied, "When it 460 begins to cry."

'Amr an-Nâkid from Sufyân ibn-'Uyainah from 'Amr ibn-Dinâr from al-Ḥasan ibn-Muḥammad:—Three slaves of the banu-'Affân took part at Badr, and 'Umar gave them each 3,000 dirhams yearly.

Abu-'Ubaid from ibn-abu-'Adi from Sufyân from Zuhair ibn-Thâbit or ibn-abu-Dhi'b from Dhuhl ibn-Aus:—A founding was brought to 'Ali, and he fixed its stipend at 100.

How 'Umar determined the amount of rations. 'Amr and al-Kâsim ibn-Sallâm from Aḥmad ibn-Yûnus from Zuhair; and 'Abdallâh ibn-Ṣâlih al-Mukri from Zuhair ibn-Mu'âwiyah from abu-Ishâk from Ḥârithah ibn-al-Muḍarrib:—'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb ordered a jarib of meal to be brought and kneaded and baked and dipped in oil. Then he summoned thirty men and had them breakfast upon it to repletion. He did the same with the evening meal. And he declared, "Two jaribs a month will suffice a man." In consequence he used to apportion to the people, man, woman, or slave, two jaribs every month.

'Abdallâh ibn-Ṣâlih adds that people used to make imprecations by saying, "Allah take away thy two jaribs." I. e. "May he cut them off from thee by death." This has continued in popular speech unto this day.

Abu-'Ubaid from abu-l-Yamân from Ṣafwân ibn-'Amr from abu-z-Zâhiriyyah:—Abu-d-Dardâ' said, 'Many fine and proper customs were introduced by 'Umar among the people of Muḥammad, among them the two mudi and the two kisṭ.'¹

Abu-'Ubaid from Ṣa'id ibn-abu-Maryam from ibn-Luhai'ah from Kais ibn-Râfi', who heard Sufyân ibn-Wahb say:—'Umar said, taking the mudi in one hand and the kisṭ in the other, "I have assigned to every Moslem each month two mudi of bread and two kisṭ of oil and two kisṭ of vinegar." Some one said, "The slaves also?" He replied, "Yes, also the slaves."

Hishâm ibn-'Ammâr from Yahya ibn-Ḥamzah from Tamim ibn-'Aṭiyah from 'Abdallâh ibn-Kais:—'Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb ascended the minbar and thanked Allah and praised Him; then he said, "We have granted to you your pensions [aṭâ] and your rations [arzâk] every month." 461

In his hands were the mudî and the ķist, which he moved about, saying, "Whoever diminishes them, may Allah do to him thus and so" (uttering a curse).

. Inheritance of pensions. Abu-'Ubaid from ibn-abu-Zâ'idah from Ma'ķil ibn-'Ubaidallâh from 'Umar ibn-'Abd-al-'Aziz:—When a man to whom the 'aķâ' was due, died, ['Umar] granted it to his heirs.

'Affân and Khalaf al-Bazzâr and Wahb ibn-Baķiyah from Yazid ibn-Hârûn from Ismâ'il ibn-abu-Khâlid from Kais ibn-abu-Ĥâzim:—Az-Zubair ibn-al-'Awwâm said to 'Uthmân ibn-'Affân after the death of 'Abdallâh ibn-Mas'ûd, "Give me 'Abdallâh's 'aķâ', for his family is more deserving of it than the public treasury. And he gave him 15,000 [dirhams].

Yazid from Ismâ'il:—Az-Zubair was the adopted heir of ibn-Mas'ûd.

Ibn-abu-Shaibah from 'Ubaidallâh ibn-Mûsa from 'Ali ibn-Sâlih ibn-Ĥayy from Simâk ibn-Ĥarb:—A man in the tribe [ĥayy] died after eight months of the year had passed, and 'Umar granted him two-thirds of his pay.

APPENDIX III

THE SEAL

Muḥammad has a seal made. ‘Affân ibn-Muslim from Shu‘bah from Ḳatâdah, who says that he heard Anas ibn-Mâlik say :—When the Apostle of Allah was about to write to the king of the Greeks [ar-Rûm], some one said to him that they would not read the letter unless it was sealed. So he had a silver ring made,—I can almost see its whiteness upon his hand—and he had engraved upon it “ Muḥammad, the Apostle of Allah.”

Its material. Abu-r-Rabi‘ Sulaimân ibn-Dâ‘ûd az-Zuhrâni from Ḥammâd ibn-Zaid from Ayyûb from Nâfi‘ from ‘Umar :—The Apostle of Allah had made for himself a ring of silver and put its seal in the inside of his hand. 462

Muḥammad ibn-Ḥayyân al-Ḥayyâni from Zuhair from Ḥumaid from Anas ibn-Mâlik :—The ring of the Apostle of Allah was all of silver and its seal was of silver [also].

‘Amr an-Nâḳid from Yazîd ibn-Hârûn from Ḥumaid from âl-Ḥasan :—The ring of the Apostle of Allah was of silver and its seal was Abyssinian stone.¹

Hudbah ibn-Khâlîd from Hammâm ibn-Yaḥya from ‘Abd-al-‘Azîz ibn-Ṣuhaib from Anas ibn-Mâlik :—The Prophet said, “ I have made a ring, and no one shall imitate its engraving.”

¹ Ar. ḥabashi. Lisân al-‘Arab, s. v. says “ According to tradition the seal ring of the Prophet had in it an Abyssinian stone.” Ibn-al-Athir says, ‘It is possible that it was made of onyx [jiz’] or carnelian [‘aḳîḳ] because the source of these two is Yemen and Abyssinia, or of some other stone called Abyssinian.’”

The original seal-ring lost by 'Uthmân. Bakr ibn-al-Haitham from 'Abd-ar-Ruzzâk from Ma'mar from az-Zuhri and Ẹatâdah, who say:—The Apostle of Allah made a ring of silver and engraved upon it "Muhammad, the Apostle of Allah." Abu-Bakr used to seal with it; then 'Umar; then 'Uthmân. The last named had it on his hand [one day], and it fell from his hand into a well. The well was emptied, but the ring could not be found. This was in the middle of his caliphate. He had another ring made and engraved upon it in three lines "Muhammad, the Apostle of Allah." (Ẹatâdah adds, "and a hole")

The seal counterfeited. Hannâd from al-Aswad ibn-Shaibân, who says:—Khâlid ibn-Sumair told us:—A man called Ma'n ibn-Zâ'idah counterfeited the seal of the caliphate and obtained money from the kharâj of al-Kûfah in the time of 'Umar. This came to the knowledge of 'Umar, who wrote to al-Mughîrah ibn-Shu'bah, saying, "It has come to my knowledge that a man called Ma'n ibn-Zâ'idah has counterfeited the seal of the caliphate and thereby obtained money from the kharâj of al-Kûfah. When this my letter reaches thee, do to him what I order, and obey my messenger." When al-Mughîrah finished the evening devotions, and the people had seated themselves, he went out, accompanied by 'Umar's messenger. The people observed him closely until he put Ma'n under arrest. Then he said to the messenger, "The Commander of the Believers bade me obey the order that thou bringest. So order what thou wilt." And the messenger said, "Get me a tie that I may put it on his neck." A necktie was brought to him, and he put it on the prisoner's neck and twisted it tightly. Then he said to al-Mughîrah, "Put him in prison until the order of the Commander of the Believers concerning him comes to thee." And he did so.

Ma'n escapes. The prison at this time was of reeds, and Ma'n schemed to escape, sending the following message to his family, "Send me my camel and my servant and my cotton overcoat." They did so, and he escaped at night and had his servant follow, traveling until he feared the dawn would disclose him. He made his camel kneel and tied her, and hid himself until the search for him was given up. When night came, he put the blanket back over his camel and strapped it on, and had his servant follow [on foot]. Then he traveled until he appeared before 'Umar while the latter, whip in hand, was arousing the worshippers to morning prayer. Leaving his camel and servant apart, Ma'n approached 'Umar and said, "Peace be upon thee, O Commander of the Believers, and the mercy of Allah and His blessing." 'Umar replied, "And upon thee. Who art thou?" He said, "Ma'n ibn-Zâ'idah. I have come to thee as a penitent." 'Umar said, "Woe to thee! Allah will shorten thy life." And when he had completed the morning devotions, he said to the people, "Keep your places." When the sun rose, he said, "This Ma'n ibn-Zâ'idah has counterfeited the seal of the caliphate and thereby obtained money from the kharâj of al-Kûfah. What say ye in regard to him?" One said, "Cut off his hand;" another said, "Crucify him." 'Ali was silent, and 'Umar said to him, "Abu-l-Hasan, what sayest thou?" 'Ali replied, "O Commander of the Believers, a man who tells a lie is punished by flogging." So 'Umar had him severely beaten and imprisoned.

Ma'n appeals for release. He was in the prison a long time. Then he appealed to a friend of his, one of the Kuraish, [saying], "Speak a word to the Commander of the Believers in regard to setting me free." The Kuraishi spoke to 'Umar, saying, "O Commander of the Believers, Ma'n ibn-Zâ'idah has been punished by thee as he deserved. Dost thou not think thou shouldst set him free?" 'Umar replied, "Thou remindest me of a crime which I had forgotten. Bring Ma'n to me." He had him flogged again; then he ordered him back to prison. And Ma'n sent [this message] to every one of his friends, "Do not mention me to the Commander of the Believers."

He remained in prison a while longer; then 'Umar remembered him and said, "Bring Ma'n to me." He was brought to him, and the caliph gave him a present and set him free.

The seals of the Persian Kings. Al-Mufaḍḍal al-Yashkari and abu-l-Ḥasan al-Madâ'ini from ibn-Jâbân from ibn-al-Mukaffa', who says:—When the king of Persia issued a command, the endorsement¹ secretary endorsed² it in his presence. The secretary had a servant who used to keep the record of it on a memorandum, which [memoranda] were collected for each month. The king would affix his seal upon it [i. e. the memorandum] and it would be filed. Then the document was transmitted to the Treasurer General [Sâhib az-Zimân] (whose duty it was to seal documents) and he would deliver it to the Comptroller [Sâhib al-'amal]. The latter would write on it "from the king" and it would be copied carefully [fi-l-aṣl]. Then [the letter] would be sent to the Treasurer General who would show it to the king and compare it with what was on the memorandum. Then it would be sealed [by the Treasurer General] in the presence of the king or of his most intimate friend. 464

Al-Madâ'ini from Maslamah ibn-Muhârib:—Ziyâd ibn-abu-Sufyân was the first Arab to keep a regular system of account books¹ using a seal in imitation of the custom of the Persians.

Persian royal seals numerous. Mufaḍḍal al-Yashkari from ibn-Jâbân from ibn-al-Mukaffa':—One of the kings of Persia had a privy seal, a seal for despatches,² a seal for fiefs, with which he sealed the registers, land concessions, and similar official documents, and a seal for the kharâj. It was the duty of the Treasurer General to sign with them, but sometimes one of the intimates of the king was given sole charge of the privy seal and the despatch seal.

Reports written on parchment. Abu-l-Ḥasan al-Madâ'ini from ibn-Jâbân from ibn-al-Mukaffa':—Reports concerning the revenues used to be read before the king and were written in those days on white sheets of parchment. The tax collector would bring to the king every year attached sheets on which he recorded the total of the taxes which he collected, the amount spent for all expenses, and what the balance in the treasury was. And [the king] would seal and ratify it.

The parchment scented. When Kisra ibn-Hurmuz Abarwiz was ruler, he complained of the odor of these sheets, and commanded that the chief tax recorder should bring his reports to him only on parchment scented with saffron and rose-water, and that the sheets which were brought to him about the revenues and so forth should always be scented. This was done, and when Ṣâliḥ ibn-'Abd-ar-Raḥmân was in charge of the kh râj of al-Îrâq, ibn-al-Mukaffa', who was his deputy collector in the region of the Tigris [Dijlah], (Others say in al-Bihkubâdh.) brought some money, writing his report on leather scented with saffron. Ṣâliḥ laughed and said, "I did not like to have anyone else bring me reports." He said this because of his knowledge of the customs of the Persians. "

Abu-l-Ḥasan says: — Some learned scribes told me that the registers of Syria were [at first] only of paper, and likewise the letters to the kings of the banu-Umayyah in regard to the revenues, etc. But the Commander of the Believers, al-Manṣūr, when he was ruler, ordered his wazīr, abu-Ayyūb al-Mūriyāni, to write the financial reports on sheets of parchment, and to have the sheets scented. His command was carried out accordingly.

APPENDIX IV

THE COINAGE ¹

Weight of the dirham. Al-Ḥusain ibn-al-Aswad from Yahya ibn-Ādam from al-Ḥasan ibn-Ṣāliḥ:—The dirhams of Persian mintage differed more or less. They used to coin a mithkāl weighing twenty carats [kīrāt] and another coin weighing twelve carats, and another coin of ten carats (i. e. half a mithkāl); but when Allah brought Islām, and there was need, in order to pay the zakāt, of making an average, they took twenty carats and twelve carats and ten carats; they found this [to amount to] forty-two carats. And so they made a coin weighing the third of this, i. e. fourteen carats. [Consequently] the Arab dirham weighs fourteen carats of the carats of the gold ² dīnār, the weight of every ten dirhams being seven mithkāls, i. e. one hundred and forty carats equalled seven [mithkāls].

Another authority than al-Ḥasan ibn-Ṣāliḥ says:—Ten of some of the Persian dirhams weighed ten mithkāls; of others ten weighed six mithkāls; and of others ten weighed five mithkāls. They added these together and found that it amounted to twenty-one mithkāls. A third of this was taken, being seven mithkāls. And [so] they struck dirhams, ten of which weighed seven mithkāls.

The two accounts come to the same thing.

Weight of the mithkâl. Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from Muḥammad ibn-'Umar al-Aslami from 'Uthmân ibn-'Abdallâh ibn-Mauhab from his father from 'Abdallâh ibn-Tha'labah ibn-Su'air:—The dinârs of Heraclius used to be current among the people of Moakkah before Moslem times, and also the *baghliyah*¹ dirhams of Persia; but it was not customary to buy and sell with them except by considering the coins as bullion.² The mithkâl with them was a recognized weight, equal to twenty-two carats less a fraction. Ten dirhams weighed seven mithkâls. The ruṭl was twelve ounces, and every ounce was forty dirhams. The Apostle of Allah confirmed this, and so did abu-Bakr, 'Umar, 'Uthmân, and 'Ali. When Mu'âwiyah became ruler, he confirmed this likewise.

Dirhams of other weights. Afterwards, in the days of 'Abdallâh ibn-az-Zubair, Muṣ'ab ibn-az-Zubair coined smaller dirhams, which were later broken up. And when 'Abd-al-Malik ibn-Marwân became ruler, he instituted an investigation into the matter of the dirhams and the dinârs, and wrote to al-Ḥajjâj ibn-Yûsuf to coin dirhams at fifteen carats of the carats of the dinârs, and he himself coined the Damascus dinârs.

'Uthmân on the authority of his father, who says:—We came near to al-Madinah, wherein were a number of the Companions of the Apostle of Allah and others of the Followers, and they did not protest against this.³

Muhammad ibn-Sa'd says:—One of these dirhams of ours weighed fourteen carats of the carats of our mithkâl which contained twenty carats, and equalled the weight of fifteen carats of the mithkâl which contained twenty-one and three-sevenths carats.⁴

³ What this refers to I do not know.

⁴ I. e. 14 : 20 :: 15 : 21 3/7.

Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from Muḥammad ibn-'Umar from Ishāk ibn-Ḥāzim from al-Muttalib ibn-as-Sâ'ib from abu-Wadâ'ah as-Sahmi, who says:—I was shown the weight of a mithkâl; I weighed it and found it the weight of the mithkâl of 'Abd-al-Malik ibn-Marwân. (This happened in the presence of abu-Wadâ'ah ibn-Dubairah as-Sahmi in the 467 days before the coming of Muḥammad.)

Kuraishi weights. Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from al-Wâkidi from Sa'id ibn-Muslim ibn-Bâbak from 'Abd-ar-Rahmân ibn-Sâbiṭ al-Jumâhi:—The Kuraish had weights before the time of Islâm, and when Islâm became the religion, the weights they already had were confirmed. The Kuraish used to weigh silver with a weight which was called dirham, and gold with a weight which was called dinâr. Ten times the weight of the dirham was seven times the weight of the dinâr. They had also the weight of the barley grain, which was one-sixtieth of the weight of the dirham. They had the ounce, a weight of forty dirhams, the nashsh, of twenty dirhams, and the nawâh (date-seed), a weight of five dirhams. They used to buy and sell with gold [weighed] according to these weights. When the Prophet came to Makkah, he confirmed the weights according to the above scale.

Unengraved coins. Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from al-Wâkidi from Rabî'ah ibn-'Uthmân from Wahb ibn-Kaisân, who says:—I saw the plain dirhams and dinârs, before 'Abd-al-Malik had them engraved, and they were of the same weight as the dinârs which 'Abd-al-Malik coined.

The first engraved dinârs. Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from al-Wâkidi from 'Uthmân ibn-'Abdallâh ibn-Mauhab from his father, who says:—I said to Sa'id ibn-al-Musayyab, "Who was the first to coin the engraved dinârs?" He replied, "'Abd-al-Malik ibn-Marwân; and the dinârs which were in use before that were Byzantine, and the dirhams Persian and a few Ḥimyarite." Sa'īd went on to say, "I sent gold ingots to Damascus, and it was coined for me according to the weight of the mithkāl in the time before the religion of Islām."

Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from Sufyān ibn-'Uyainah from his father:—The first to coin at the weight of seven [dinārs to ten dirhams] was al-Ḥārith ibn-'Abdallāh ibn-abu-Rabī'ah al-Makhzūmi in the days of ibn-az-Zubair.

Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from Muḥammad ibn-'Umar from ibn-abu-z-Zinād from his father:—'Abd-al-Malik was the first to coin gold, in the "year of the pacification," i. e. year 74.

Abu-l-Ḥasan al-Madā'ini says al-Ḥajjāj coined dirhams 468 in the latter part of the year 75. Then in the year 76 he ordered their coinage in every region.

Varying weights. The inspector [of the coinage], Dā'ūd, says:—I heard our sheikhs relate that the 'Ibād¹ of the people of al-Ḥirah used to have a currency of which one hundred had the weight of six (meaning "had the weight of sixty *mithkāl*s in dirhams"). They had others of which one hundred weighed eight (meaning "eighty *mithkāl*s in dirhams"). Others of which one hundred weighed five (meaning "they weighed fifty *mithkāl*s in dirhams"). And others of which one hundred weighed one hundred *mithkāl*s.

Spurious coins. Dā'ūd, the Inspector, says:—I saw a dirham upon which was "This dirham was struck in al-Kūfah in the year 73." Closer inspection showed that it was spurious. He continues:—I saw a very rare dirham, the like of which was never seen, upon which was "'Ubad-allāh ibn-Ziyād." It was also rejected.

father:—Muṣ'ab struck the dirhams by order of 'Abdallāh ibn-az-Zubair in the year 70, after the model of the Persian coins, with the words "Blessing" and "Allah" upon them. But when al-Ḥajjāj came [into power], he changed it.

It is related on the authority of Hishām ibn-al-Kalbi that Muṣ'ab coined dīnārs also along with the dirhams.

Dâ'ūd, the Inspector, from abu-z-Zubair, the Inspector:—'Abd-al-Malik coined some dīnārs in the year 74. Then he coined some in the year 75. Al-Ḥajjāj coined baghlīyah dirhams upon which was inscribed "In the name of Allah, al-Ḥajjāj." Then a year later he engraved upon them "Allah is One, Allah is the Eternal." This displeased the doctors of the law [fuḳahā], and the coins were called "disapproved." Others say that the Persians disapproved of their light weight, and [for that reason] they were called "disapproved." The Sumairi coins were so called from the man who first coined them, whose name was Sumair.

Al-Ḥajjāj's mint. 'Abbās ibn-Hishām al-Kalbi from his father from 'Awānah ibn-al-Ḥakam:—Al-Ḥajjāj inquired about the procedure of the Persians in the matter of coining dirhams, and then erected a mint, and assembled men to do the stamping. He used to coin money for the Sultān out of the gold bullion which was collected for him, and out of the 'good metal obtained from spurious coin, alloyed silver, and counterfeit coin. He allowed merchants, and others to have silver pieces coined for them, and kept as profit whatever remained after paying the wages of the workmen and coiners. He marked¹ the hands of the 469 coiners.

Greater fineness. When 'Umar ibn-Hubairah ruled al-'Irāk for Yazid ibn-'Abd-al-Malik, he refined the silver more than his predecessors had done, improved the dirhams, and was strict in regard to the exchange.

Later Khâlid^o ibn-‘Abdallâh al-Bajali (also called al-Ḳasri) ruled al-‘Irâk for Hishâm ibn-‘Abd-al-Malik. He paid [even] stricter attention to the coinage than ibn-Hubairah had done, regulating it more exactly than his predecessor.

Then Yûsuf ibn-‘Umar ruled after him, and kept the coiners and money changers under close surveillance, cutting the hands and branding the flesh. [As a consequence] the coins of Hubairah, Khâlid, and Yûsuf were the best coins of the banu-Umayyah. Al-Mansûr would not accept taxes in any of the coins of the banu-Umayyah except these. Dirhams of previous mintage were called “disapproved.”

Muḥammad ibn-Sa’d from al-Wâkidi from ibn-abu-z-Zinâd from his father:—‘Abd-al-Malik ibn-Marwân was the first who coined gold and silver after the “year of pacification” [jamâ’ah].

Abu-z-Zinâd says:—I said to my father, “Do you agree with what people say of ibn-Mas’ûd, that he used to order spurious coins to be broken up?” He replied, “These coins which he ordered broken up were spurious coins struck and counterfeited by the Persians.”

‘Abd-al-A’la ibn-Ḥammâd ibn-Salamah from Dâ’ûd ibn-Salamah from Dâ’ûd ibn-abu-Hind from ash-Sha’bi from ‘Alḳamah ibn-Ḳais:—Ibn-Mas’ûd had a surplus in the treasury and sold it for less than its worth. And ‘Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb reproved him for this. Afterwards he used to lend it.

Muḥammad ibn-Sa’d from al-Wâkidi from Ḳudâmah ibn-Mûsa:—‘Umar and ‘Uthmân, when they found spurious coins in the treasury, used to turn it into silver bullion.

Counterfeiting punished. Al-Walid ibn-Ṣâliḥ from al-Wâkidi from ibn-abu-z-Zinâd from his father:—There was brought to ‘Umar ibn-‘Abd al-‘Azîz a man who was issuing a coinage not bearing the Ṣultân’s inscription, and he tortured and imprisoned him, and took his die and threw it into the fire. "

Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from al-Wākidi from Kathīr ibn-Zaid from ('Abd-) al-Muṭṭalib ibn-'Abdallāh ibn-Ḥanṭab:— 'Abd-al-Malik arrested a man who was issuing a coinage not bearing the government inscription, and was going to cut off his hand, but gave up the idea, and punished him 470 by torture. Al-Muṭṭalib [goes on to] say, "I saw several sheikhs in al-Madīnah who approved of this action of his and praised him [for it]."

Al-Wākidi says:—Our masters advised very severe punishment and disgrace for those who counterfeited the seal of the caliph, but they did not advise cutting off [the hand]. This is also the opinion of abu-Ḥanīfah and ath-Thauri.

Malik and ibn-abu-Dhi'b and their disciples say:—We disapprove of cutting the dirhams in two when it is sound, and we forbid it, for it is wrong.

Ath-Thauri and abu-Ḥanīfah and his disciples say:—It is not wrong to cut them when this does not harm Islām nor the Moslems.

The Inspector, 'Amr, from Ismā'il ibn-Ibrāhīm from ibn-'Aun from ibn-Sīrīn:—Marwān ibn-al-Ḥakam arrested a man in the act of cutting a dirham, and cut off his hand. This came to the knowledge of Zaid ibn-Thābit, who said, "He punished him as he deserved." Ismā'il says that it was a matter of Persian dirhams.

Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from al-Wākidi:—Abān ibn-'Uthmān, the ruler of al-Madīnah, punished those who cut the dirhams with thirty strokes and paraded them as a public example. This is the punishment in our time for those who cut them and pour in between molten alloy and baser metal.

Muḥammad from al-Wākidi from Ṣāliḥ ibn-Ja'far from ibn-Ka'b, who says in regard to the verse "Or can we not do with our own what we like ? ”; ¹ that it is applicable to the cutting of dirhams.

Muḥammad ibn-Khâlid ibn-‘Abdallâh from Yazîd ibn-Hârûn from Yahya ibn-Sa‘îd ibn-al-Musayyab :—Sa‘îd ibn-al-Musayyab was told about a man who cut dirhams, and Sa‘îd said, “This is of the vicious ² in the world.”

‘Amr, the Inspector, from ‘Ismâ‘îl ibn-Ibrâhîm from Yûnus ibn-‘Ubaid from al-Ḥasan :—Men when they were still unbelievers had understood the place of the dirham in the estimation of everyone, and they made it good and kept it pure; but when it came unto you [Moslems], ye debased it and spoiled it.

‘Umar ibn-al-Khattâb once said that he wanted to make dirhams out of camel skins, but some one said to him that in that case there would be no baby camels, and he gave the idea up.

APPENDIX V

THE ART OF WRITING¹

Arabic alphabet patterned after Syriac. 'Abbâs ibn- 471 Hishâm from Muḥammad ibn-as-Sâ'ib al-Kalbi from his father from his grandfather and from ash-Sharḳi ibn-al-Ḳaṭâmi:—There were assembled in Maḳḳah three members of the tribe of Ṭayy, [namely:] Murâmir ibn-Muttah, Aslam ibn-Sidrah, and 'Âmir ibn-Jadarah, and they invented the [art of] writing. They took as a pattern for the Arabic letters the Syriac alphabet.

Spread of the art. It was taught by them to some of the people of al-Anbâr. Then it was taught to the people of al-Ḥirah by the people of al-Anbâr. Bishr ibn-'Abd-al-Malik, the brother of Ukaidir ibn-'Abd-al-Malik ibn-'Abd-al-Jinn, al-Kindi (also surnamed as-Sakûni), the chief of Daumatal-Jandal, used to come to al-Ḥirah. He was stopping there at the time. He was a Christian. Bishr learned how to write Arabic from the people of al-Ḥirah. Then he went to Makkah on some business of his, and Sufyân ibn-Umaiyaḥ ibn-'Abd-Shams and abu-Ḳais ibn-'Abd-Manâf ibn-Zuhrah ibn-Kilâb saw him writing and asked him to teach them the art. He taught them the alphabet; then he showed them how to write, and they wrote.

Then Bishr, Sufyân and abu-Ḳais went to the Ṭâ'if on business. Ghailân ibn-Salamah ath-Thakafi accompanied

bibliography of the subject.

them and learned to write from them. Bishr parted from them and went on to Diyâr Muḍar. ‘Amr ibn-Zurârah ibn-‘Udas learned the art of writing from him and was called ‘Amr al-Kâtib [the scribe]. Then Bishr went to Syria and the people there learned from him how to write.

From the three Ṭâ’ites also a man of Tâbikhah of Kalb learned to write, and he taught it to a man of the people of Wâdi-l-Kura, who went back to al-Wâdi and remained there, and taught some of its people to write.

Extent of the art at the time of Muḥammad. Al-Walid ibn-Ṣâliḥ and Muḥammad ibn-Sa’d from Muḥammad ibn-‘Umar al-Wâḳidi from Khâlîd ibn-al-Yâs from abu-Bakr ibn-‘Abdallâh ibn-abu-Jahm al-‘Adawi:—Islâm came, and among the Kuraish were seventeen men each of whom knew how to write; ‘Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb, ‘Ali ibn-abu-Ṭâlib, ‘Uthmân ibn-‘Affân, abu-‘Ubaidah ibn-al-Jarrâh, Ṭalhah, Yazid ibn-abu-Sufyân, abu-Ḥudhaifah ibn-‘Utbah ibn-Rabî’ah, Ḥâṭib ibn-‘Amr the brother of Suhail ibn-‘Amr al-‘Âmiri of Kuraish, abu-Salamah ibn-‘Abd-al-Asad al-Makhzûmi, Abân ibn-Sa’id ibn-al-‘Âṣi ibn-Umaiyyah, Khâlîd ibn-Sa’id his brother, ‘Abdallâh ibn-Sa’d ibn-abu-Sarḥ al-‘Âmiri, Ḥuwaiṭib ibn-‘Abd-al-‘Uzza al-‘Âmiri, abu-Ṣufyân ibn-Ḥarb ibn-Umaiyyah, Mu’âwiyah ibn-abu-Sufyân, Juhaïm ibn-aṣ-Ṣalt ibn-Makhramah ibn-al-Muṭṭalib ibn-‘Abd-Manâf, and, (of the clients of Kuraish) al-‘Alâ’ ibn-al-Ḥaḍrami. 472

Women who could write. Bakr ibn-al-Haitham from ‘Abd-ar-Razzâk from Ma’mar from az-Zuhri from ‘Ubaidallâh ibn-‘Abdallâh ibn-‘Uḳbah:—The Prophet said to ash-Shafâ’ bint-‘Abdallâh al-‘Adawiyah of the family of ‘Umar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb, “Wilt thou teach Ḥafṣah how to indite healing charms as thou hast taught her to write?” Ash-Shafâ was a scribe before the time of Islâm.

Al-Walid from al-Wâḳidi from ibn-a'yū-Ṣabrah from 'Alḳamah ibn-abu-'Alḳamah from Muḥammad ibn-'Abd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-Thaubân:—Umm-Kulthûm bint-'Uḳbah could write.

Al-Walid from al-Wâḳidi from Farwah from 'Â'ishah bint Sa'd, who said:—My father taught me to write.

Al-Walid from al-Wâḳidi from Mûsa ibn-Ya'ḳûb from his aunt from her mother Karimah bint al-Miḳdâd:—She [Karimah] could write.

Al-Walid from al-Wâḳidi from ibn-abu-Sabrah from ibn-'Aun from ibn-Maiyâḥ from 'Â'ishah:—She could read the Korân but could not write.

Al-Walid from al-Wâḳidi from 'Abdallâh ibn-Yazîd al-Hudhali from Sâlim Sabalân from umm-Salamah:—She could read and not write.

Muḥammad's scribes. Al-Walid and Muḥammad ibn-Sa'd from al-Wâḳidi from his teachers, who said:—The first who wrote for the Apostle of Allah, having preceded him to al-Madînah, was Ubaiy ibn-Ka'b al-Anṣârî. He was the first who wrote in the back of the book "Written by So-and-so." When Ubaiy was not present, the Apostle would call Zaid ibn-Thâbiṭ al-Anṣârî, and he would write for him. Ubaiy and Zaid used to write down the revelations in his presence, and his letters to whomever he wrote, and whatever notes he made, etc. 473

Al-Wâḳidi says that the first of the Kuraish who wrote for Muḥammad was Abdallâh ibn-Sa'd ibn-abu-Sarḥ. He afterwards left al-Madînah and returned to Makkah and said to the Kuraish, "I bring that which is just as good as what Muḥammad brought." Muḥammad used to dictate to him "the unjust," and he would write "the unbelievers;" and he dictated to him "the Listener, the Omniscient," and he would write "the Pardoner, the Merciful" and so forth. Then Allah revealed to the Prophet the following: "Who is more wicked than he who makes up lies about God, or who says 'It was revealed to me,' when nothing has been revealed to him, and he who says, 'I will cause to come down a revelation like what God has sent down' " ¹

When the day of Makkah's conquest came, the Apostle of Allah ordered 'Abdallâh to be put to death; but 'Uthmân ibn-'Affân spoke to Muḥammad in behalf of him, saying, "He is my foster brother, and he has accepted Islâm." And so the Apostle of Allah ordered him to be set free. 'Uthmân made him governor of Egypt.

For the Apostle of Allah wrote also 'Uthmân ibn-'Affân, Shuraḥbil ibn-Ḥasanah aṭ-Ṭābikhi of Khindif, client of Ḳuraish (Others assert that he was a Kindi.), and Juḥain ibn-aṣ-Ṣalt ibn-Makhramah, Khâlîd ibn-Sa'id, Abân ibn-Sa'id ibn-al-'Āsi, and al-'Alâ' ibn-al-Ḥaḍrami.

When Mu'âwiyah accepted Islâm in the year of the Conquest, he also acted as scribe for Muḥammad. One day the latter summoned him while he was eating, and he delayed coming; and the Apostle said, "May his belly never be satisfied." Mu'âwiyah used to say, "The prayer of the Apostle of Allah has been fulfilled upon me." For he used to eat daily seven meals more or less.

Al-Wâḳidi and others say:—Ḥanṭhalah ibn-ar-Rabî' ibn-Rabâḥ al-Usaiyidi of the banu-Tamim wrote in the presence of the Apostle of Allah a single time, and as a result he was called Ḥanṭhalah al-Kâtib [the Scribe].

Scribes among the Aus and the Khazraj. Al-Wâḳidi says:—Writing in Arabic was rare among the Aus and the Khazraj. Some of the Jews taught how to write Arabic, and the young folks in al-Madīnah had learned it previous to Islâm. Then Islâm came; and among the Aus and the Khazraj a number could write, [namely:] Sa'd ibn-'Ubâdah

ibn-Dulaim, al-Mundhir ibn-ʿAmr, Ubaiy^b ibn-Kaʿb, and Zaid ibn-Thâbit. (He used to write Arabic and Hebrew.) 474 and Râfiʿ ibn-Mâlik, Usaid ibn-Ḥuḍair, Maʿn ibn-ʿAdi al-Balawi, a client of the Anṣâr, Bashir ibn-Saʿd, Saʿd ibn-ar-Rabiʿ, Aus ibn-Khawali, and ʿAbdallâh ibn-abu-l-Munâfik

The kâmil. Al-Wâḳidi adds:—Among these the kamils (A kâmil is one who in addition to knowing writing knows how to shoot and swim.) were Râfiʿ ibn-Mâlik, Saʿd ibn-ʿUbâdah, Usaid ibn-Ḥuḍair, ʿAbdallâh ibn-Ubaiy, and Aus ibn-Khawali. Suwaid ibn-aṣ-Ṣâmit and Ḥuḍair al-Katâʿib, members of the people of Yathrib, possessed these three accomplishments in the [days of the] Ignorance.

Al-Wâḳidi:—Jufainah al-ʿIbadi, a Christian, of the people of al-Ḥirah, was foster father to Saʿd ibn-abu-Waḳḳâṣ. ʿUbaidallâh ibn-ʿUmar charged him together with Mashâyaʿah abu-Luʿluʿah of complicity in the crime of killing his father [ʿUmar ibn-al-Khaṭṭâb], and killed him and his two sons.

Zaid ibn-Thâbit learns to write Hebrew. Ishâḳ ibn-abu-Isrâʾil from ʿAbd-ar-Raḥmân ibn-abu-z-Zinâd from his father from Khârijah ibn-Zaid, who says that his father, Zaid ibn-Thâbit, said:—The Apostle of Allah ordered me to learn for him the Jewish method of writing, saying to me. “I do not trust a Jew at my writing.” And not half a month passed before I learned it. I used to write to the Jews for him, and when they wrote to him, I would read their letters.

Finished is the Book of the Conquests of the Regions, and Praise be to Allah, the only Judge, and His Blessing be upon our Lord Muḥammad, the Prophet, and upon his Family and his Companions, and His Peace.

Columbia University in the City of New York

The University includes the following:

Columbia College, founded in 1754, and Barnard College, founded in 1889, offering to men and women, respectively, programs of study which may be begun either in September or February and which lead normally in from three to four years to the degree of Bachelor of Arts. The program of study in Columbia College makes it possible for a qualified student to satisfy the requirements for both the bachelor's degree and a professional degree in law, medicine, mining, engineering, chemistry, or architecture in six years.

The non-professional graduate Faculties of Political Science, Philosophy and Pure Science, offering advanced programs of study and investigation leading to the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy.

The Professional Schools of:

Law, established in 1858, offering courses leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Laws, Master of Laws and Doctor of Law.

Medicine. The College of Physicians and Surgeons, established in 1807, offering courses leading to the degree of Doctor of Medicine.

Mines, founded in 1863, offering courses leading to the degrees of Engineer or Mines and Metallurgical Engineer.

Chemistry and Engineering, set apart from School of Mines in 1896, offering courses leading to degrees in Civil, Electrical, Mechanical, Chemical and Industrial Engineering.

Teachers College, founded in 1888, offering in its School of Education courses leading to appropriate diplomas and the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education; in its School of Practical Arts courses leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Practical Arts; and in both faculties courses leading to the degrees of Master of Arts and Master of Science.

Architecture, offering a program of indeterminate length leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Architecture and Master of Science.

Journalism, founded in 1912, offering courses leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Literature in Journalism and Master of Science.

Business, founded in 1916, offering courses in business training leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Science and Master of Science.

Dentistry, founded in 1917, offering courses leading to the degrees of Doctor of Dental Surgery.

Pharmacy. The New York College of Pharmacy, founded in 1831, offering courses leading to the degrees of Pharmaceutical Chemist, Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy and Doctor of Pharmacy.

In the Summer Session the University offers courses giving both general and professional training which may be taken either with or without regard to an academic degree or diploma.

Through its system of University Extension the University offers many courses of study to persons unable otherwise to receive academic training.

Home Study courses carrying no academic credit are offered to persons unable to attend courses conducted at the University.

The Institute of Arts and Sciences provides lectures, concerts, readings and recitals—approximately two hundred and fifty in number—in a single season.

The price of the University Catalogue is twenty-five cents postpaid. Detailed information regarding the work in any department will be furnished without charge upon application to the Secretary of Columbia University, New York, N. Y.

SCHEME OF INSTRUCTION

Courses are offered under the following departments: (1) History, (2) Public Law and Comparative Jurisprudence, (3) Economics, (4) Social Science.

GENERAL COURSES

General courses involve on the part of the student work outside of the classroom; but no such course involves extensive investigation to be presented in essay or other form.

RESEARCH COURSES

Research courses vary widely in method and content; but every such course involves on the part of the student extensive work outside the classroom.

The degrees of A.M. and Ph.D. are given to students who fulfill the requirements prescribed. (For particulars, see Columbia University Bulletins of Information, Faculty of Political Science.) Any person not a candidate for a degree may attend any of the courses at any time by payment of a proportional fee. Ten or more Cutting fellowships of $1000 each or more, four University fellowships of $750 each, two or three Gilder fellowships of $650-$800 each, the Schiff fellowship of $600, the Curtis fellowship of $600, the Garth fellowship of $650 and a number of University scholarships of $240 each are awarded to applicants who give evidence of special fitness to pursue advanced studies. Several prizes of from $50 to $250 are awarded. The library contains over 700,000 volumes and students have access to other great collections in the city.

China at the Conference

BY

W. W. WILLOUGHBY

Professor of Political Science at The Johns Hopkins University

Octavo. 435 pages. Price $3.00

This volume, in the form of a semi-official report, will take its place along side the author's well-known work "Foreign Rights and Interests in China," and will give the reader an accurate statement of the results of the recent Conference at Washington.

Besides chapters explaining the reasons for the discussion by the Powers of the political and international situation in the Far East, describing the organization and procedure of the Conference, and estimating its results, there are chapters dealing severally with each of the important subjects discussed in the Conference and regarding which Treaties or Resolutions were adopted. In an Appendix the texts are given of these important documents.

Inasmuch as, with the exception of a part of a single session which was devoted to the situation in Siberia, the entire work of the Conference so far as it dealt with political questions in the Pacific and Far East, was concerned with the affairs of China, the present volume gives, in effect, a comprehensive account of the work of that Conference. In order that it may be quite complete in this respect there is given in the Appendix the statements made—there were no discussions—with reference to the Siberian situation.

THE VILLAGE LABOURER, 1760-1832: A Study in the Government of England before the Reform Bill. By J. L. and Barbara Hammond. 8vo. $2 25 net.

"There is not a chapter in Mr. and Mrs. Hammond's book which fails to throw new light on enclosures or on the administration of the poor laws and the game laws, and on the economic and social conditions of the period. . . . A few other studies of governing class rule before 1867 as searchingly analytical as Mr. and Mrs. Hammond's book will do much to weaken this tradition and to make imperative much recasting of English History from 1688."— —Am. Political Science Review.

THE TOWN LABOURER, 1760-1832: The New Civilization. By J. L. Hammond and Barbara Hammond, Authors of The Village Labourer, 1760-1832: A Study in the Government of England before the Reform Bill. 8vo. $2 25 net.

This volume is the first part of a study of the Industrial Revolution. It will be completed by another volume giving in detail the history of the work-people in various industries, with a full account of the Luddite rising and of the disturbances connected with the adventures of the agent provocateur Oliver

"Never has the story been told with such masterly precision, or with such illuminating reference to the original sources of the time, as in this book. . . . The perspective and proportion are so perfect that the life of a whole era, analyzed searchingly and profoundly, passes before your eyes as you read."—

"A brilliant and important achievement. 'The Town Labourer' will rank as an indispensable source of revelation and of inspiration."—The Nation (London).

ENGLISH PRISONS UNDER LOCAL GOVERNMENT By Sidney and Beatrice Webb. With Preface by Bernard Shaw. 8vo. $5.00 net

This detailed history of Prison Administration from the Seventeenth to the Twentieth Century, uniform with the authors' other books on English Local Government, supplies the historical background for the companion volume, English Prisons To-day, being the Report of the Prison System Inquiry Committee. The characteristic Preface by Bernard Shaw, extending to over 70 pages, discusses the Theory of Punishment and propounds a revolutionary change in the treatment of criminals.

ENGLISH PRISONS TO-DAY: Being the Report of the Prison System Inquiry Committee Edited by Stephen Hobhouse, M.A., and A. Fenner Brockway. With 6 Illustrations. 8vo. $3 50 net

In the First part of the Report a detailed description is given of the English Prison System as it is operating to-day. In the Second Part a description is given of the mental and moral effects of imprisonment. The conclusions of the Committee are based upon evidence received from prison officials, workers among discharged prisoners, and ex-prisoners of many types, supplemented by a study of official and unofficial literature.

THE HUMAN FACTOR IN BUSINESS By B. Seebohm Rowntree, Author of "Industrial Unrest: A Way Out," "Poverty: A Study of Town Life," "How the Labourer Lives," "The Human Needs of Labour," etc. Crown 8vo. $2.00 net. 1

"Seebohm Rowntree's Human Factor in Business is a good example of the attitude taken by the benevolent employer of high moral integrity; it understands the whole human problem—except the humanity. It is better, I think, than most American employers' accounts of their workers' needs; but it is a purely external view of the workers' psychology."—Harold J. Laski in The Survey.

WEALTH AND TAXABLE CAPACITY

By Sir JOSIAH STAMP, K.B.E., D.Sc. Being the Newmaich Lectures of 1920-21. 10s. 6d. Postage 9d.

In the House of Commons during the Debate on the Budget, April, 1922, these Lectures were referred to Morning Post "The book should be read and read carefully by all who are concerned in post war financial problems. When the book has been mastered the reader will be able to consider most of the current financial problems without being taken in by the many specious and ingenious remedies which are put forward"

SOCIALISATION IN THEORY AND PRACTICE

By HEINRICH STROBEL, Finance Minister in the Prussian Revolutionary Government of November, 1918. Translated from the original by H. J. STENNING. 10s. 6d. Postage 9d

New Statesman "Herr Strobel has written an exceedingly valuable book brings out clearly many problems and difficulties which have hardly begun to be appreciated here. Above all he stresses the almost inevitable failure of attempts to devise plans of Socialisation on the spur of the moment. It would do every believer in Socialisation good to read Herr Strobel's book and to endeavour to think out its applications to the situation in this country"

THE TRADE CYCLE

THE PRINCIPLE OF OFFICIAL INDEPENDENCE. WITH PARTICULAR REFERENCE TO THE POLITICAL HISTORY OF CANADA

By R. MACGREGOR DAWSON, M.A., D.Sc. (Econ.) With Introduction by Prof. GRAHAM WALLAS, M.A. 10s. 6d. Postage 9d

This book is an attempt to analyse the conception of independence in the Modern State—an idea which though it finds expression in a multitude of practical forms has been ignored by the majority of writers on Politics. In order to make the discussion more concrete the author has thought it wiser to confine himself to Canadian Government and has only enlarged this sphere when comparison with some other country demanded it.
